BRITISH TELECOMMUNICATIONS

NOTE: The Scheme which follows this Note has been made under section 21 of the British Telecommunications Act 1981 and will come into operation on the 1st April 1982. It amends the Telecommunication Scheme 1981 and the Telecommunication Amendment (No. 1) Scheme 1982.

The principal changes are an amendment to provide for the payment of interest on long term deposits, changes in certain charges for radiopaging and miscellaneous amendments to charges for certain equipment, apparatus and facilities.

(This Note is not part of the Scheme)

TELECOMMUNICATION AMENDMENT (No. 2) SCHEME 1982

Made - - - - - - - - - - - - 26th March 1982

Coming into operation - - - - - - - - 1st April 1982

British Telecommunications, by virtue of the powers conferred upon it by section 21 of the British Telecommunications Act 1981, and of all other powers enabling it in this behalf, hereby makes the following Scheme:

Commencement and Citation

1. This Scheme shall come into operation on the 1st April 1982 and may be cited as the Telecommunication Amendment (No. 2) Scheme 1982.

Interpretation

2.—(1) This Scheme shall be read as one with the Telecommunication Scheme 1981 (hereinafter called " the principal Scheme ") as amended by the Telecommunication Amendment (No. 1) Scheme 1982.

(2) The Interpretation Act 1978 applies for the interpretation of this Scheme as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

Interpretation

3. For paragraph 4 of the principal Scheme there shall be substituted the following paragraph:

" Interpretation

4.—(1) In this Scheme, except so far as the contrary is provided or the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them:

" the Act " means the British Telecommunications Act 1981;

" agreement " means an agreement made by the Corporation or the Post Office with any person for the provision of telecommunication service;

" alarm call " means a telephone call made to an installation from a telephone exchange in accordance with paragraph 71;

" the appropriate telephone exchange " in relation to a telephone exchange line or " the appropriate telex exchange " in relation to a telex exchange line mean respectively the telephone or telex exchange which in the opinion of the Corporation should serve that exchange line;

" bandwidth " means a frequency band described by reference to the range of cycles per second (measured in Hertz, denoted by the symbol Hz) within which a private circuit is designed to be operated;

" business line " means a telephone exchange line which is regarded as a business line in accordance with paragraph 49;

" call office " means equipment or apparatus (not forming part of an installation) which is available to the public for the purpose of sending and receiving either telephone or telex messages (as the case may be) and where the context so requires includes the building or part of the building or other external covering which houses such equipment or apparatus;

" chargeable length " means the distance measured between such points and in such manner as the Corporation considers appropriate for the purpose of assessing certain charges payable under the applicable provisions of this Scheme;

" coin box line " means a telephone exchange line to which is connected terminal apparatus with a coin collecting box into which the Corporation may require sums of money to be placed in respect of telephone calls made by means of the exchange line;

" the Corporation " means British Telecommunications;

" Corporation telephone system " means the public switched telephone exchange system under the control of the Corporation;

" Corporation telex system " means the public switched telex exchange system under the control of the Corporation;

" exchange line " means equipment and apparatus in the Corporation telephone system or the Corporation telex system connecting a subscriber's premises with a telephone exchange or telex exchange and appropriated by the Corporation or the Post Office to the purpose of affording telephone or telex service on the application of the subscriber; and " telephone exchange line " and " telex exchange line " shall be construed accordingly;

" exclusive line " means a telephone exchange line which provides a channel of communication of which no part is used in common with any other subscriber for the purpose of making telephone calls;

" extension " means a point in a subscriber's premises to and/or from which telecommunication can be effected other than the point at which is fixed a primary service connecting point;

" external extension " means an extension point other than an internal extension;

" external private circuit " means a private circuit other than an internal private circuit;

" fixed time call " means a telephone call booked in advance for connection at a specified time in accordance with paragraph 63;

" installation " means equipment or apparatus appropriated or supplied otherwise than by sale (whether by the Corporation or by the Post Office) to or for the purpose of the provision of telecommunication service for a subscriber, or for use in connection with such service;

" internal extension " means an extension where the extension point and the point to which it is connected are regarded by the Corporation as being in the same set of premises;

" internal private circuit " means a private circuit which connects points regarded by the Corporation as being in the same set of premises;

