Copy of a Letter from Admiral Lord Keith, Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Ships and Vessels in the Channel Soundings, to John Wilson Croker, Esq; dated on board the Conquestador, in Cawsand-Bay, the 27th instant.

SIR,

IN my letter of the 16th instant I acquainted you, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, with the disposition which I had made for intercepting a French squadron, reported to be on its way from the West Indies to some port in the bay; and I have now the satisfaction to acquaint you that that arrangement has been attended with complete success, as their Lordships will observe by the enclosed copy of a letter which I have received from Rear-Admiral Sir Harry Neale, transmitting one from Captain Henry Hotham of His Majesty's ship Northumberland.

When the gallantry of the action with such a force, under numerous galling batteries, and the intricacy of the navigation amidst dangerous rocks, in the very entrance of the enemy's harbour, are taken into consideration, the performance of so important a service, while it reflects the highest honour upon the courage, skill, and extraordinary management of all concerned, adds fresh lustre to the naval annals of the country.

The selection of Captain Hotham for the station off L'Orient does great credit to the judgment of Rear-Admiral Sir Harry Neale, for no officer but one who possessed great local knowledge, could, under such difficult circumstances, have ventured to undertake the service that Captain Hotham has so bravely and so effectually performed.

I have the honour to be, &c.

(Signed)

KEITH.

J. W. Croker, Esq;

*Boyne, off Ushant,
May 25, 1812.*

MY LORD,

AGREEABLY to your Lordship's directions to send a ship of the line off L'Orient, to intercept two of the enemy's frigates and a brig that were supposed to be on their return to some port in the bay, I selected Captain Hotham, of His Majesty's ship Northumberland, for that service, as an officer whose local knowledge of the coast, ability, and zeal, well qualified him for the service he has so ably and gallantly performed.

I herewith enclose for your Lordship's information, Captain Hotham's letter to me, detailing the particulars of his having destroyed the enemy's two frigates and brig on the 22d instant, when literally in the mouth of the port of L'Orient, under a heavy fire from the numerous batteries upon that part of the coast, and during a warm contest with the frigates and brig, which were of the largest class.

In transmitting these particulars to your Lordship, I cannot resist adding my testimony to the ability and zeal with which Captain Hotham has, upon all occasions, distinguished himself in the discharge of his professional duties; but in the present instance, from the force of the enemy's ships, supported by the batteries upon the shore, and the judgment displayed in the able conducting of the ship, they are eminently conspicuous, and will, no doubt, meet the applause and consideration he has so highly merited. I must refer your Lordship to Captain Hotham's letter, as the strongest testimony I can offer of the good conduct and gallantry of all the officers, seamen, and marines upon this occasion, and of the assistance he received from Lieutenant Weeks of the Growler gun-brig, after the enemy's frigates and brig had grounded.

I have the honour to be, &c.

(Signed) H. NEALE, Rear-Admiral.

*The Right Honourable Admiral Lord
Keith, K. B. &c. &c. &c.*

Northumberland, off the Penmarks, Wind S. S. W. Light Breezes, and fine Weather, May 24, 1812.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to inform you the object of the orders I received from you on the 19th instant, to proceed off L'Orient for the purpose of intercepting two French frigates and a brig lately seen at sea, has been accomplished, by their total destruction, at the entrance of that port, by His Majesty's ship under my command, (the Growler gun-brig being in company), under the circumstances I beg leave to relate to you.

