(F. & H. 4896.)

For the purposes of the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 to 1890, and all Provisional Orders and Licences made and issued thereunder, the Board of Trade approve of the pattern and construction of the meter (hereinafter described) for the measurement of electrical energy when supplied on the constant potential alternating current system, namely:—

The meter deposited at the Board of Trade on the 11th day of November 1898 by or on behalf of the Aron Electricity Meter Limited, of 46 Upper Thames Street, London, E.C., and sealed by the Board of Trade, and known as the Aron (alternating current) Meter.

The Board of Trade further approve of the following manner of fixing meters of the above pattern and construction, and of connecting them with the service lines:—

The meter is to be fixed securely on a vertical wall or support, great care being taken that it is accurately perpendicular as indicated by the plumb-line fixed on the left hand side of the case.

In connecting the meter with the service lines one service line is to be cut, the ends prepared as described below, and the conductors inserted and tightly clamped in the left hand pair of terminals, so that the service line from the supply is placed in the terminal on the left, and the consumer's wire in the terminal on the right. Similarly the other service line is to be cut, its ends prepared as described below, and tightly clamped in the right hand pair of terminals.

In preparing the ends of the service lines, the conductor is to be bared of insulating material for a length not less than three-quarters of an inch and not exceeding one inch, the insulation being cut straight across. The outside of the insulating material is to be made to fit closely the hole through which the line is passed to the terminal, indiarubber tape or other insulating material being wound on to the requisite thickness if necessary.

Signed by order of the Board of Trade; this 23rd day of March 1899.

T. H. W. PELHAM,
Assistant Secretary, Board of Trade.
