

dependent Television Authority without terms having first been agreed with the owner of the recording right.

It was the contention of Southern Television Limited that that clause imposed terms or conditions which were unreasonable; and it applied accordingly to the Tribunal to have it so determined.

The case for Southern Television Limited was supported by the British Broadcasting Corporation, and that for the Performing Right Society by three bodies (which combined to form one interested party), all being owners of copyright in the making of mechanical recordings.

The Performing Right Society maintained that if and so far as a licence to broadcast carried with it any right to make a mechanical reproduction, this would constitute an infringement of the last-mentioned copyright, and frankly admitted that the clause which the application sought to impeach was deliberately designed to defeat whatever statutory provisions might have that effect.

The Tribunal did not find it necessary to determine the question of law as to whether or not there were statutory provisions which did have that effect. If there were no such provisions, then the insertion of the proposed clause was pointless. If, on the other hand, the legislature had thought fit so to provide, then it was unreasonable to compel Southern Television Limited against its will to contract out of any statutory rights which it might have. In either event, therefore, it was held to be unreasonable to include the proposed clause as a term or condition subject to which the Performing Right Society would grant the required licence to Southern Television Limited.

The Tribunal accordingly ordered that Southern Television Limited was entitled to be granted a licence in the form proffered by the Performing Right Society, but without the inclusion in its terms of the proposed clause or any clause to the same or a like effect.

The Performing Right Society was ordered to pay the costs of Southern Television Limited.

A copy of the Decision may be inspected at the offices of the Tribunal during office hours.