On Friday the 22d instant, at a quarter after ten A. M. the N. W. point of the Isle Groa, bearing from the Northumberland north by compass, ten miles distant, and the wind very light from W. by N. they were discovered in the N. W. crowding all possible sail before it for L'Orient. My first endeavour was to cut them off to windward of the island, and a signal was made to the Growler (seven miles off in the S. W.) to chase, but finding I could not effect it, the Northumberland was pushed by every exertion round the S. E. end of Groa, and, by hauling to the wind as close as I could to leeward of it, I had the satisfaction of fetching to windward of the harbour's mouth, before the enemy's ships reached it. Their commander seeing himself thus cut off, made a signal to his consorts and hauled to the wind on the larboard tack to windward of Point Talcet, and they appeared to speak each other. I continued beating to windward between Groa and the Continent to close with them, exposed to the batteries on both sides, when I stood within their reach, which was unavoidable. The wind had by this time freshened considerably, and was about W. N. W.: at forty-nine minutes after two P. M. the enemy (in force as above described) bore up in close line ahead, and under every sail that could be set, favoured by the fresh wind, made a bold and determined attempt to run between me and the shore, under cover of the numerous batteries with which it is lined in that part. I placed the Northumberland to meet them as close as I could to the Pointe de Pierre Laye, with her head to the shore, and the main-topsail shivering, and made dispositions for laying one of them alongside; but they hauled so very close round the point, following the direction of the coast to the eastward of it, that, in my ignorance of the depth of water so near the shore, I did not think it practicable, consistent with the safety of His Majesty's ship (drawing near twenty-five feet) to prosecute that plan. I therefore bore up and steered parallel to them at the distance of about two cables' length, and opened the broadside on them, which was returned by a very animated and well directed fire of round, grape, and other descriptions of shot, supported by three batteries, for the space of twenty-one minutes, and was very destructive to our sails and rigging. My object during that time was to prevent their hauling outside the dry rock named Le Graul, but in steering sufficiently close to it to leave them no room to pass between me and it, and at the same time to avoid running on it myself, the most difficulty and anxiety was produced by the cloud of smoke which drifted ahead of the ship and totally obscured it. However, by the care and attention of Mr. Hugh Stewart, the Master, the ship was carried within the distance of her own length on the south west side, in quarter less seven fathoms, and the enemy were in consequence obliged, as their only alternative, to attempt passing within it, where there was not water enough, and they all grounded, under every sail, on the rocks between it and the shore.

The sails and rigging of the Northumberland were so much damaged, that I was obliged to leave the enemy to the effects of the falling tide, it being only one quarter ebb, while I repaired the rigging and shifted the foretop-sail, which was rendered entirely useless; working to windward during that time under what sail I could set, to prevent falling to leeward; in which interval, at five o'clock, the Growler joined, and fired on the enemy occasionally. At twenty-eight minutes after five, I anchored the Northumberland in six and an half fathom's water, Point de Pierre Laye bearing N. W. half N., the citadel of Port Louis E. three quarters N., and the rock named Le Graul N. half E., two cables length distant, with her broadside bearing on the enemy's two frigates and brig, at point blank range, all of them having fallen over on their sides next the shore as the tide left them, and exposed their copper to us, and the main-masts of one frigate and the brig were gone; and from thirty-four minutes after five till forty-nine minutes past six (which was near the time of low water), a deliberate and careful fire was kept up on them, at which time, believing I had fully effected the object of my endeavours, the crews having quitted their vessels, all their bottoms being pierced by very many of our shot, so low down as to ensure their filling on the rising tide, and the leading frigate being completely in flames, communicated to the hull from a fire which broke out in her foretop, I got under sail. Three batteries fired at the ship during the whole time she was at anchor, and although the position was so far well chosen that she was out of the range of two of them, the other (to which the enemy's vessels were nearest) reached her, and did as much execution in the hull as all the fire she had been exposed to before.

I directed the Commander of the Growler to stand in and fire, to prevent the enemy from returning to their vessels after I had ceased.

At five minutes before eight, the frigate on fire blew up with an awful explosion, leaving no remains of her visible. At the close of day I anchored for the night, out of reach of the batteries on both sides, Point Talcet bearing N. N. W. half W., S. E. point of Groa S. S. W. half W., the enemy's vessels N. by E. At ten, the other frigate appeared to be on fire also (some smoke having been seen on board her from the time the firing ceased), and at half past eleven, the flames burst forth from her ports and every part with unextinguishable fury, which unlooked-for event leaving me nothing more to attempt in the morning, the brig being quite on her beam ends, and very much damaged by our shot in every part of her bottom, even very near her keel, I weighed anchor at midnight, with a very light air from the northward, with the Growler in company, profiting by the brightness of the moon to get to sea; but it was so near calm that I made very little progress, and therefore saw the frigate burning from head to stern all night, and explode at thirty-five minutes after two in the morning of yesterday, leaving a portion of her after-part still burning till it was entirely consumed; and in the course of the day, I had the satisfaction to see, from off the N. W. point of Groa, a third fire and explosion in the same spot, which could have been no other than the brig.

