From Saturday May 12, to Tuesday May 15, 1781.

Lord Chamberlain's Office, May 15, 1781.

NOTICE is hereby given, that there will not be a Drawing-Room at St. James's on Thursday next, the 17th Instant.

Admiralty-Office, May 15, 1781.

CAPTAIN Trollope, of His Majesty's Sloop the Kite, arrived at this Office on Sunday last with Dispatches from Vice-Admiral Darby to Mr. Stephens, dated April 22, 1781, off Cape St. Vincents, of which the following is an Extract.

YOU will be pleased to acquaint my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that early on the Morning of the 11th Instant, we saw Three Sail at a Distance from each other; I sent the Alexander, Foudroyant, and Minerva, to chase. Captain Fielding, who came up the nearest to them, said they were Three Frigates, which made into Cadiz, where he counted Thirty-three Sail of large Ships; Six of them had Flags and distinguishing Pendants, with a Number of small Ships and Craft of all Kinds. That Evening we brought to off Cape Spartel, when I dispatched the Kite Cutter with a Letter to General Elliot. The next Day about Noon, the Convoy, with Four Ships of the Line and some Frigates to protect them, anchored in and about Rosier Bay, in Gibraltar. I kept under Sail with the Rest of the Squadron. At Dusk the Flora and Crescent parted Company with Thirteen Sail for Minorca. As soon as the Ships were secured, they began unloading the Victuallers. The Morning of the 14th, finding the Wind likely to continue Westerly, and being desirous of giving the Garrison all the Assistance in my Power during our Stay, by facilitating the unloading the Victuallers, and protecting them from the Enemy's Gun-Boats, I directed Sir John Ross (who hoisted his Flag on Board the Alexander) to anchor, with the other Two-decked Ships of his Division, in the Road.

The 19th I anchored with some of the Ships to the Eastward of Europa Point, in order to set up the Rigging, and get off some fresh Water. The next Morning, the 20th, the Wind sprung up to the Eastward, which being willing to avail myself of as soon as possible, Sir John Ross having unmoored the Ships in the Road, I at Nine made the Signal to weigh, notwithstanding which it was Five o'Clock in the Evening before I could make Sail, owing to the usual Delays on those Occasions.

Sir John Ross has been indefatigable in his Attention to all Points of this Duty; and the Captains, both of the Line of Battle Ships and Frigates, have greatly exerted themselves in their Attacks upon the Gun-Boats. The Minerva and Monsieur have had some Men badly wounded, and the Nonfuch's Mizen-Mast so much hurt that it was Rifted.

Yesterday Morning I made the Signal for the Foudroyant to stand towards Cadiz; the Wind would not permit her to fetch it, but Captain Jervis is certain nothing was off the Port.

The Kite Cutter carries these Dispatches. Captain Trollope will be able to inform their Lordships of such Things as have not come under my Notice, he having been constantly employed actively in the Bay Night and Day; for which Service I leave him to their Lordships Consideration.
