area. Having previously positioned his two vehicles for maximum effect, Corporal Wardle extinguished the fire with dry powder, thus enabling the civilian mechanic to escape from the pit, relatively unharmed. Corporal Wardle acted completely professionally throughout the incident and with complete disregard for his own safety. As a fireman, he was fully aware of the dangers inherent in a fire in a garage workshop but, by his coolness and by his prompt and magnificent example in the face of danger, he averted a serious explosion and almost certainly saved the trapped mechanic from death or serious injuries.

HONOURS AND AWARDS

CENTRAL CHANCERY OF THE ORDERS OF KNIGHTHOOD

13th November 1973.

The QUEEN has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the British Empire Medal for Gallantry (Military Division) to the undermentioned:

L4240051 Corporal Alan WARDLE, Royal Air Force Regiment.

In September 1971, Corporal Wardle was posted to Royal Air Force Boulmer, as the non-commissioned officer in charge of the Fire Section, located at Acklington but on the establishment of Boulmer. On 21st June 1973, the Fire Section at Acklington was alerted that there was a serious fire on the premises of the Acklington Motor Company situated in Acklington Village. The fire started beneath a car which was being repaired over a servicing pit and was caused by an accumulation of petrol fumes which had been ignited by a flame from a welding torch. The fire involved the car and an oxyacetylene trolley, which was being used by a mechanic who was then trapped in the pit as a result of the fire. The Airfield Crash Rescue Landrover was immediately sent to the scene of the incident. Corporal Wardle was not at the Fire Section at the time of the alert, but on learning of the incident on the communications radio of the second Airfield Crash Rescue Landrover, he acted on his own initiative and drove to the scene of the fire. On arrival, he fought his way into the building, which was filled with smoke and toxic fumes, and immediately noticed that the set of oxygen and acetylene bottles was excessively hot and that the hoses from these bottles were feeding the fire. Assessing the danger and with complete disregard for his own safety, Corporal Wardle approached the bottles, turned off the control valves and pulled the bottles clear of the building to a safe