During the time of firing on the enemy's vessels, a seaman, who states himself to be a native of Portugal, captured in the ship Harmony, of Lisbon, by the frigates, on the 22d February, swam from one of them to the Northumberland, by whom

I am informed their names were L'Arianne and L'Andromache, of forty-four guns and four hundred and fifty men each, and the Mameluke brig, of eighteen guns and one hundred and fifty men; that they sailed from the Loire in the month of January, had been cruising in various parts of the Atlantic, and had destroyed thirty-six vessels of different nations (Americans, Spaniards, Portuguese, and English), taking the most valuable parts of their cargoes on board the frigates (and they appeared very deep for ships so long at sea), and one vessel they sent as a cartel to England, with about two hundred prisoners.

I am happy to have now the gratifying duty to discharge of bearing testimony to the creditable conduct of every officer and man I had the honour to command on the occasion above related, whose zealous exertions in supporting the honour of His Majesty's naval power, and in humbling that of the enemy, were conspicuously displayed, without regard to the peculiar intricacy of the situation, or the risks and difficulties which appeared to interpose; and I hope the circumstances of his station may permit me to make particular report of the services of the Senior Lieutenant John Banks, without prejudice to, or neglect of, the other meritorious and deserving officers, who were all equally inspired with intrepidity, and possessed with confidence and coolness which rendered that qualification the more valuable. But as the safety of His Majesty's ship, and the success of the operations which resulted in a navigation so narrow and difficult, with almost every description of danger to avoid, is attributable, next to Providence, to the ability with which she was steered and conducted under the direction of the Master and Pilot, I should be wanting in my duty if I were to omit to represent to you that nothing could exceed the firmness, good judgment, and skill of those officers, whose experience on the coast was extremely beneficial to the service, and Mr. Stewart's counsels were of the greatest assistance to me.

Lieutenant J. Weeks, commanding the Growler gun-brig, made every effort that vessel was capable of to render assistance, and shewed a perfect readiness to execute the few directions I had occasion to give him.

I should rejoice, Sir, if I were able to close this narrative without adding a report of loss and injury sustained; but neither you, nor any other authority to whom you may communicate it, will expect that a ship should have been so long at different periods under the fire of the enemy's various batteries and vessels, without some loss; and I am thankful it is not greater than is expressed in the report I have the honour to enclose, with a statement of the damages the ship has sustained, which is little in the hull, but more in the masts, yards, and rigging; and I am glad to say, the officer wounded (namely, Lieutenant William Fletcher) will soon be restored.

A line of battle ship, with all her bent and top-gallant-yards across, lay in the harbour of L'Orient, spectator of the operations of the day at the entrance of it; but the wind did not serve till night for her coming to the support of her friends: every assistance, however, was afforded them of boats, men, &c. from the port, directed, as I apprehend, by the Admiral in person.

I have the Honour to be, &c.

ADMIRAL LORD KEITH has transmitted to John Wilson Croker, Esq; a letter from Captain Somerville, of His Majesty's ship Rota, to Rear-Admiral Sir Harry Neale, giving an account of the capture, on the 22d instant, by the boats of that ship, under the directions of Lieutenant Turner, of L'Espadon French privateer, of St. Maloes, pierced for ten guns, three mounted, and manned with forty-five men.

The Rota had one man killed and five wounded; the privateer, seven killed, and four wounded.

THE following Addresses have been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Magistrates and Members of the Body Corporate, with other Inhabitants of the town of Wokingham, in the county of Berks., impressed with horror and indignation at the late atrocious murder of one of your Royal Highness's principal councillor's, in the person of the Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, at the House of Parliament, beg leave to express our heartfelt sorrow and regret that the page of England's history should be stained with so foul a deed.

We also beg leave to avail ourselves of this opportunity to assure your Royal Highness of our firm attachment to the laws and constitution of our country, and that we are determined on all occasions to use our utmost exertions, both collectively and individually, to support and protect them as our dearest birthright.

Signed by order,

John Horne, Town Clerk.

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

The Address of the Ministers of the Scotch Churches in Sunderland and Monkwearmouth.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the undersigned Ministers of the Scotch Churches in Sunderland and Monkwearmouth, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness with our humble tribute of condolence on the loss of a faithful servant and an able statesman; whose premature death, we and the people under our pastoral care, most sincerely deplore as a general loss to the whole British empire.