" international private circuit " means a private circuit which connects a point within the United Kingdom or the Isle of Man with a point outside the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, the Channel Islands, or the Republic of Ireland;

" local call " means a telephone call made to an installation or telephone which is served by:

(i) the local exchange, or

(ii) a telephone exchange in the same telephone group as the local exchange, or

(iii) a telephone exchange in a telephone group which is regarded by the Corporation as adjacent to the telephone group in which the local exchange is situated;

" local exchange ", in relation to a telephone call, means the telephone exchange serving the installation or telephone from which the call is made;

" message " includes any form of information or signals;

" minimum period of service " has the meaning assigned to it by paragraph 10;

" personal call " means a telephone call booked for the specified purpose of communication with a particular person or otherwise in accordance with paragraph 64 or paragraph 65;

" primary service connecting point " means in a case where more than one service connecting point is fixed by the Corporation in a subscriber's premises any such point which it regards as the primary connecting point;

" private attachment " has the meaning assigned to it by paragraph 43;

" private circuit " means (subject to the provisions of paragraph 89, in relation to certain international external private circuits) equipment and apparatus which has been appropriated or supplied by the Corporation or the Post Office as a means of telecommunication between two or more specified points otherwise than through the medium of the Corporation telephone system or the Corporation telex system (except where and to the extent that the Corporation has given written consent to the subscriber for the use of a private circuit in connection with such a system);

" private service " means telecommunication service which is provided for a subscriber as a means of, or relating to, telecommunication which is effected through a medium other than a public switched telecommunication exchange system under the control of the Corporation (except where and to the extent that the Corporation gives consent to the subscriber for the use of private service in connection with such a system);

" radiopaging receiver " means portable radio receiving equipment supplied by the Corporation for the purpose of receiving a signal which is originated by a telephone call and transmitted to the radiopaging receiver by means of wireless telegraphy;

" radiophone " means a telephone in a vehicle or elsewhere within a radiophone service area which is provided with telephone service through the Corporation telephone system by means of a wireless telegraphy link between the radiophone and a telephone exchange

" radiophone service area " means an area designated by the Corporation for operational purposes in connection with the provision of telephone service to radiophones;

" rental " means any charge which is payable periodically under this Scheme, or in the case of temporary service for a specified period the charge fixed by the Corporation under this Scheme for that period: for the avoidance of doubt the expression " rental " does not include an aggregate amount in respect of call charges which is included in a subscriber's bill in accordance with paragraph 20(9);

" Scheme " means a scheme made under section 21 of the Act or having effect as if made under that section by virtue of paragraph 7(1) of Schedule 4 to the Act;

" service connecting point " means a terminal block, a socket for a removable plug, a distribution frame, or any other device (together with any ancillary wiring) fixed by the Corporation in a subscriber's premises for the purpose of facilitating the connection of subscriber's apparatus to an exchange line or external private circuit;

" shared line " means a telephone exchange line which provides a channel of communication, some part whereof is used in common with another subscriber;

" speech band circuit " means a private circuit designed to be operated within a bandwidth having normal limits of between 300 and 3400 Hz;

" subscriber " means a person in consequence of whose application the Corporation provides telecommunication service under this Scheme and by whom rental and other charges are payable under this Scheme or a person to whom the provisions of this Scheme are applied by virtue of paragraph 3; and includes where the context so requires, an applicant for such service, and also the personal representatives of a deceased subscriber: for the avoidance of doubt, the expression " subscriber " does not include a person who merely makes a call or sends a message;

" subscriber's apparatus " has the same meaning as in section 16 of the Act;

" subscriber's connecting point " means a terminal block, a socket for a removable plug, a distribution frame, or any other device (together with any ancillary wiring) other than a service connecting point which is fixed in a subscriber's premises for the purpose of connecting subscriber's apparatus to other such apparatus or by means of a plug to a service connecting point;

" subscriber's premises " means any place where an installation or part of an installation (whether or not the installation or part is connected for use) has been placed at the request of the subscriber, or of a person for whose use the installation or part has been supplied or appropriated (or as to part thereof supplied and as to the remainder appropriated) by the Corporation or the Post Office on the application of the subscriber;

" telecommunication " means the conveyance through the agency of electric, magnetic, electromagnetic, electro-chemical, or electrical-mechanical energy of—

(a) speech, music, and other sounds;

(b) visual images;

