CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD.

St. James's Palace, S.W.1, 12th February, 1943.

The KING has been graciously pleased to give orders for the following appointments to the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, and the following award of the British Empire Medal (Military Division) —

To be an Additional Member of the Military Division of the said Most Excellent Order.—

Flying Officer Charles Surtees Mason (Aus 4636),
Royal Australian Air Force

To be awarded the British Empire Medal (Military Division).—

Q 123835 Private Horace Summers, Volunteer
Defence Corps, Queensland

On the 31st March, 1942, in fog conditions, an Airacobra aircraft struck the top of a tree in a dispersal area, burst into flames and continued for approximately 150 yards before hitting the ground, rolling down a slope for a further hundred yards as a complete wreck. Flying Officer Mason followed the direction of the aircraft after it had collided with the tree and instructed an airman to telephone immediately for the ambulance and fire tender and to despatch the dispersal point fire extinguishers to the scene of the accident. Private Summers joined Flying Officer Mason at the scene of the crash. On first viewing the wreckage Flying Officer Mason thought that the pilot had been killed outright but quickly detected movements in the cockpit and, despite the fact that portions of the wreckage were burning fiercely, and ammunition was discharging from six magazines, he and his companion dashed in to rescue the pilot who was unconscious and jammed in the compartment by bent sections of the cockpit. Cannon shell was also in the magazines and the possibility of its discharging as the flames and heat increased was ever present. Assisted by Private Summers, Flying Officer Mason unfastened the safety belt. The locking device for the belt was a type which neither had seen before. Wreckage had to be pulled away from the pilot's left leg and right arm before he could be extricated. Difficulty was experienced owing to the absence of any device with which to prise apart the obstructions holding the pilot in the cockpit. Flying Officer Mason worked with speed and precision and was successful in releasing both limbs. Nevertheless, during the process, it was necessary in the course of removing the crumpled rudder bar from the pilot's left foot, to move still closer to the flames and in so doing Flying Officer Mason was burnt on the left arm. Finally, before the pilot could be dragged clear, it was necessary to untangle or unlock the parachute harness. The latter process proved difficult and as the flames continued to spread, it was clear that speed was now essential if the pilot's life was to be saved. Flying Officer Mason therefore dragged the tangled harness clear of the burning aircraft while Private Summers held the pilot who was then carried clear and conveyed to the station hospital by ambulance.

Air Ministry, 12th February, 1943

ROYAL AIR FORCE.

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the following awards in recognition of gallantry displayed in flying operations against the enemy —

Bar to Distinguished Flying Cross

Acting Wing Commander George Walton HOLDEN, D.F.C. (103484), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No 102 Squadron

One night in January, 1943, this officer captained an aircraft which attacked Lorient. On the outward flight severe icing conditions were encountered and one of the outer engines failed. The aircraft lost speed and height and was difficult to control. Despite this, Wing Commander Holden continued on his mission and bombed his target after flying over the area for some 20 minutes in order to ensure success. This officer has always displayed outstanding courage and determination to complete his allotted task.

Acting Flight Lieutenant Donald Joseph CURTIN, D.F.C. (Can/J 9340), Royal Canadian Air Force, No 106 Squadron

Since the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross this officer has participated in numerous operational sorties against heavily defended targets in the Ruhr and in North Italy. During a daylight raid on Milan in October, when attacked by two enemy fighters Flight Lieutenant Curtin skilfully evaded them and enabled his gunners to destroy 1 and drive off the other. On two consecutive nights in January, 1943, he took part in attacks on Berlin, on the second occasion spending 30 minutes over the target to ensure accurate bombing. This officer has always displayed the greatest courage and devotion to duty.

Distinguished Flying Cross

Acting Squadron Leader Cyril Wolrich PASSY (72028), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No 89 Squadron

In operations in North Africa, this officer has performed much excellent work which has been reflected in the successes obtained by the flight he has so skilfully led Twenty enemy aircraft have been destroyed at night, 3 of them by Squadron Leader Passy. He has set a most inspiring example.

