Admiralty-Office, April 2, 1814.

Extract of a Letter from Captain Hayes, of His Majesty's Ship Majestic, addressed to Admiral Sir John Borlase Warren, and a Duplicate transmitted to John Wilson Croker, Esq.

Majestic, at Sea, February 5, 1814.

I HAVE the honour to acquaint you, that in my way from St. Michael's to Madeira, in the execution of your orders, at daylight in the morning of the 3d instant, in latitude 37, and longitude 20, being then in chase of a ship in the N. E. supposed to be one of the enemy's cruisers, three ships and a brig were discovered about three leagues off in the S. S. E. of very suspicious appearance, and not answering the private signal, I gave over the pursuit of the ship to the northward and eastward, hoisted my colours, and proceeded to reconnoitre the southern squadron, when two of the ships immediately gave chase to me; on closing within four miles, I discovered them to be two forty-four gun frigates, a ship mounting twenty guns, and a brig, which I could not perceive to be armed. I determined on forcing them to shew their colours (which they appeared to wish to avoid), and for that purpose stood directly for the headmost frigate, when she shortened sail, and brought to, for the other to close. I now made all sail, in the hope of being able to get along side of her before it could be effected, but in this I was foiled, by her wearing, making sail, and joining the other, and taking a station a-head and a-stern, with the twenty gun ship and brig on their weather bow; they stood to the S. S. E. with larboard studding sails, and all the sail that could be carried; the sternmost hoisting French colours, at a quarter of an hour past two o'clock, she opened a fire from the aftermost guns upon us; at three o'clock, being in a good position (going ten knots an hour), I commenced firing with considerable effect, the shot going either through, or just over the starboard quarter to the fore-castle, over the larboard bow; when at forty-nine minutes past four, she struck her colours to His Majesty's ship Majestic, under my command. The wind increasing, the prize in a state of great confusion, and night fast approaching, obliged me to stay by her; and to suffer the other frigate, with the ship and brig, to escape; the sea got up very fast, so that only one hundred of the prisoners could be exchanged, and even in effecting that, one boat was lost, and two prisoners drowned: this I hope, Sir, will plead my apology for not bringing you the whole of them. The captured ship is the Terpsichore, of forty-four guns, eighteen and twenty-four pounders, and three hundred and twenty men, Breton Francois de Sire, Capitaine de Frigate; the other was the Atalante, sister ship, exactly of the same force; they sailed from the Scheldt on the 20th October, and went to L'Orient, from whence they sailed again on the 8th January, in company with La Yace, a similar ship, which parted from them in latitude 45. and longitude 16. 40. The enemy had only three men killed, six wounded, and two drowned; the Majestic none.

The officers and men I have the honour to command conducted themselves on this occasion as I expected they would do.

Copy of a Letter from Admiral Sir Richard Bickerton, Bart. to John Wilson Croker, Esq. dated at Portsmouth, the 31st March 1814.

SIR,

I FEEL peculiar satisfaction in transmitting, to be laid before the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, a letter I have received from Captain Sir Michael Seymour, of the Hannibal, enclosing one addressed to him by Captain Palmer, of His Majesty's ship the Hebrus, detailing the capture of the French frigate L'Etoile, on the morning of the 27th instant, after an arduous chase of one hundred and twenty miles, and a well fought action of two hours and a quarter, in eight fathoms water, under Cape La Hague.

I entirely concur with Sir Michael Seymour in the opinion he has expressed, and very heartily congratulate their Lordships on an event which will stand amongst the most brilliant of the frigate actions in the records of our country, and does the highest honour to Captain Palmer, the officers and ship's company of the Hebrus.

I am, Sir, &c.

R. BICKERTON.

His Majesty's Ship Hannibal, Spithead, March 31, 1814.

SIR,

ENCLOSED I transmit, with the utmost gratification, the letter of the Captain of the Hebrus, giving a full and clear detail of the capture of L'Etoile French frigate, consort of La Sultane; and I am quite at a loss how to express, in adequate terms, my admiration of Captain Palmer's skill and decision on so interesting an occasion, and his new ship's company, his officers and his own able and intrepid conduct.

I have the honour to be, &c.

MICHAEL SEYMOUR.

Sir Richard Bickerton, Bart. Admiral. of the Blue, &c. &c. &c. Commander in Chief at Portsmouth.

His Majesty's Ship Hebrus, Plymouth.
SIR, March 29, 1814.

