

At the Palace of the Family of Rezzonico there was last Night an Assembly of the Venetian Nobility, and two Concerts of Musick. The Palace was finely illuminated within and without with Wax Tapers; an Edifice was erected before it upon the great Canal for a Band of Musick, and was illuminated also within and without with large Wax Tapers; and on each Side of it were Bonfires upon the Canal. These Festivals are to continue for three Nights; all the Foreign Ministers are invited, and the Foreign Nobility and Gentry are admitted to them.