Flying Officer Arthur Leslie Mervyn SPURGIN (Aus 404120), Royal Australian Air Force, No. 89 Squadron

In operations in North Africa, this officer has destroyed 5 enemy aircraft. He is a skilful and courageous pilot, whose fine example has been an inspiration to others.

Pilot Officer William Henry HOPKINS (137132), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 103 Squadron

As bomb aimer during numerous operational sorties, Pilot Officer Hopkins has invariably exhibited keenness and determination to achieve success. On one occasion in January, 1943, undeterred by the pain from a wound in the eye sustained when the perspex in his turret was shattered by anti-aircraft fire, he remained at his post and made a successful attack on Essen. On another occasion, while attacking Turin, Pilot Officer Hopkins replaced the mid upper gunner, who became ill, and enabled his captain to complete the mission. Throughout, this officer has displayed courage, coolness and devotion to duty, which have contributed much to the success attained by his crew.

Pilot Officer Robert Edward George HUTCHISON (120854), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 106 Squadron

This officer has flown on numerous operational sorties, including attacks on the majority of the enemy's most heavily defended targets, he also participated in daylight raids on Danzig, Le Creusot and Milan. One night in January, 1943, he was detailed to attack Berlin. On the outward journey the electrical circuits in the mid-upper turret of his aircraft failed. With skill and determination Pilot Officer Hutchison repaired the defect although owing to the intense cold he was nearly unconscious by the time the repair was finished. At all times this officer has set an outstanding example of courageous devotion to duty which has been an inspiration to his squadron.

Pilot Officer Robert Leslie SMITH, D.F.M. (129958), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 137 Squadron

Since being awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal, Pilot Officer Smith has taken part in numerous operational flights, including attacks on shipping and railways. On one occasion he engaged 4 Focke Wulf 190s and seriously damaged one of them. Although his own aircraft also received severe damage during the combat, he flew it safely to base and effected a masterly landing.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Flight Lieutenant Theodore Dudley MISSELBROOK (42353), No. 101 Squadron

Distinguished Flying Medal

Can/R 111540 Sergeant Arthur HARRISON, Royal Canadian Air Force, No. 101 Squadron

One night in January, 1943, Flight Lieutenant Misselbrook and Sergeant Harrison were captain and rear gunner respectively of an aircraft which was attacked by an enemy fighter when near the north west coast of Germany. By skilful out-manceuvring the attacker, Flight Lieutenant Misselbrook enabled his rear gunner to shoot it down from close range. Although his aircraft sustained much damage and 1 of its engines failed, Flight Lieutenant Misselbrook flew the aircraft back to this country and landed it safely. On a previous occasion he flew his damaged aircraft back to base in most trying circumstances. Both these members of aircraft crew have always displayed outstanding determination and devotion to duty.

Distinguished Flying Cross.

Flying Officer George Reicher ROYDE (118604), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 149 Squadron

Pilot Officer Norman Edward SKINNER (118084), Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, No. 149 Squadron

Distinguished Flying Medal.

1366018 Flight Sergeant Leslie Anderson HYDER, No. 149 Squadron

971446 Flight Sergeant Douglas CAMERON, No. 149 Squadron

1130087 Sergeant Harold Wray GOUGH, No. 149 Squadron

On 28th November, 1942, these members of an aircraft crew took part in an attack on a target at Turin. Whilst over the target area, their bomber was repeatedly hit by anti-aircraft fire, and sustained much damage. A shell, which burst in the cockpit, rendered the captain, the late Flight Sergeant Middleton, V.C., unconscious and wounded the second pilot, Flight Sergeant Hyder, in the face and legs, Pilot Officer Skinner, the wireless operator, was also wounded in the leg. Despite his injuries, Flight Sergeant Hyder, took over the controls and succeeded in regaining control of the aircraft which had dived from 2,000 to 800 feet. Later the bomb load was released. Shortly afterwards, the captain recovered consciousness but Flight Sergeant Hyder, after receiving first aid, insisted on remaining beside him in case of emergency. On the return flight, when crossing the Alps, Flight Sergeant Cameron and Sergeant Gough greatly assisted the pilot to maintain height by jettisoning all movable equipment. Skilful navigation by Flying Officer Royde enabled the aircraft to be flown back to this country. Shortly after crossing the coast the aircraft had to be abandoned owing to lack of petrol. In the face of almost insuperable odds, these members of the aircraft crew displayed courage, fortitude and determination of a high order.

