But it is His Royal Highness's pleasure, nevertheless, that the following articles, viz. bar iron, white and tairred rope, yellow or mill grease; tarpaulins for waggon covers, pitch, tar, and turpentine, shall be permitted to be exported, upon payment of the proper duties; without bond being entered into by the merchant exporter, to any of the British plantations in the West Indies, or to any of His Majesty's settlements in South America; provided the merchant exporter shall first verify, upon oath, that the articles so exported are intended for the use of a particular plantation or settlement, to be named in the entry outwards, and not for sale, and that the said plantation or settlement has not before been furnished with any supply of the said articles during the same season; and provided also that the exportation of the said articles shall in no case exceed the value of fifty pounds sterling for any given plantation or settlement, whether by one or more shipments, within the same season: and the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, the Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, and the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, are to give the necessary directions herein as to them may respectively appertain. Chetwynd.

AT the Court at Carlton-House, the 30th of May 1814,

PRESENT,

His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT in Council.

IT is this day ordered by His Royal Highness the Prince Regent in Council, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, that the prohibition, under the Order in Council of the twenty-first of January last, against the exportation of sheet copper, be, and the said prohibition is, hereby taken off. And the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, the Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, and the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, are to give the necessary directions herein as to them may respectively appertain. Jas. Butler.

AT the Court at Carlton-House, the 10th of August 1814,

PRESENT,

His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT in Council.

THIS day the Right Honourable William Stuges Bourne was, by command of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, sworn of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, and took his place at the Board accordingly.

THE following Addresses have been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness George PRINCE REGENT of the United Empire of Great Britain and Ireland.

WE, the undersigned Inhabitants of the Parish of Kirkclinton, in the County of Cumberland, with the most heartfelt pleasure and satisfaction congratulate your Royal Highness upon the event of the greatest of all blessing upon earth, the restoration of peace—a blessing which has been brought about principally by the wisdom and vigour of your Royal Highness's councils, by the intrepidity and bravery of your Generals, and by the exertions and persevering energy and fortitude of the whole nation.

But cheering as this prospect of a lasting and permanent tranquillity may appear to the reflecting mind, we have deeply to regret and deplore that part of the recent treaty with France, wherein no provision is made for the immediate abolition of the slave trade—a trade repugnant to every principle of religion, humanity, and of morality itself. And we cannot indeed suppress our fears, that the abolition, promised in the treaty stipulated, after the expiration of five years, will have to encounter most formidable obstacles, when that period shall have elapsed.

While we, Sire, your very loyal and dutiful subjects, express our sentiments, and which we believe to be the sentiments of the whole nation, on a subject that most nearly concerns the whole human race, may we be permitted to express to our Sovereign our firm and decided persuasion, that the exercise of peace will be still wanting, while every principle of humanity and justice is violated, so abhorrent to every pious every Christian feeling, against the innocent and unoffending millions of Africa.

We, therefore, do, with the most profound respect, and at the same time most earnestly beseech and implore your Royal Highness, to give instructions to your Minister, vested with full power, that he will use every exertion, in concert with the other stipulating Powers, at the approaching Congress at Vienna, to prevail upon France to give up that part of the treaty respecting the slave trade. But should he fail to effect the immediate abolition of such a horrid unchristian traffic—a traffic in human blood—a traffic abhorrent to that great Divine precept, that righteousness exalteth a nation, our prayer is, that it may be for the shortest possible period.

We have also further to implore, that in any future treaty or treaties, which your Royal Highness may have with any Power that carries on the slave trade, that you will use every effort for its entire and total abolition.

We most fervently pray that your Royal Highness's throne may be exalted in righteousness; that
