Admiralty-Office, April 19, 1814.

ADAMIRAL Lord Keith, has transmitted to John Wilson Croker, Esq. dispatches addressed to his Lordship by Rear Admiral Penrose, dated in the Gironde from the 6th to the 9th instant, by which it appears that the navigation of that river was completely cleared as far as Blaye, the whole of the French naval force, as well as the batteries on both banks, having been either captured or destroyed.

His Majesty's ship Centaur, having arrived in the Gironde on the evening of the 6th, every thing was prepared for making an attack with that ship and the Egmont, on the French line of battle ship Regulus, and the three brigs of war and other vessels lying near her, as also on the batteries which protected them; when at midnight the French ship and brigs appeared in flames, and were totally burnt by the next morning.

The batteries at Point Coubre, Point Negre, Royan, Sonisac, and Meché, were successively entered and destroyed by a detachment under Captain Harris, of the Belle Poule.

The communication between the squadron and Bourdeaux, was completely established by means of dragoons; and the Rear-Admiral was concerting operations with Lord Dalbousie for the reduction of Blaye.

Admiralty-Office, April 19, 1814.

VICE-ADMIRAL Domett, has transmitted to John Wilson Croker, Esq. a letter addressed to Lord Keith, by Rear-Admiral Lord Amelius Beauchamp, dated on board the Royal Oak, in Basque Roads, the 12th instant, inclosing a letter which he had received from the General of Division, Baron de la Raffiniere, Commander in Chief at La Rochelle, stating, that in the name of his division, he had acknowledged His Majesty Louis the Eighteenth, and ordered the white flag to be hoisted; and proposing to the Rear-Admiral a suspension of hostilities, until further orders should arrive from the respective governments.

Lord Amelius Beauchamp, in reply, consented to suspend hostilities towards La Rochelle, the coast of France, and its commerce, where the authority of Louis the Eighteenth might be acknowledged.

Vice-Admiral Domett has also transmitted a letter he had received from Rear-Admiral Sir Harry Neale, dated on board the Zealous, in Donarnenez-Bay the 14th instant, stating, that on the preceding evening a deputation of the principal inhabitants of Donarnenez came off to the ship, with the information of a general declaration throughout France in favour of the Bourbons; and that on the morning of the 14th the white flag was displayed upon all parts of the bay.

The Rear-Admiral, at the request of the inhabitants, promised that the coasting trade, within the limits of his station, should not in future be molested.

Admiralty-Office, April 19, 1814.

Copy of a Letter from the late Captain Taylor, of His Majesty's Ship Apollo, addressed to Rear-Admiral Fremantle, and transmitted by Rear-Admiral Sir John Gore to John Wilson Croker, Esq.

His Majesty's Ship Apollo, Channel of Corfu, February 16, 1814.

SIR,

IT blowing very hard from the northward on the 6th, I took the opportunity of running to Zante to propose measures for commencing hostilities against Corfu, and as a preliminary, to take the island of Paxo.

His Excellency Lieutenant-General Campbell readily came into my views, and gave me a carte blanche for all the troops which could be spared from St. Maura, with a few of the 2d Greek light infantry from Cephalonia, and placed these forces under Lieutenant-Colonel Church, of the latter corps.

On the 13th we landed under the lee of the island, in a hard southerly gale, and rain, with the above Greeks, a party of seamen and marines of the Apollo, a detachment of the 35th regiment, and of the Royal Corsican Rangers, making the whole one hundred and sixty men.

The movements of the troops, under Lieutenant-Colonel Church, through the length of this rugged island, were so rapid, that we gave the enemy barely time to prepare for resistance, and in consequence of their confusion, succeeded without firing even one musket.

The force of the enemy were one hundred and twenty-two men (without the militia), and an inclosed fort of three guns, well calculated for a defence against a surprise, being upon an elevated island, which forms the harbour.

I have the honour to be, &c.

(Signed) R. W. TAYLOR.

To Thomas F. Fremantle, Esq. Rear-Admiral of the White.

Whitchall, April 8, 1814.

WHEREAS it hath been humbly represented unto His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, that about twelve o'clock in the night of the 25th of March last, Henry Trigg, of Berden, in the county of Essex, shoemaker, hearing some persons in the shop adjoining to his house, went with his father, Henry Trigg, to the door of the shop, which opened into the street, and they there met two men coming out of the shop, one of whom rushed by them, and escaped. The other, having been knocked down, and secured by the son, was delivered into the hands of his father. Henry Trigg then went in pursuit of the man who had escaped; but, upon hearing a scuffle take place between his father and the man he had left him in charge of, and fearing lest he should break from him, he returned to his father's assistance; and while they were all three struggling upon the ground, the person who had escaped, returned and fired a gun or pistol, but without effect; and in a very short space of time he came up to Henry Trigg, the son, and, with a dreadful imprecation, swore that he would do for him, and immediately fired a second time, and shot Henry Trigg, the son, in the left side of his breast, which occasioned his instant death.

His Royal Highness, for the better apprehending and bringing to justice the persons concerned in the said atrocious murder, is hereby pleased, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, to promise His Majesty's most gracious pardon to any one of the offenders (except the person who actually fired at and shot the said Henry Trigg,) who shall discover his, her, or their accomplice or accomplices therein, so that he, she, or they may be apprehended and convicted thereof.

SIDMOUTH.

And, as a further encouragement, a reward of ONE HUNDRED GUINEAS is hereby offered to any person (except as is before excepted), who shall discover his, her or their accomplice or accomplices in the said murder; or to any person or persons who shall apprehend and convict the said offenders or any of them, or cause them or any of them so to be apprehended and convicted thereof.—Such reward to be paid upon conviction of any one or more of the offenders by the inhabitants of the neighbourhood of Berden.

Whitchall, April 12, 1814.

WHEREAS it hath been humbly represented unto His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, that about two o'clock on the morning of the 4th instant, five or six persons or more, disguised in slops or flannel shirts, broke and entered into the shop of Mr. Thomas Morley, of Gilt-Hill, in the parish of Greasley, in the county of Nottingham, and destroyed five stocking frames, with the work that was on them;

His Royal Highness, for the better apprehending and bringing to justice the persons concerned in the said felony, is hereby pleased, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, to promise His Majesty's most gracious pardon to any one of them (except the person or persons who actually broke the said frames) who shall discover his or their accomplice or accomplices therein, so that he, she, or they may be apprehended and convicted thereof.

SIDMOUTH.

And, as a further encouragement, a reward of TWO HUNDRED GUINEAS is hereby offered to any person (except as is before excepted) who shall discover his, her, or their accomplice or accomplices in the said felony, or to any person or persons who shall apprehend and convict the said offenders, or any of them, or cause them or any of them to be apprehended and convicted thereof; such reward to be paid upon conviction of any one or more of the offenders, by Messrs. Needham and Nixons, of Nottingham, owners of the said frames.