While however we deeply lament the fate of the Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, we consider it no small consolation to your Royal Highness, and to the kingdom at large, that the perpetrator of the horrid crime, is a solitary individual, unconnected with any faction or party: and at so critical a period when designing men, in different parts of the country are attempting, under the present temporary pressure, to excite disaffection, particularly about religious liberty; we deem it our bounden duty, as His Majesty's loyal and faithful subjects, to express our warm attachment to your Royal Highness's person and government, our veneration for our excellent constitution, and our determined resolution to exert every effort of our official power and influence in its support. We at the same time do assure your Royal Highness, that both we and our congregations are perfectly satisfied with that measure of religious liberty which we enjoy; and which we have not the least fear, or doubt, your Royal Highness will secure and transmit unimpaired to generations yet unborn. This will perfectly accord with our sentiments and wishes, when in our public ministrations we daily offer up our fervent prayers to Heaven for your Royal Highness's safety and happiness, and the prosperity of the British empire.

Alex. Macfarlane, Minister of the Scotch Church, Monkwearmouth.

William Gardner, Minister of the Scotch Church, Sunderland.

[Transmitted by R. Wharton, Esq; and presented by Mr. Secretary Ryder.]

To His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble and dutiful Address and Condolence of the Clergy, Magistrates, Gentry, and Inhabitants of the Towns of Sunderland, Bishopwearmouth, Monkwearmouth, and the Vicinity.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Clergy, Magistrates, Gentry, and Inhabitants of the towns of Sunderland, Bishopwearmouth, Monkwearmouth, and the vicinity, are urged by every consideration of feeling and of duty, humbly to offer to your Royal Highness, our condolence upon the atrocious deed which has bereaved your Royal Highness of a faithful servant, and the country of a distinguished support and ornament; of a Minister whose integrity and talents excited the highest confidence, and commanded universal esteem.

Deploing, in conjunction with the whole nation, an event which has deprived the united kingdom of the important services of the Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, at a period so critical to its welfare, and to the interests of the world, we are anxious to express our deep concern and utter abhorrence of the crime by which it has been effected.

While we experience consolation in the reflection, that this detestable assassination was the act of a solitary and unconnected individual, reprobated by every description of men in the kingdom, we are nevertheless desirous of availing ourselves of this occasion to express our indignation at the attempts, which have been recently made, in some parts of the empire, to misrepresent the measures of government, to aggravate the circumstances of temporary pressure, and to excite discontent, by misleading the minds of His Majesty's subjects.

Impressed with sentiments of loyalty and sincere attachment to our much revered Sovereign, and to your Royal Highness's person, and anxious to preserve unimpaired our invaluable constitution, we pledge ourselves to resist every measure of hostility, which may be exerted against it, and to stand forward on all just occasions, in defence of the laws, the government, and the religion of the country.

[Transmitted by R. Wharton, Esq; and presented by Mr. Secretary Ryder.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

WE, the Mayor, Corporation, Clergy, and other Inhabitants of the town and parish of Tiverton, in the county of Devon, impressed with feelings of deep sorrow at the late horrid assassination of the Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, presume to approach your Royal Highness, to testify our unanimous abhorrence of an act, which, in its nature and circumstances, outrages every crime as yet known to civilized society.

Murder, under any circumstances, will be ever revolting to humanity, but, the murder of a Prime Minister, amidst his high official duties, and within the walls of Parliament, assumes a character too desperate, and too atrocious, to belong to any contemplated class of human crimes, and beyond the measure of adequate human punishment.

The abhorrence which we feel of this unexampled crime is not greater than the regret and sorrow with which we mourn the object of it. In his private character, he was a bright example of every social, domestic, and religious duty; as a public character, he displayed an unequalled degree of fidelity, integrity, and purity of motive. With talents of no ordinary kind, he discharged the important trust with which your Royal Highness was pleased to invest him, if not with the approbation, at least with the respect of all.

We desire to express to your Royal Highness our attachment to his Majesty's government and to your royal house, and to assure you, that in defence of the laws and constitution, we shall be ready to devote our property and our persons whenever the honour or safety of the country shall require such a sacrifice.

[Presented by Mr. Secretary Ryder.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

The humble Address of the Lieutenancy, Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, Justices of the Peace, and Community at large, of the County of Nairn, assembled in the Town Hall, at Nairn, on the 30th day of April 1812.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lieutenancy, Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, Justices of the Peace, and Community at large, of the county of Nairn, assembled in the Town Hall, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, and to offer our condolence on the continued melancholy situation of our afflicted Monarch; and while we bewail his sufferings and have to lament the loss of his paternal care, it is a matter of the greatest consolation, that we have the happiness of seeing in the son so genuine a representative of the august person whose functions he is appointed to discharge.

