Lisbon, July 12.

THE States of this Kingdom are appointed by the Prince Regent to meet the 15th of September next, to approve the Marriage between the Infanta and the Duke of Savoy, which our Letters fr[illegible] Turin say, was very much disliked by the generality of people there.

Genoua, Aug. 15. Not any Vessels are arrived here this week, except a French Petache from Thoulon, to find out the French Gallies which are put into Porto Vecchio in Corsica, in their way for Cagliari, where the Chevalier de Tourville with the French Men of War under his command, attends them, in order to the falling upon three Majorkins of good force, which he has blocked up in that Port. That Cazal will fall into the hands of the French, is now feared more then ever; for we are told from good hands that Monsieur Gaumont is negotiating that matter at the Court of Mantoua, with good hopes of success. From Turin we have an account, that the Polish Ambassador, the Chevalier Lubomirski, having obtained a promise that the Duke of Savoy will raise and maintain a Regiment of Dragoons for the service of that Crown, in case it enter into a War against the Turks, is on his departure from that Court. It is reported that the Maltha Gallies have had a Rencounter with four Turks Gallies (who with some other Vessels had landed in Calabria, and and made many Slaves there) and had taken some of them. There is a discourse of some disturbance at Messina.

Dantzicke, Aug. 27. We had some days since a warm report here of a great Victory obtained by the Moscovites against the Turks; but the Letters we have since received from Poland prove it to be a mistake; they say, that the Moscovite Army lay encamped under the Walls of Kiovia, expecting the conjunction of more Troops, before they marched towards the Enemy, while in the mean time the Cham of Tartary did use all his endeavors to make up a Peace between the Poles and the Turks, which on the other hand the Poles labor all they can to hinder, and the more, since the Resident of that Crown at Constantinople has in his late Letters to the King, told him, that the Grand Signior was resolved to break with him, and would the next Spring take the Field in person, to attack him with all the force of his Empire, and that to that end endeavors would be used to prolong the Peace with the Emperor for 20 years. This advice, as our Letters tell us, was lookt upon to be of that importance, that the King had summoned a Dyet to be held at Warsaw the beginning of December, and to continue for a fortnight only.

Vienna, Aug. 20. The Plague encreasing here very much, the Emperor has resolved to remove with the whole Court to Prague, for which all things are accordingly preparing. The Ambassadors of Poland and Moscovy have received a final Answer to what they came to propose to this Court, which we cannot as yet give you any account of farther then that the said Ambassadors seem very well satisfied, and are preparing to return home. The advices from Hungary are so uncertain, that they deserve not any credit, and therefore we will not trouble you with them.

Copenhagen. Aug. 26. Yesterday in the evening our King returned hither from Holstein: According to the advice we receive this day from Schonen, it seems the Suedes are going to raise the Siege of Elsenburg, they having already taken the Cannon from their Batteries. Two or three days since Colonel Swanwedel, who went out with a Party from Landscroon, meeting with a stronger party of Suedes, was forced to retire with some loss.

Copenhagen, Aug. 29. The Danish Plenipotentiaries returned the 27th instant again from Lundun, to give the King an account of the state the Treaty is in, and to receive his orders upon the Points which remain undetermined. It is believed they will in a day or two go back to Lundun, to try if things may be brought to a conclusion. We have this evening advice that 6000 Suedes, with 12 pieces of Cannon, are marched towards Helmstadt, with what design is not known.

Hamburg, Aug. 22. From Berlin they write, that the Electoral Prince of Brandenburg, was the last week privately married to the Princess of Hesse Cassel. The Sieur Grauenthal is arrived here from Sueden, and, as we are informed, has brought that Kings Ratifications of the Treaty concluded some time since by Monsieur Rabenac the French Minister with the Princes of Lunenburg, with a Declaration thereupon, which it's believed will be accepted by the said Princes. This day the said Sieur Rabenac parts from hence for Berlin, where, it's belived he will reside.

Cologne, Aug. 28. The 26th instant the Bishop of Osnabrug arrived at Mulheim, in his journy to Eems; our Magistrates deputed two of their Body to go and compliment his Highness there, which they performed; and besides, made an Agreement with him, in the matter of the monies he demanded of this City, by which he contents himself with 15000 Crowns, instead of 20000, which the Emperor had assigned him upon this City, in lieu of Winter-quarters; in pursuance of this accord, 5000 have been already paid, and the other 10000 [illegible] to be, upon demand, at Francfort. From Vienna they write, that many people dying there daily of the Plague, the Emperor had resolved to remove his Court to Prague.

Cologne, Sept. 1. On Tuesday last the Prince and Princess of Newburg, passed by this City in Barges, down the River, and lodged that night at Mulheim,
