These Rules revoke and replace the Magistrates' Courts (Terrorism Act 2000) Rules (Northern Ireland) 2001. They prescribe the procedure to be followed for applications to a magistrates' court for the detention, further detention, forfeiture or release of cash seized by a constable, customs officer, or immigration officer under Schedule 1 to the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 on reasonable suspicion of a connection to terrorism. They also prescribe the procedure to be followed for applications to a magistrates' court for compensation where no forfeiture is made. These Rules prescribe the forms to be used in connection with the application and hearings.

These Rules amend the Coroners (Practice and Procedure) Rules (Northern Ireland) 1963 to substitute a new Rule 9, which will allow a person suspected or charged with causing death to be compellable as a witness at the inquest into the death (this had been precluded under the previous Rule 9(2)). The new Rule 9 provides that a witness at an inquest may decline to answer any question tending to incriminate himself or his spouse.
