VIEWS WANTED ON PORTABLE PENSIONS

The Secretary of State for Social Services is currently leading an Inquiry into Provision for Retirement in the UK, with the following terms of reference:

"To study the future development, adequacy and cost of State, occupational and private provision for retirement in the United Kingdom, including the portability of pension rights, and to consider possible changes in those arrangements, taking account of the recommendations of the Select Committee on Social Services in their report on retirement age."

The first subject the Inquiry will examine is personal portable pensions. We want the views of interested bodies and individuals about the practical implications of portable pensions; about the advantages claimed for them; and about other possible ways of achieving these advantages.

If you or your organisation wish to submit written evidence on this subject please send it by 31st January to the Secretary of the Inquiry, Nick Montagu, at the address below. He can also give you any information you need before submitting evidence.

Later on, evidence will be invited on other aspects of the Inquiry.

The Inquiry into Provision for Retirement, Room 52, Hannibal House, Elephant & Castle, London SE1 6TE.
