Also, that on 15th March, 1886, a fog signal will be established on the southern end of Ailsa Craig, about half a mile from the lighthouse:—

The signal will be a siren placed about 80 feet above the sea, and which during thick or foggy weather, will, as soon as possible after the commencement of the fog, be sounded at regular intervals, giving three blasts in quick succession every three minutes—the first blast a high note, the second a low note, and the third a high note.

Also, that in the summer of 1886, a second fog signal will be established on the northern end of Ailsa Craig. Of this further notice will be given before its establishment.

[The bearings are magnetic, and are given from seaward. Variation 22° Westerly in 1886.]