(c) signals serving for the impartation (whether as between persons and persons, things and things or persons and things) of any matter otherwise than in the form of sound or visual images; and

(d) signals serving for the actuation or control of machinery or apparatus;

" telecommunication service " means any service or facility provided by the Corporation as a means of, or relating to, telecommunication;

" telegraph band circuit " means a private circuit designed to be operated within bandwidths having normal limits below the lower limit at which a speech band circuit is designed to be operated;

" telegraphic line " means a telegraphic line as defined in the Telegraph Act 1878;

" telephone " (in expressions relating to calls made from or to a telephone) includes automatic apparatus for making, receiving or answering calls effected through the medium of the Corporation telephone system;

" telephone exchange " means switching equipment and apparatus which forms part of the Corporation telephone system or of a public telephone system provided by a person licensed in that behalf by the Corporation, and where the context so requires includes the building, vehicle, or other external covering which houses such equipment and apparatus;

" telephone exchange line extension " means equipment and apparatus which is appropriated or supplied by the Corporation for the purpose of enabling telephone calls to be made or received at a point in the subscriber's premises other than the point at which the telephone exchange line terminates;

" telephone service " means telecommunication service which is provided as a means of, or relating to, telecommunication through the medium of the Corporation telephone system;

" telex area " in relation to a telex sending station or a telex receiving station, means such area as the Corporation may determine, being an area within which that station is situated;

" telex centre " in relation to a telex sending station or a telex receiving station, means such point within the telex area of that station as the Corporation may determine for the purpose of the provisions of this Scheme as to call charges;

" telex exchange " means switching equipment and apparatus operated by the Corporation and forming part of the Corporation telex system;

" telex receiving station ", in relation to a telex call, means the teleprinter or other receiving apparatus and the equipment associated therewith to which the call is made;

" telex sending station ", in relation to a telex call, means the teleprinter or other sending apparatus and the equipment associated therewith whereby the call is originated;

" telex service " means telecommunication service which is provided as a means of, or relating to, telecommunication through the medium of the Corporation telex system;

" temporary service " means telecommunication service which the Corporation has determined shall be regarded as such in accordance with paragraph 13 of this Scheme;

" terminal apparatus " means subscriber's apparatus supplied otherwise than by sale by the Corporation or by the Post Office to a subscriber for connection by means of a connecting point in the subscriber's premises to an exchange line or external private circuit;

" terminal exchange ", in relation to a telephone call, means the telephone exchange serving the installation or telephone to which the call is made;

" trunk barring equipment " means equipment appropriated or supplied for use with telephone instruments and exchange lines on which the subscriber trunk dialling facility is available, for the purpose of preventing or restricting the making of trunk calls and calls to which paragraph 56 applies from such instruments, either at all times while the equipment is fitted, or at such times as the equipment is switched into circuit at the telephone instrument; but does not include equipment for preventing all outgoing calls from being made from a particular telephone instrument;

" trunk call " means any telephone call other than a local call or a call to which paragraph 56 applies;

" United Kingdom " means England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, but does not include the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man;

(2) In this Scheme, except so far as the contrary is provided or the context otherwise requires, references to anything being or having been done by or under this Scheme or any of the paragraphs thereof shall be construed as including references to that thing being or having been done by or under any previous Regulations or Schemes relating to telecommunication service or by or under the corresponding regulation or paragraph therein.

(3) The Interpretation Act 1978 applies for the interpretation of this Scheme as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament and as if this Scheme and the schemes hereby revoked were Acts of Parliament.

(4) Any reference in this Scheme to, or to any provision of, any enactment or scheme shall be construed, unless the context otherwise requires, as a reference to such enactment or scheme or such provision thereof, as amended, re-enacted or replaced, whether before or after the commencement of this Scheme, by any other subsequent enactment or scheme.

(5) Any reference in any scheme to the provisions of any scheme revoked by this Scheme shall be construed, unless the context otherwise requires, as a reference to the corresponding provisions of this Scheme.".