We beg leave humbly to express to your Royal Highness, how much we have admired the propriety of your having left the most delicate discussions, to the decision of an unbiassed Parliament; evincing that your Royal Highness has no object to obtain, but such as are common to all His Majesty's subjects.

We most humbly beg leave to express our entire approbation of those great state measures made necessary by the arbitrary and denationalizing decrees of the enemy respecting neutral commerce: and we further beg leave, in approaching your Royal Highness, to express the sincere pleasure we feel in offering our congratulations to the empire at large, that your Royal Highness has in no instance deviated from that bright example, exhibited by your Royal Highness's august parent.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment,

Whitehall, May 29, 1812.

THE following Addresses of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland having been transmitted by Francis Lord Napier, His Majesty's Commissioner, to the Right Honourable Richard Ryder, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, have been by him presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously.

May it please your Royal Highness,

THE gracious letter with which your Royal Highness, in name and on behalf of His Majesty, has been pleased to honour this meeting of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, was received with sentiments of gratitude and profound respect.

The approbation which His Majesty has been pleased to bestow on past Assemblies, during a long course of years, and the confidence which he has reposed in our loyalty and attachment to his person and government, are powerful motives to induce us to maintain those principles, and to continue in the diligent discharge of those duties, which may justify the good opinion which your Royal Highness, in the name and on behalf of His Majesty, has been pleased to express, and prove that the royal confidence has not been misplaced; and it is a subject of heartfelt satisfaction that the same disposition and conduct which, as good members of society and true Christians, we are bound to cherish and maintain, will most certainly procure for us the royal favour; and that the faithful discharge of our duties is regarded as the best return we can make to the affection of a Sovereign who has had nothing so much at heart during his long reign, as to promote the happiness of his subjects.

We rely with entire confidence on that assurance which your Royal Highness, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, has been pleased to give of your determination to maintain the Church of Scotland in the full enjoyment of all its just rights and privileges. This assurance we consider as a proof of your Royal Highness's regard for the rights of His Majesty's subjects; and it lays us under strong obligations to cherish respect and loyalty to His Majesty's person and government under which we enjoy protection.

The re-appointment of the Right Honourable Francis Lord Napier to represent His Majesty in this Assembly, we consider as a new mark of the royal favour. The honour of his ancient family, his public and private virtues, his known attachment to the Church of Scotland, and the long experience we have had of his fidelity and talents, render this appointment most acceptable to us all.

We have listened with respectful deference to the paternal admonition of your Royal Highness, and we are deeply impressed with the urgent necessity of redoubling our efforts to check that spirit of innovation and licentiousness by which the present times are so unhappily characterised, and which threaten to fill the kingdom with violence and confusion. We are fully persuaded that we shall effect the most important purposes of our meeting if we can advance the interests of religion and virtue, and secure the stability of that national church and of that excellent constitution under which we have for so long a period enjoyed such invaluable blessings, and we desire to assure your Royal Highness that no exertion shall be wanting on our part to promote the loyalty, and preserve the peaceable demeanour which, we are happy to say, prevail among those entrusted to our national care.

We have received with gratitude His Majesty's donation of two thousand pounds for the propagation of Christian knowledge in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland, and we will endeavour so to distribute this sacred fund of charity as may best promote the pious and benevolent intentions of the Royal Donor.

That Almighty God the Father of our Lord and Saviour may protect and bless our good and gracious Sovereign, Her Majesty the Queen, your Royal Highness the Prince Regent, and all the members of the Royal Family, that he would direct and prosper all the measures of His Majesty's government for the public good; that after a long and happy reign over a free and loyal people, he may at last obtain a glorious and unfading crown in Heaven, and that the throne of the British dominions may be occupied for ages to come by princes of the same illustrious house, who may imitate his piety and virtue, are the sincere and fervent prayers of, may it please your Royal Highness, His Majesty's most faithful, most obedient, and most loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders of this National Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and at our appointment, by

Wm. M. Morine, Moderator.
Edinburgh, May 23, 1812.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders of the Church of Scotland, met in the General Assembly, beg leave to approach the throne with expressions of the most sincere affection and respect for your Royal Highness.

We sincerely sympathise with your Royal Highness on account of the continued and severe malady with which it has pleased God to visit your royal father, our most gracious Sovereign. We were justly attached to his person, revered his virtues, and were happy under his government—the more afflicting now is our grief for the severity of his indisposition, and the loss which we sustain. On this occasion, as in other calamities, this is our consolation, that the Great Ruler of the World arranges and conducts all events with infinite wisdom, rectitude, and goodness.

