*Board of Trade (Harbour Department),
London, October 4, 1894.*

THE Board of Trade have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, information to the effect that the new Turkish Regulations with respect to the granting of pratique to vessels arriving in the Dardanelles from the Mediterranean, and intending to proceed further, which were published in the London Gazette of the 11th July, 1893, will come into force upon the 13th October, 1894. As they have been modified since the date of their publication, they are now reprinted:—

Regulations above referred to.

ART. 1. Vessels arriving from the Mediterranean in the Dardanelles are divided into two classes:

(a.) Vessels entitled to free pratique.

(b.) Vessels subject to quarantine.

Vessels passing the Straits in free pratique.

ART. 2. The sanitary inquiry for steam and sailing vessels arriving from the Mediterranean in the Dardanelles, and which have no operation to perform there, may take place on board or on land at the option of the captain of the vessel.

ART. 3. Any captain desiring that the inquiry may be effected on board his vessel, must, on his arrival at the Dardanelles, hoist a flag at the mizen mast as follows: Five red stripes alternating with five yellow stripes, each ten centimetres in width and two metres in length placed horizontally. He should also bring his vessel as near as possible to the Tchanak-Kaleh Health Office.

ART. 4. As soon as the vessel has made the necessary signal the health officer will go alongside in the steam launch of the health office in order to subject it to inquiry. Before going on board he will ascertain from the captain where he has come from and whither he is bound, the sanitary condition of the persons on board during the voyage and on its arrival; if he has touched in the course of the voyage at any port or communicated with vessels. If, as a result of this preliminary investigation, the health officer deems the vessel to be entitled to free pratique he will go on board and proceed to the usual inquiry. If, on the contrary, he considers it as being subject to quarantine he will request the captain to go to Glazomenes in order that the vessel may there perform quarantine. The captain may, however, before quitting the Straits take his vessel to the Tchanak-Kaleh Health Office in order to undergo interrogation there and to make quite certain that he is really subject to quarantine. In this case the health office boat will tow the vessel's boat as far as the health office and bring it back to the vessel after the accomplishment of the usual formalities.

ART. 5. The boats of the health office are exclusively intended for this service and must not be used for any other purpose.

ART. 6. The sanitary inquiry for coasting vessels will be effected, as in the past, at one of the following health offices in the Dardanelles Straits:—Set-ul-Bahar, Erenkeuy, Tchanak-Kalé, Gallipoli, or Lampsaque.

Ships passing the Straits in quarantine.

ART. 7. Steam vessels coming from any infected port and bound for a non-Ottoman port in the Black Sea, or the Sea of Azov, or the Danube, may, if free from cholera, plague, or yellow fever, pass the Straits without communicating at any port.

These vessels will be subject on their arrival at Tchanak-Kalé to the preliminary interrogation of the health officer, who will not communicate with them. If the vessel have no case of cholera, plague, or yellow fever on board, it will receive from the vessel of the health office two health guards, under whose supervision the vessel will navigate the Straits; it will land them at Cavak, at the Monastir-Agluzy Lazaretto.

If, on the contrary, there have been cases of these maladies, the vessel will be sent back to Glazomenes.

ART. 8. Except in cases of "force majeure," vessels which pass the Straits in quarantine may not stop at any point of their journey from the entrance to the Dardanelles as far as Cavak of Asia,

ART. 9. Every vessel passing the Straits in quarantine must carry on the main mast, for the whole of the journey, including the Sea of Marmora, a yellow flag at least two metres square.

ART. 10. The sanitary dues, including inquiry dues and guards' fees, are levied at Cavak.

ART. 11. Sailing vessels coming from an infected port are not allowed to pass through the Straits.