Deposits and payments in advance

4. For paragraph 30 of the principal Scheme there shall be substituted the following paragraph:

" Deposits and payments in advance

30.—(1) The Corporation may, from time to time, either before or after providing telecommunication service under this Scheme, require the payment of a deposit of such amount as it thinks necessary by way of security for the payment of the rental or other charges payable or to become payable by the subscriber, and the subscriber shall pay such deposit within such time as the Corporation may direct. The Corporation may retain the deposit until all liability of the subscriber in respect of rental or other charges in respect of telecommunication service has been discharged and may, if it thinks fit, from time to time appropriate the deposit or any part of it in or towards payment of any such rental or other charges which the subscriber is liable to pay.

(2) In addition to, or instead of, requiring the subscriber to pay a deposit, the Corporation may require him to pay in advance before service is provided an amount not exceeding the rental for the minimum period of service and the connection charge in respect of the installation for which he has applied. The amount paid in advance shall be allowed as credit to the subscriber in respect of the rental and connection charge which subsequently becomes due.

(3) In the case of a deposit or any part of a deposit which is repaid to the subscriber after being retained for a period of not less than one year the Corporation may add to the amount repaid a sum by way of simple interest calculated at such annual rate as the Corporation may fix."

Removals, alterations and substitution of equipment or apparatus

5. For paragraph 31 of the principal Scheme there shall be substituted the following paragraph:

" Removals, alterations and substitution of equipment or apparatus

31.—(1) If a subscriber applies for the removal of any item of equipment or apparatus from one position to another within the subscriber's premises and as part of the same installation or the alteration of such item or for an item of equipment or apparatus to be substituted for another the following provisions of this paragraph shall apply.

(2) The Corporation may, if it thinks fit, require the subscriber to give notice that he wishes to cease being provided with service by means of the installation which the item of equipment or apparatus comprises or of which the item is a component part and to make a fresh application for service.

(3) If the Corporation does not require the subscriber to give notice and to make application in accordance with sub-paragraph (2) it may accede to the subscriber's application for removal, alteration, or substitution of the said item of equipment or apparatus, and the subscriber shall pay:

(a) in the case of an item in respect of which a maximum charge is specified in Schedule 19 such charge as the Corporation may fix not exceeding that maximum;

(b) in the case of an item in respect of which no maximum charge is specified in Schedule 19 but in respect of which a connection charge is chargeable under this Scheme, such charge as the Corporation may fix not exceeding the maximum amount of the connection charge which would be charged under this Scheme:

Provided that in the case of (a) and (b) the Corporation may fix a charge exceeding the appropriate maximum amount if it has informed the subscriber in advance of doing the work, of the charge it proposes to fix and he confirms his application;

(c) in any other case such charge as the Corporation may fix.

(4) If the subscriber cancels an application referred to in sub-paragraph (1) before the removal, alteration or substitution has been fully effected, the subscriber shall pay such charges as the Corporation may fix in respect of any work done by the Corporation which is rendered abortive.

(5) The charge payable under sub-paragraph (3) in a case where an item of equipment or apparatus is substituted for another shall be payable in addition to any single payment in respect of the provision of that item which the Corporation may require the subscriber to make in accordance with paragraph 34."

Private attachments

6.—(1) In paragraph 43(5)(f) of the principal Scheme the full stop at the end shall be deleted and substituted by a semi-colon.

(2) In paragraph 43(5) of the principal Scheme there shall be inserted the following additional sub-paragraph:

" (g) where in the case of a private attachment of a type referred to in Schedule 15 the Corporation, to comply with the subscriber's requirements, effects work (other than maintenance in accordance with sub-paragraph (b) above) of a kind which it normally effects in relation to apparatus of the same type which forms part of an installation, the subscriber shall pay whichever of the following charges is appropriate:

(i) the charge specified in Part 1 of Schedule 19 which would be applicable were the private attachment part of an installation;

(ii) such charge as the Corporation may fix.".

Telephone directories

7. For paragraph 75(6) of the principal Scheme there shall be substituted the following sub-paragraph:

" (6) The Corporation may at any time give written notice to the subscriber that it is no longer prepared to accede to his application made under sub-paragraph (2) and the subscriber may at any time by written notice to the Corporation withdraw such an application. In the event of such notice being given by either the Corporation or the subscriber the period referred to in sub-paragraph (5) shall end on the first day of the month in which is published the next subsequent issue of the telephone directory concerned, whether effect is given to the notice of withdrawal in that issue or not; and if no such notice is given, the said period shall end on the date when the subscriber's liability to pay rental in respect of the telephone exchange line concerned ceases.".
