

Distinguished Conduct Medals—continued.

Regimental No.	Rank.	Name.	Corps.	Action for which commended.
2751	Private ...	Tyne, H.	8th Battalion, Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire Regiment (T.F.)	For conspicuous gallantry on the 30th July 1915, at Ypres, when he led a small party of bombers against the enemy. When his own grenades failed to explode, he picked up several unexploded German ones, and threw them, killing several of the enemy. Later he held his trench with great coolness and bravery under a heavy bomb and machine-gun fire until reinforced. The following day he performed a similar action.
10249	Lance-Corporal	Webb, J.	2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment	For conspicuous bravery and devotion on the 9th August 1915, at Hooge. When the supply of bombs were running short, and they were urgently needed, he ran back across the open ground under heavy shell fire on three separate occasions and brought back fresh supplies. On the third occasion he was wounded.
1369	Lance-Corporal	Wild, S.	1/5th Battalion, Lancashire Fusiliers (T.F.)	For conspicuous gallantry on 10th June 1915, near Krithia, Gallipoli Peninsula, when he volunteered to lead a party to reconnoitre a Turkish trench which was known to be occupied. As leading man he behaved with great courage, driving the Turks before him till he was wounded.
530	Serjeant ...	Williams, C. E. } ...	42nd East Lancashire Divisional Signal Company (T.F.)	For conspicuous gallantry and coolness in action on the Gallipoli Peninsula during 1915. He has frequently laid wires under heavy rifle and shrapnel fire, and has consistently shown great bravery and resource.
12954	Private ...	Williams, W.	1st Battalion, Devonshire Regiment. (Now transferred No. 86535 Royal Engineers.)	For conspicuous good work near Ypres on the evening of the 12th July 1915, after the enemy had exploded a mine just short of our parapet. A gallery was driven out to protect the trench and the German mine was struck. It was found to contain a charge and about 1350 lb. of explosive, some detonators and part of the main electric firing lead were withdrawn by the united efforts of the three Officers, Private Williams and three men.
8827	Private ...	Wilson, S.	1st Battalion, East Kent Regiment	For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on the 11th August 1915, at Hooge. After the telephone dug-out had been blown in, and both operators wounded, Private Wilson volunteered to work the telephone and keep up communication, although the post was exposed to very heavy shell fire. The men occupying this part of the trench were temporarily removed, but with great bravery he remained at his post, which was under continuous shell fire, operating the telephone.
A. 412	Serjeant ...	Wood, E.	7th Battalion, King's Royal Rifle Corps	For conspicuous gallantry on the 30th July 1915, at Hooge, when he went out of his trench under a heavy fire to help a wounded Officer. The field dressing proving insufficient, he returned, obtained a shell bandage and went out again, and assisted by another Non-Commissioned Officer, brought in the wounded Officer. Subsequently, although having no knowledge of bombs, on being shown how to use them, he led a bombing party, and himself threw about 200 bombs.
