Camp before Alexandria, March 16, 1801.

SIR,
ALTHOUGH it was not originally my Intention to have commenced the Operations of the British Army in Egypt on the Side of Alexandria, yet Circumstances arose which induced me to change my Opinion. We were much longer delayed on the Coast of Asia Minor, than we had at first any Reason to apprehend; and we were ultimately obliged to sail from Marmarice in a very imperfect state of Preparation. I am fully sensible of the Exertions of His Majesty's Ambassador at the Ottoman Porte, as well as of the Quarter-Master-General, and the other Officers who were sent forward to provide for the Necessities of the Army. Our Delays originated from other Causes. For a considerable Time previous to our sailing the Weather was extremely boisterous, and the Winds contrary. The Moment that it became practicable to sail with so large a Fleet, Lord Keith put to Sea; we left Marmarice on the 22d of February, and came in Sight of Alexandria on the 1st of March.

On the 2d, the Fleet anchored in Aboukir Bay. Until the 7th the Sea ran high, and no Disembarkation could be effected; on that Day every Arrangement was completed, and on the 8th, the Troops forming the First Division, consisting of the Reserve under the Command of Major-General Moore, the Brigade of Guards, under the Honourable Major-General Ludlow, and Part of the First Brigade, under the Command of Major-General Coote, got into the Boats early in the Morning; they had, in general, from Five to Six Miles to row, and did not arrive at the Point of Landing till Ten o'Clock. The Front of Disembarkation was narrow, and a Hill, which commanded the Whole, seemed almost inaccessible. The Enemy were fully aware of our Intention, were in Force, and had every Advantage on their Side. The Troops, however, notwithstanding their being exposed to a very severe Cannonade, and under the Fire of Grape-Shot, made good their Landing, ascended the Hill with an Intrepidity scarcely to be paralleled, and forced the Enemy to retire, leaving behind him Seven Pieces of Artillery and a Number of Horses.

The Troops that ascended the Hill were the 23d Regiment and the four Flank Companies of the 40th, under the Command of Colonel Spencer, whose Coolness and good Conduct Major-General Moore has mentioned to me in the highest Terms of Approbation. It is impossible to pass over the good Order in which the 28th and the 42d Regiments landed, under the Command of Brigadier-General Oakes, who was attached to the Reserve under Major-General Moore; and the Troops in general lost not a Moment in remedying any little Disorder which became unavoidable in a Landing under such Circumstances. The Disembarkation of the Army continued on that and the following Day.

The Troops which landed on the 8th advanced three Miles the same Day; and on the 12th the whole Army moved forward, and came within Sight of the Enemy, who was formed on an advantageous Ridge, with his Right to the Canal of Alexandria, and his Left towards the Sea.

It was determined to attack them on the Morning of the 13th; and in consequence the Army marched in two Lines by the Left, with an Intention to turn their right Flank.

The Troops had not been long in Motion before the Enemy descended from the Heights on which they were formed, and attacked the leading Brigades of both Lines, which were commanded by Major-General Cradock and Major-General the Earl of Cavan.

The 90th Regiment formed the Advanced Guard of the front Line, and the 92d that of the second; both Battalions suffered considerably, and behaved in such a Manner as to merit the Praise both of Courage and Discipline. Major-General Cradock immediately formed his Brigade to meet the Attack made by the Enemy; and the Troops changed their Position with a Quickness and Precision which did them the greatest Honor. The Remainder of the Army followed so good an Example, and were immediately in a Situation not only to face, but to repel the Enemy. The Reserve, under the Command of Major-General Moore, which was on the Right, on the Change of the Position of the Army, moved on in Column, and covered the Right Flank. The Army continued to advance, pushing the Enemy with the greatest Vigour, and ultimately forcing them to put themselves under the Protection of the fortified Heights which form the principal Defence of Alexandria.

It was intended to have attacked them in this their last Position; for which Purpose the Reserve under the Command of Major-General Moore, which had remained in Column during the whole of the Day, was brought forward, and the Second Line, under the Command of Major-General Hutchinson, marched to the Left across a Part of the Lake Mariotis, with a View to attack the Enemy on both Flanks; but on reconnoitring their Position, and not being prepared to occupy it after it should be carried, Prudence required that the Troops who had behaved so bravely, and who were still willing to attempt any Thing, however arduous, should not be exposed to a certain Loss, when the Extent of the Advantage could not be ascertained. They were therefore withdrawn, and now occupy a Position with their Right to the Sea, and their Left to the Canal of Alexandria and Lake Mariotis, about a League from the Town of Alexandria.

I have the greatest Satisfaction in saying, that the Conduct of the British and Foreign Troops under my Command is deserving of the highest Praise; their Courage and their Discipline have been equally conspicuous.

To all the General Officers I am indebted for their Zeal and Intelligence.

From the Honorable Brigadier-General Hope, Adjutant-General, and Lieutenant-Colonel Anstruther, Quarter-Master-General, I have received every Testimony of Zeal, and the most able Assistance in the Operations of the Army; and to the other Officers of the General Staff, I feel Obligations.

On the 8th the Arrangements made by Lord Keith, were such as to enable us to land at once a Body of Six Thousand men.

The Honorable Captain Cochrane, and those other Captains and Officers of the Royal Navy who were entrusted with the Disembarkation, not only of the Troops, but of the Artillery, Ammunition, Provisions, and Stores of all Kinds, have exerted themselves in such a Manner as to claim the warmest Acknowledgments of the whole Army.

Sir Sidney Smith, and the other Captains and Officers of the Navy under his Command who landed with the Army, have been indefatigable in their Exertions in forwarding the Service on which they are employed.

The Enemy have left a small Garrison in Aboukir Castle; it has been necessary to bring up a few Pieces of heavy Artillery, and there is Reason to believe that it will speedily surrender.

Majors Mac Kerras and Fletcher, of the Royal Engineers, who went down in the Penelope Frigate to survey the Coast of Egypt, a short Time before we sailed from Marmarice, were unfortunately surprized in a small Boat in Aboukir Bay; the former was killed, and the latter taken Prisoner.

Our Communication with the Fleet is at present kept up by Means of the Lake of Aboukir. We have been fortunate enough to find Water sufficient for the Supply of the Army; and we begin to derive some Supplies from the Country.

I have the Honor to enclose herewith Returns of the Killed and Wounded in the Actions of the 8th and 13th Instant, together with a Return of the Artillery taken from the Enemy on those Days.

I have the Honor to be, &c.

RA. ABERCROMBY.

P. S. I have had no Means of ascertaining the Loss of the Enemy, but it must have been considerable.

Copy of a Letter from Admiral Lord Keith, K. B. Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Ships and Vessels in the Mediterranean, to Evan Neapean, Esq; dated on board the Foudroyant, in the Bay of Aboukir, 10th March 1801.

SIR,

MY Dispatches of the 22d ult. by the Speedwell, will have acquainted you, for the Information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that the Armament on that Day quitted the Harbour of Marmarice for this Place, which the whole Fleet reached on the 2d Instant, the Turkish Gun Boats and Kaicks excepted, all of which bore up, by Night, for Macri, Cyprus, and other Ports, during the Prevalence of strong Westerly Gales that we encountered on the Passage.

Too much of the Day of our Arrival here had elapsed, before all the Ships could get to Anchorage, to admit of the landing being effected before the Approach of Night; and an unfortunate Succession of strong Northerly Gales, attended by a heavy Swell, rendered it impossible to disembark before the 8th. The necessary Preparations were made on the preceding Evening. The Boats began to receive the Troops at Two o'Clock in the Morning, and at Three the Signal was made for their proceeding to rendezvous near the Mondovi, anchored about a Gun-Shot from the Shore, where it had been determined that they were to be assembled and properly arranged: But such was the Extent of the Anchorage occupied by so large a Fleet, and so great the Distance of many of them from any one given Point, that it was not till Nine the Signal could be made for the Boats to advance towards the Shore.

The whole Line immediately began to move with great Celerity towards the Beach, between the Castle of Aboukir and the Entrance of the Sed, under the Direction of the Honorable Captain Cochrane, of His Majesty's Ship the Ajax, assisted by Captains Stevenson, Scott, Larmour, Apthorpe, and Morrison, of the Europa, Stately, Diadem, Druid, and Thistle, and the respective Agents of Transports, the right Flank being protected by the Cruelle Cutter, and the Dangereuse, and Janissary Gun Vessels, and the Left, by the Entreprenante Cutter, Malta Schooner, and Negresse Gun Vessel, with two Launches of the Fleet on each, armed for the Purpose of supplying the Places of the Turkish Gun Vessels, of whose Service I had been deprived. Captain Sir Sidney Smith of the Tigre, with the Captains Ribouleau, Guion, Saville, Burn, and Hilary, of the Altea, Eurus, Experiment, Blonde, and Niger, appointed, with a Detachment of Seamen, to co-operate with the Army, had the Charge of the Launches, with the Field Artillery accompanying the Troops. The Tartarus and Fury were placed in proper Situations for throwing Shot and Shells with Advantage; and the Petterell, Cameleon, and Minorca, were moored as near as possible, with their Broadides to the Shore.

The Enemy had not failed to avail himself of the unavoidable Delays to which we had been exposed, for strengthening the naturally difficult Coast to which we were to approach. The whole Garrison of Alexandria, said to amount to near three Thousand Men, reinforced with many small Detachments that had been observed to advance from the Rosetta Branch, was appointed for its Defence. Field Pieces were placed on the most commanding Heights, and in the Intervals of the numerous Sand Hills which cover the Shore, all of which were lined with Musquetry; the Beach on either Wing being flanked with Cannon and Parties of Cavalry held in Readiness to advance.

The Fire of the Enemy was successively opened from their Mortars and Field Pieces, as the Boats got within their Reach; and as they approached to the Shore the excessive Discharge of Grape-Shot and of Musquetry from behind the Sand-Hills seemed to threaten them with Destruction, while the Castle of Aboukir on the Right Flank maintained a constant and harassing Discharge of large Shot and Shells; but the Ardour of our Officers and Men was not to be damped. No Moment of Hesitation intervened. The Beach was arrived at, a Footing obtained; the Troops advanced, and the Enemy forced to relinquish all the advantageous Positions which they had held.

The Boats returned without Delay for the Second Division; and before the Evening the whole Army, with few Exceptions, was landed, with such Articles of Provisions and Stores as required the most immediate Attention.

I refer to the General's Report for the Loss sustained by the Army in this dangerous and difficult Service. I enclose the Casualties of the Squadron and Transports, and feel much Satisfaction in conveying to their Lordships my full Testimony to the Merits of all the Officers and Men employed under my Orders on this arduous Occasion.

I have the Honor to be, &c.