Can/R 92109 Flight Sergeant Ronald Ernest MACFARLANE, Royal Canadian Air Force, No. 101 Squadron

One night in January, 1943, Flight Sergeant MacFarlane was captain of an aircraft which was attacked by 3 Junkers 88s when returning from an operational sortie. The mid upper gunner was killed, the rear gunner severely wounded and the aircraft was badly damaged. Flight Sergeant MacFarlane took violent evasive action and succeeded in shaking off the enemy aircraft. Shortly afterwards the bomber was held by searchlights and engaged by intense anti-aircraft fire and height was lost down to 4,000 feet in avoiding further damage. Soon afterwards a formation of 5 hostile fighters was sighted but when they attempted to attack Flight Sergeant MacFarlane skilfully evaded them. By masterly airmanship this airman extricated his aircraft from a perilous situation and flew it safely back to this country.

1376928 Flight Sergeant Donald Athelston NORRIS, No. 89 Squadron

During operations in North Africa, this airman rendered excellent service. He has taken part in the destruction of 5 enemy aircraft at night. He has set an admirable example.

1294471 Sergeant Kenneth Herbert BERRY, No. 103 Squadron

This airman has completed many operational missions and has invariably pressed home his attacks with great determination. On one occasion, when attacking Kiel, his aircraft was hit and damaged by anti-aircraft fire. Despite this, Sergeant Berry displayed great persistence and bombed his objective successfully. On another occasion he displayed commendable skill and initiative during a fight to Turin. In a recent attack on Essen, Sergeant Berry pressed home his attack with great spirit although his aircraft was damaged by opposing fire. Throughout his operational career, this airman has set a fine example.

643093 Sergeant Edward PARRY, No. 106 Squadron

1319236 Sergeant Robert Sidney GREEP, No. 106 Squadron

On the night of 17th January, 1943, Sergeants Parry and Grep were the mid-upper and rear gunners respectively of an aircraft which was detailed to bomb a target in Berlin. On the return journey, whilst still over enemy territory, the aircraft was attacked by an enemy fighter from close range. Sergeants Parry and Grep, coolly withheld their fire until the range was shortened and then delivered accurate bursts which caused the fighter to break away. In a second attack, Sergeant Parry's concise commentary enabled the pilot to obtain a favourable position from which both gunners could deliver effective fire. The enemy aircraft was set alight and fell to the ground. Later, the bomber was held in a cone of searchlights and subjected to a barrage of light anti-aircraft fire. Sergeants Parry and Greep, with well aimed bursts, extinguished several of the searchlights. Both these gunners have invariably displayed skill and determination worthy of high praise.

Air Ministry, 12th February, 1943.

ROYAL AIR FORCE.

The KING has been graciously pleased to approve the following award —

Military Medal.

1299126 Aircraftman 1st Class Herbert Leslie Bowden

One day in November, 1942, Aircraftman Bowden was left in charge of a section at an Advanced Landing Ground. Later in the day this Advanced Landing Ground had to be abandoned and Aircraftman Bowden took his section with their weapons into the hills. Two hours later they returned hoping to move their vehicle, but were driven off by machine-gun fire. They returned at dark and spent that night in their vehicle. Next day they were again forced to take to the hills by machine-gun fire, but in the afternoon decided to try to move the truck under cover of a move forward by some American tanks. The subsequent withdrawal of these tanks forced the section to take to the hills again but Aircraftman Bowden decided to make another attempt, and returned with his men to the truck and extricated it under cover of darkness. Throughout this period Aircraftman Bowden has shown great powers of leadership, determination and devotion to duty in that he steadfastly refused to abandon his vehicle. The other men of his section loyally supported him and together they brought away the vehicle and all aircraft stores without any loss, though the vehicle was damaged by enemy fire.