It has been no small alleviation of this great calamity, that your Royal Highness came forward at the desire of the nation, to preside in the empire and administer its affairs. The promptitude and energy, the prudence and the mildness with which you have hitherto acted, the warm interest which you have taken in the welfare of the state, and the uniform regard which you have shewn, to its admirable constitution and laws, all assure us of the continued maintenance of our invaluable rights and privileges, civil and sacred. We deeply lament the calamities of war, and that inordinate and insatiable ambition of the enemy which precludes the near prospect of a safe and honourable peace. Yet, amidst all the dangers which have threatened us, and the hardships under which we have laboured, we will remember with gratitude that Providence has continued to protect and prosper us. Our resources for maintaining the arduous and protracted conflict have never failed; the arms of our country by sea and land have been so successful, as to deprive the enemy of all his colonies and foreign commerce; and the recent brilliant achievements in the Peninsula have thrown an additional lustre on the British name. Neighbouring nations have already caught a portion of our spirit; and we trust that this may diffuse itself over other kingdoms now unhappily subjected to the enemy; they may yet rally around us, assert their own independence, and aid us in humbling the common foe, and in securing for ourselves and for the world the invaluable blessings of peace.

We deplore those acts of insubordination and licentiousness, of riot and outrage, which have lately disgraced some parts of the United Kingdom; and we particularly lament the fall by assassination of a Statesman, distinguished no less for his virtues than for his talents. We mourn the loss which his family and his country sustain by his untimely death; and deeply regret that a crime so atrocious could have been perpetrated by any individual in this favoured and enlightened country. Aggravated, however, as it is, we have some consolation in thinking, that the criminal was instigated not by any connection with other men, but by personal malice only.

We beg leave to assure your Royal Highness, that no spirit of insubordination has appeared in this part of the empire, and that as far as in us lies, we will exert ourselves in maintaining loyalty and subjection to the laws. For this purpose we will employ all our personal influence, as well as the faithful and assiduous discharge of our ministerial duties; we will inculcate on our people, old and young, the doctrines of our holy religion, and endeavour, with the aid of Divine Grace, to fix deeply in their hearts those principles of morality derived from the Gospel, which are powerful to regulate the conduct of men, to bring them under due subjection, and to preserve order and peace.

That the God of all power and grace may bless your Royal Highness, and establish the dominion of His Majesty, under your direction, in the affection and loyalty of his subjects; that princes of your illustrious house, to the latest posterity, may sway the British sceptre; and that after a long and happy life on earth, you may obtain at last eternal salvation and happiness through Jesus Christ our Lord; these are the fervent prayers of, may it please your Royal Highness, His Majesty's most faithful, most obedient, and most loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders of this National Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

CONTRACTS FOR COALS AND CANDLES.

Commissary in Chief's Office, London,
May 18, 1812.

WANTED for the barracks in the under-mentioned counties in South Britain, for the barracks in North Britain, and in the islands of Guernsey, Jersey, and Alderney, such quantities of as may from time to time be required by the respective Barrack-Masters for the time being.

The deliveries to commence as soon after the 25th of June next as the respective Barrack-Masters shall require, and to continue until the 24th of June following.

Proposals for supplying coals, made separately for each county in South Britain, the whole of the barracks in North Britain, and likewise for those in the three islands of Guernsey, Jersey, and Alderney, sealed up and marked "Tender for Coals," will be received at this Office until twelve o'clock on Wednesday the 3d of June; the parties tendering observing, that in those counties where both sea and inland coals are used, the proposal must particularly express the price of each description.

Proposals for supplying candles, sealed up and marked "Tender for Candles," will be received until twelve o'clock on Friday the 5th of June; but no proposal, either for coals or candles, will be noticed, unless made on or annexed to a printed particular, and the prices inserted in words at length; nor unless a letter be subjoined to such proposal from two persons of known property, engaging to become bound with the party tendering, in the sum expressed in the particulars, for the due performance of the contract.

If tenders are sent by post, the postage must be paid.

Particulars of the contracts may be had on application at this Office, between the hours of eleven and five; to Deputy Commissary-General Lindesay, Edinburgh; Deputy Commissary-General Lutjens, Guernsey; and Assistant-Commissary-General Laumont, Jersey.
