Chetwynd.

THE following Address has been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Address His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness George PRINCE REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Commons, and Citizens of the City of Dublin, in Common-Council assembled, on Wednesday the 2d day of August 1815.

MAY it please your Royal Highness to accept the sincere and heartfelt congratulations of His Majesty's faithful City of Dublin on the glorious results with which it has pleased the Almighty to bless the United Kingdom, and indeed the whole civilized world, through the wisdom of His Majesty's councils, and the valour of his arms, by the victory of Waterloo; a victory most glorious to the British arms, most important in its consequences, and unparalleled in the proudest records of our military annals.

Under the happy auspices of your Royal Highness, through the excellence of that army, organized and directed by your Royal Brother, and commanded by our illustrious countryman, the Duke of Wellington, we entertained a confident hope of ultimate success; but that success has so far exceeded our most sanguine expectations, that while we humbly acknowledge the goodness of Divine Providence, we cannot find words adequately to convey our feelings of exultation, gratitude, and affection to your Royal Highness, through whose inflexible firmness and distinguished wisdom, in following the example of our revered and beloved Sovereign, those great blessings have been obtained.

We cannot contemplate this signal victory, brilliant as it was, without expressing our admiration of the splendid intrepidity of an illustrious member of the house of Brunswick, who, with hereditary gallantry, having participated in the triumph of the day, fell in the very moment of victory, covered with honour and crowned with immortal glory.

May your Royal Highness ever continue the true defender of the Protestant cause, the liberties of mankind and of social order, blessed with the gratifying reflection, that you have saved Europe and raised your country to the highest state of prosperity.

In testimony whereof the seal of the said City is hereto affixed the day and year aforesaid.

[Transmitted by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]
