*Board of Trade,
March 9, 1903.*

The KING has been graciously pleased to confer the decoration of the Albert Medal of the Second Class upon Captain Herbert C. French, Royal Army Medical Corps.

The following is an account of the services in respect of which the decoration has been conferred:—

While His Majesty's transport "Wakool" was steaming, at the rate of about 12 knots an hour, through the Straits of Malacca, on the 17th November, 1902, a native fireman jumped overboard. Captain French, who was a passenger on board, immediately dived off the promenade deck, a height of about 36 feet from the water, and swam to the place where he had observed the man. Before he reached the spot the man had disappeared, and Captain French was obliged to make for a lifebuoy, as he was exhausted with the weight of his clothing. Subsequently both were rescued by the ship's lifeboat.

Captain French incurred considerable risk, as a strong current was running at the time, and he might have been drawn under the propellers of the ship. He was also in danger of sharks and water snakes, which are known to frequent the Straits of Malacca.

The buoys are principally conical in shape, but are characterised by colour and by the form of topmark.

The term starboard hand means the right-hand side approaching from seaward, the term port hand means the left-hand side approaching from seaward. With reference to the Naikai (Seto Uchi or Inland) Sea and other straits the term "approaching from seaward" refers to an approach to an arbitrary point in the strait, or sea, which is termed the "Head Waters," and which point will be fully described in the forthcoming edition of the Sailing Directions for Japan and the adjacent seas, formerly published as China Sea Directory, Vol. IV, now in progress. The term outer end of middle ground is given to the buoys moored at the seaward extremity of middle grounds; to those at the inshore extremity, the term inner end of middle ground is applied. The buoys or beacons marking shoals of small extent are named isolated danger buoys or beacons.

A starboard hand buoy is conical, painted red, and surmounted by a red cone base downwards.

A port hand buoy is conical, painted black, and surmounted by a cylindrical topmark.

The outer end of a middle ground is marked by a conical buoy, painted in black and white horizontal bands, surmounted by a diamond as a topmark.

The inner end of a middle ground is marked by a conical buoy, painted in red and white horizontal bands, surmounted by two cones, points together, in the form of a hour glass, as a topmark.

Isolated dangers which may be passed on either side are marked either by a conical buoy, a spar buoy, or a cylindrical beacon, but always painted in red and black horizontal bands, and surmounted by a red ball as a topmark.

A wreck is marked by a bell-shaped buoy painted green.
