In other situations, amoxycillin alone should be considered. Upper Respiratory Tract Infections (including ENT) in particular sinusitis, otitis media, recurrent tonsillitis. These infections are often caused by Streptococcus pneumoniae , Haemophilus influenzae* , Moraxella catarrhalis* and Streptococcus pyogenes . Lower Respiratory Tract Infections in particular acute exacerbations of chronic bronchitis (especially if considered severe), bronchopneumonia. These infections are often caused by Streptococcus pneumoniae , Haemophilus influenzae* and Moraxella catarrhalis* . Genito-urinary Tract and Abdominal Infections in particular cystitis (especially when recurrent or complicated - excluding prostatitis), septic abortion, pelvic or puerperal sepsis and intra-abdominal sepsis. These infections are often caused by Enterobacteriaceae* (mainly Escherichia coli* ), Staphylococcus saprophyticus , Enterococcus species. Skin and Soft Tissue Infections in particular cellulitis, animal bites and severe dental abscess with spreading cellulitis. These infections are often caused by Staphylococcus aureus. Streptococcus pyogenes and Bacteroides species. A comprehensive list of sensitive organisms is provided in Section 5. Some members of these species of bacteria produce beta- lactamase, rendering them insensitive to amoxycillin alone. Mixed infections caused by amoxycillin-susceptible organisms in conjunction with co- amoxiclav-susceptible beta- lactamase-producing organisms may be treated with it. These infections should not require the addition of another antibiotic resistant to beta-lactamases.	1st January, 1999