WHEN the Hannibal and His Majesty's ship under my command separated on the morning of the 26th, in chase of the two French frigates we had fallen in with, we continued in pursuit of the one you were pleased to detach us after, the whole day, with all our canvas spread. About midnight he reached the Race of Alderney, and the wind scanting, we began to gain upon him fast; by the time he had ran the length of Point Jobourg, leading into the Bay of La Hogue, he was obliged to attempt rounding it almost within the wash of the breakers; and here, after an anxious chase of fifteen hours, and running him upwards of one hundred and twenty miles, we were fortunate enough, between one and two in the morning, to bring him to battle, we crossed his stern, our jib-boom passing over his topsail, and shot in betwixt him and the shore, in eight fathoms water, and it falling nearly calm about this time, the ships continued nearly in the same spot until the conclusion of the action. At its commencement we suffered considerably in our rigging; the enemy firing high, he shot away our foretopmast and foreyard, crippled our mainmast and bowsprit, and cut away almost every shroud, stay, and brace we had. Our fire from the first, and throughout, was directed at our opponent's hull, and the ships being as close together as they could be without touching, he suffered most severely, every shot which struck passing through him. About four o'clock his mizenmast fell by the board, and his fire ceased, when, after an obstinate contest of two hours and a quarter, he hailed us, to say that he had struck his colours. The moment we could get possession, it became necessary to put the heads of both ships off shore, as well from the apprehension of grounding, as to get them clear from a battery which had been firing at both of us during the whole action, those on shore not being able from the darkness to distinguish one from the other; fortunately the tide set us round the point, and we anchored soon afterwards in Vauville Bay, in order to secure our masts as well as we were able.

The prize proves to be L'Etoile French frigate, mounting forty-four guns, twenty-eight eighteen-pounders on the main deck, and the remainder carronades, with a complement of three hundred and twenty men; she was commanded by Monsieur Henry Pierre Philibert, Capitaine de Frigate, who was returning, together with La Sultane (the other frigate), from a four months' cruise to the westward. L'Etoile is a very fine frigate, quite new, and sails well; she lost in the action forty killed, and had upwards of seventy wounded; her masts which remained are shot through, and her hull extremely shattered, having four feet water in her hold at the time she surrendered. We are also a good deal cut up, several of our guns dismounted, and I have to regret the loss of some brave men, thirteen killed and twenty-five wounded, some of them, I fear, dangerously. Amongst the former was a most promising young gentleman, Mr. P. A. Crawley, Midshipman, who fell unhappily early in the action.

I cannot, Sir, sufficiently express to you how much I have to admire in the conduct of every one whom I had the pleasure to command upon this occasion. I beg most earnestly to recommend Mr. R. M. Jackson, the Senior Lieutenant; as also to give my best testimony to the exertions of the Junior Lieutenants, Messrs. Addis and Cocks, together with Lieutenants Griffith and M'Laughlin, of the marines. To Mr. M'Gowan, the Master, I am much indebted for the skill and care with which he conducted the steerage of the ship during a period of much difficulty and peril. Mr. Maddox, the Purser, very handsomely volunteered his attendance on deck, where he rendered good service.

I cannot close this letter without observing, that I derived the greatest assistance from the professional ability of Captain William Sargent, of the Navy, who was serving on board with me as volunteer.

Herewith, Sir, you have lists of the killed and wounded; and I notice with great pleasure the care and attention of Mr. Boyter, Surgeon, not only towards our own men, but to those of the enemy also.

I have the honour to be, &c.

Copy of a Letter from Captain Rowley, of His Majesty's Ship Eagle, addressed to Vice Admiral Sir Edward Pellew, Bart. and transmitted by the latter to John Wilson Croker, Esq.

SIR, The Eagle, at Malta, Feb. 6, 1814.

IMAGINING it will be satisfactory to you, I take the liberty of mentioning, that on the night of the 3d instant, I found His Majesty's ships Apollo and Havannah at anchor off Brindisi, and a French frigate (the Uranie) on fire inside of the port.

Captain Taylor acquainted me, that the Uranie had escaped from Ancona on the 16th of January, and had been turned into Brindisi by the Cerberus; and that on his arrival there he sent in a message to know in what situation he was to consider the port of Brindisi, as he had understood the Neapolitan Government had joined the Allies and declared war against France; he therefore could not comprehend their giving succour to an enemy's frigate.

After much conversation, it appears that on the Apollo making a shew as if intending to go into the port of Brindisi, the Frenchman landed his powder and set fire to the frigate; as it blew fresh and the tide was running strong, Captain Taylor had not time to write the particulars by me.

I have, &c.

