Board of Trade (Harbour Department), London, June 8, 1887.

THE Board of Trade have received through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs a Despatch, dated 23rd April last, from Her Majesty's Minister at Tokio, enclosing the following copy of the Rules which have been issued by the Government of Japan with regard to the treatment of yachts in Japanese waters :--

1. On the arrival of a yacht at any port, a Customs' officer shall visit the vessel and inquire of the captain or other officer regarding her name, nationalty, and tonnage, the number of the crew, the name of the captain, the names of gentlemen on board, the existence or non-existence of merchandise on board, and the status of the vessel (whether the vessel belongs to the Royal Squadron or the Royal Yacht Club, or is an ordinary yacht, and the like). The Customs' officer shall enter the answers in his book, and request the captain or other officer to sign his name thereto, and he shall also request the production of the certificate of the Consul of the nation to which the yacht belongs, showing the fact of her being a vessel used for pleasure trips.

If the yacht previously visited the port, and is not suspected to have changed her character to a merchant vessel, it shall not be necessary to require the production of the Consul's certificate.

2. Customs' officers shall have power to board ' and inspect the yacht in port, and at any time ' whatever.

3. When any yacht is to leave the port, the day and hour of her departure, and the port of her destination, shall be reported to the Customs' authorities.

4. In case any vessel infringes any of the preceding Rules, or carries on board any merchandise, she shall not be treated as a yacht, and shall be required to comply with Articles I and IV of the Trade Regulations.
