FISHERY BOARD FOR SCOTLAND.

BYELAW (No. 28) MADE BY THE FISHERY BOARD FOR SCOTLAND UNDER THE SEA FISHERIES REGULATION (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1895.

1. The Byelaws made by the Fishery Board for Scotland on 11th April 1902, and confirmed by the Secretary for Scotland on 12th June 1902, are hereby revoked.

2. The following provisions of this Byelaw shall apply to the territorial waters on the Scottish side of the Solway Firth between the River Sark and Abbey Head, in Kirkcudbrightshire.

3. No person shall adopt any practice known as bunching or tying round the net, or use any artifice or device so as practically to diminish the size of the mesh of any net, except the net or trawl used solely for the purpose of taking shrimps or prawns.

4. No person shall use in fishing for sea-fish other than shrimps, prawns, mackerel, herrings, eels, or sparlings (otherwise known as "smelts"), any trawl net having a mesh through which a square gauge of one and a half inches, measured across each side of the square, or six inches, measured round the four sides, will not pass without pressure when the net is wet, or any other net having a mesh through which a square gauge of one and three-quarter inches, measured across each side of the square, or seven inches, measured round the four sides, will not pass without pressure when the net is wet.

5. No person shall fish for sparlings (otherwise known as "smelts") between the 31st day of January and the 2nd day of September following, both exclusive.

6. No person shall fish for mussels, except—

- (a) By hand;
- (b) With a rake not exceeding three feet in width, used only from a boat, and when the mussel bed is covered with at least four feet of water; or
- (c) With a dredge, when the bed is covered with at least twenty feet of water.

7. No person shall take mussels during the months of May, June, July or August in any year.

8. No person shall remove from a fishery any mussel less than two inches in length.

9. Any person who takes any shell-fish, the removal of which from a fishery is prohibited by this or any other Byelaw in force in the waters affected by this Byelaw, or the possession of which is prohibited by any Act of Parliament, shall forthwith re-deposit the same, without injury, as nearly as possible in the place from which they were taken, and in re-depositing cockles in accordance with this Byelaw, shall spread them thinly and evenly over the beds.

10. Any person not in the service or possessing the written authority of the Board, under the hand of the Secretary thereof, who shall commit a breach of this Byelaw, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding, for any one offence, the sum of twenty pounds, and in the case of a continuing offence the additional sum of ten pounds for every day during which the offence continues, and, in any case, to forfeiture of any fishing instrument used or sea-fish taken in contravention of, or found in the possession of a person contravening this Byelaw. Provided that in any prosecution for taking sea-fish with a net or instrument, the use of which for the capture of any particular kind of sea-fish would constitute a breach of any of the provisions of this Byelaw, not being a provision prescribing a close season, a person shall not be deemed to have committed such breach if he proves to the satisfaction of the Court that he was bona fide fishing only for the particular kind of sea-fish permitted to be captured with the net or instrument he was then using, and that he forthwith returned to the water, with the least possible injury, any soles and plaice under eight inches in length, and any turbot and brill under ten inches in length, taken by such net or instrument.

11. This Byelaw shall come into force from and after the date of its confirmation by the Secretary for Scotland.

By Order of the Fishery Board for Scotland.

Secretary.
