At Edinburgh the sixth day of March

WHEREAS by the Universities (Scotland) Act, 1889, the Commissioners under the said Act are empowered by section 14, sub-section 1, to regulate the foundations, mortifications, gifts, endowments, and bursaries held by any of the Universities or Colleges thereof existing at the passing of the said Act, or by any person in trust for or on behalf of the same, or for the benefit of any Professors, Students, or others therein, which have taken effect for more than twenty-five years previously to the passing of the said Act, or if given within less than twenty-five years, are wholly or partially inoperative or dormant; and in particular (a) to alter the conditions or directions affecting the same, if it shall appear to the Commissioners that the interests of learning and the main design of the donor, so far as is consistent with the promotion of such interests, may be better advanced by such alteration; and by section 14, sub-section 8, to found new Lectureships where such course seems desirable, and where there are sufficient means for their endowment or support, either from the funds administered by the Commissioners or otherwise, and to determine in what authority the patronage of such Lectureships shall be vested: And whereas by will dated the sixteenth day of July eighteen hundred and sixty-one, and relative codicils, dated respectively the twenty-fourth day of July eighteen hundred and sixty-eight and the fifteenth day of November eighteen hundred and seventy, the Reverend William Anderson, Doctor of Laws, sometime Principal of the College of Agra, in the North-West Provinces of India, liferented his sister, Isabella Anderson, in one-half of his estate, and directed that on her decease the same should be applied to the endowment of a Lectureship on Comparative Psychology and Philology in whatever University his Trustees might consider most suitable, but under conditions in the said will and codicils set forth: And whereas the said Isabella Anderson died on the third day of March eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, and the said Trustees on the twelfth day of March eighteen hundred and seventy-eight resolved that the University of Aberdeen is the most suitable as the seat of the said Lectureship: And whereas by Ordinance No. 11 [General, No. 6.—Regulations for Degrees in Arts] of the said Commissioners the course of study for graduation in Arts has been regulated: And whereas it is a condition of the bequest of the said Reverend William Anderson that attendance on the instruction of the said Lecturer shall be incumbent on all students proceeding to a degree in Arts in the said University: And whereas in consequence of the said condition which does not consist with the provisions of the last-mentioned Ordinance, the bequest is at present inoperative and dormant, and it appears to the Commissioners that the interests of learning and the main design of the donor would be better advanced by an alteration of the conditions and directions affecting the said bequest in manner hereinafter provided:
