(4) The likely cost of providing a person with benefits under these regulations shall be assessed as disproportionately high if it is more than 50% greater than the likely cost of providing such benefits to a person who it is assessed does not have an identified risk of retirement on that ground.

(5) A person who is assessed as presenting such a risk shall, in accordance with these regulations, be ineligible for pension awards payable on the ground of permanent disablement, and in such a case the Chief Constable shall provide that person with a copy of the selected medical practitioner's report.

(6) A person who is dissatisfied with the opinion of the selected medical practitioner may appeal against the practitioner's report within 28 days of receiving a copy of it (or such longer period as may be agreed by the Chief Constable) by supplying evidence that a registered medical practitioner ("the appellant's practitioner") has examined him and disagrees with the selected medical practitioner's opinion on the likelihood or likely timing (or both) of that person retiring through ill health.

(7) The Chief Constable shall ask the selected medical practitioner to reconsider his report in the light of that evidence and, if necessary, to produce a revised report on the likelihood and likely timing of that person retiring through ill health.

(8) If, as a result of such a revised report, the Chief Constable decides that the person shall be eligible for pension awards payable on the ground of permanent disablement, that revised report shall be final.

(9) In any other case, the Chief Constable shall arrange for a third registered medical practitioner to examine the person.

(10) The third medical practitioner shall be acceptable to the selected medical practitioner and to the appellant's practitioner, except that in the event of a failure to agree, the Chief Constable may appoint such third medical practitioner as he considers appropriate.

(11) The third medical practitioner shall supply the Chief Constable and the appellant with a written statement of his decision, which, if it disagrees with any part of the report of the selected medical practitioner, shall take the form of a revised report on the likelihood and likely timing of that person retiring through ill health, which shall be final.

(12) Where the third medical practitioner produces a revised report, the Chief Constable shall review his assessment in the light of that report and shall determine whether the appellant is eligible for pension awards payable on the ground of permanent disablement."

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These regulations amend the Royal Ulster Constabulary Pensions Regulations 1988 and the Royal Ulster Constabulary Pensions (Purchase of Increased Benefits) Regulations 1988.

Regulation 2 amends the Royal Ulster Constabulary Pensions Regulations 1988. Regulation 2(2) to (4) applies in relation to an applicant to the Police Service of Northern Ireland who is assessed as being likely to be disproportionately expensive to the Police Service of Northern Ireland Pension Scheme by reason of a medical condition which will lead to his retirement. Such a person will be ineligible for early payment of an ordinary pension, for payment of an ill-health pension on compulsory retirement, and for early payment of deferred pension because of permanent disablement.

Regulation 2(5) provides that such a person will pay a correspondingly reduced rate of pension contributions.

Regulation 2(6) provides that the restrictions on eligibility for pension awards may also apply to a person who, having previously elected to pay pension contributions, decides to cancel that election.

Regulation 2(7) provides for the process whereby a person may be assessed as presenting high risk of retirement on the grounds that he is permanently disabled such that the cost of providing benefits would be disproportionately high. Provision is made for appeals against such a medical assessment.

Regulation 3 makes consequential amendments to the Royal Ulster Constabulary Pensions (Purchase of Increased Benefits) Regulations 1988. A person who has been assessed as presenting a disproportionately high risk of retirement will be ineligible for receiving additional benefits if he retires on ill-health grounds, and the amount of the payments he makes for any increased benefits will be determined by the Government Actuary.