C. ROWLEY, Captain.

REAR-ADMIRAL Griffith has transmitted to John Wilson Croker, Esq. a letter from Captain Wales, of His Majesty's sloop Epervier, dated the 23d February last, giving an account of his having captured the Alired, American brig privateer, mounting fourteen long six pounders, and two eighteen pounders carronades, with a complement of one hundred and ten men, returning to Salem, after a twelve weeks cruize, in which period she had only made three small captures.

And also a letter from Captain Robinson, of His Majesty's sloop Prometheus, dated the 8th March, reporting the capture of the American privateer schooner Lizard, of two long guns and thirty-four men, out of Salem twelve days without taking any prize.

Copy of a Letter from Vice-Admiral Sir Edward Pellew, Bart. to John Wilson Croker, Esq. dated on board His Majesty's Ship Caledonia, off Minorca, February 24, 1814.

SIR,

I PRESUME Rear-Admiral Fremantle has already conveyed to their Lordships the statements, herewith transmitted, regarding the surrender of Cattaro and Zara*.

I have only to express my great satisfaction at the manner in which these services have been performed. The merits of those employed will not fail to receive their Lordships approbation.

I have the honour to be, &c.

EDWARD PELLEW.

J. W. Croker, Esq. &c. &c. &c.

SIR, Milford, Trieste, January 17, 1814.

HEREWITH I have the honour to transmit a letter from Captain Hoste, of His Majesty's ship Bacchante, with the terms of capitulation for the surrender of the fort of Cattaro.

The exertions of Captains Hoste and Harper, and the officers and men employed under them, need no comment on my part, and I am aware will be duly appreciated by you.

I have the honour to be, &c.

(Signed)

THOS. F. FREMANTLE.

Sir E. Pellew, Bart.

His Majesty's Ship Bacchante, before Cattaro, January 5, 1814.

SIR,

I HAVE much satisfaction in acquainting you, that, after ten days cannonade, the fortress of Cattaro surrendered by capitulation this morning to His Majesty's ships named in the margin†. The terms I granted to the garrison are, to lay down their arms on the Marine, to be transported to some port in Italy, to be considered prisoners of war, and not to serve against England or her Allies till regularly exchanged.

It is unnecessary I should enter further into detail, than to say, that by the exertions of the officers and crews of both ships, our batteries were enabled to open from four different points on the castle and works at day light on Christmas morning; that on the 1st January, two additional batteries of eighteen and thirty-two pounders, were opened and played against the castle, and that on the 3d I had arranged every thing with the Chief of the Montenegrins, for a general assault, when the Commandant, General Gauthier, sent out, expressing his wish to capitulate.

* An account of the surrender of Zara has already been inserted in the Gazette.

† Bacchante and Saracen.

This morning the capitulation was signed, a copy of which I enclose, with the state of the garrison.*

Our loss, I am happy to say, has been trifling, one seaman killed, and Lieutenant Haig, of the royal marines, slightly wounded.

The mouths of the Cattaro are now freed of the enemy, Sir; and in bringing this business to a successful issue, the officers and men have exerted themselves to the utmost.

We have received no assistance but from a few Montenegrins: we have had to trust to our own resources alone, and we have found them in the zeal and perseverance which has actuated all parties. From the exertions of Captain Harper, of the Saracen, and Lieutenant Milbourne, of the Bacchante, two eighteen pounders and two mortars were got up the range of mountains before Cattaro, to the astonishment of friends and foes; and what was deemed impracticable by the French General, was completed in ten days. The zeal and activity of Captain Harper are well known to you, Sir, and I assure you, in no instance have they been more conspicuous than on the present occasion—he is a most invaluable officer. It is my duty to mention the meritorious conduct of Lieutenants Milbourne, and Rees (acting), of the Bacchante, Lieutenant Hancock, of the Saracen, Mr. Vale, Master of ditto, Lieutenant Haig, royal marines of Bacchante, Mr. Charles Bruce, Midshipman of Bacchante; and the whole of the officers and men of both ships have tried to excel each other on this occasion.

The torrents of rain, and the fatigues and privations attending an attack of a fortress like Cattaro, at this season of the year, have been borne with a cheerfulness that entitled them to every praise. I cannot conclude this without acknowledging in the warmest terms the active assistance I have received from Captain Angelo, of Lieutenant-General Campbell's staff, who was waiting in Bacchante for a passage to join the Lieutenant-General at Zante; his zeal and ability have supplied many deficiencies on our part, and have considerably tended to the speedy reduction of the place.

I have, &c.

W. HOSTE, Captain.

Rear-Admiral Fremantle, &c. &c. &c.
