

maintained communication between Headquarters and the advanced areas, with great skill and indifference to danger sending back prompt and valuable information.

2nd Lt. Reginald Caley, Lond. R., attd. E. Lan. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During a raid upon enemy trenches, he with a few men rushed and captured an enemy machine gun that was about to come into action, by his pluck and promptness saving many lives. Throughout the operations he led his men with marked courage and ability.

T./Capt. Hugh Salvin Calverley, Essex R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Although wounded in the leg and suffering from loss of blood, he remained on duty for six hours during an attack, supervising the placing of his guns and assisting to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded. He did not retire to the dressing station until ordered to do so by his company commander.

2nd Lt. Dugald Cameron, R.F.A., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He continued to fight his gun in spite of the most intense hostile fire. He was subsequently wounded.

Capt. (A/Maj.) Charles William Campbell, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Whilst his battery was being heavily shelled, he displayed great courage and gallantry in assisting to dress the wounded and putting out five burning ammunition dumps under very heavy gas-shell bombardment.

2nd Lt. William Charles Campbell, R.F.C., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He attacked an enemy balloon, bringing it down in flames, and returned to our lines at about twenty feet from the ground under heavy fire. On another occasion he attacked and dispersed a column of infantry from a very low altitude. He has shown great courage and initiative throughout.

2nd Lt. William James Carlile, Rif. Brig.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company in the assault on the village with great courage and ability under heavy fire. A village was rushed and heavy losses inflicted on the enemy. He set a splendid example throughout.

T/Capt. Reginald Caunter Carthew, Bedf. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company in the assault with great determination. The advanced position to which he had pushed forward was enfiladed and subjected to continuous shell fire, but by his courage and splendid example he encouraged his men to hold their ground.

Lt. Louis Charles Carus-Wilson, R.E.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He displayed the greatest skill and resource in establishing and maintaining communication for a brigade, working continuously for a week under heavy fire, during which many repairs had to be effected. His work was invaluable.

2nd Lt. Bryan Arthur Champion, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Hostile shelling set fire to one of the lorries and caused the ammunition in it to explode. While still under heavy fire he alone with two men got all the instruments away, and returning succeeded in driving the remaining lorry out of the danger zone.

2nd Lt. Frederick Charles Carlton Clark, R.G.A., Spec. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. As forward observation officer he set a fine example of steadfast and constant courage in maintaining communications, going twice through enemy barrage to do so. His activity in repairing breakages and sending back information was most marked.

T/2nd Lt. Robert William Clark, Notts. & Derby. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He showed great courage and prompt initiative in dealing with a burning bomb dump, salvaging a large quantity of material. He performed the work admirably, under intense bombardment, during which he was wounded.

2nd Lt. William Norman Cleland, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. At the greatest personal risk he entered a blazing gun pit in which ammunition was burning, and rescued a badly wounded man, getting severely burnt in doing so. At any moment the shells might have exploded.

T/2nd Lt. Leonard Frank Clist, Ches. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. After all his officers and Company Serjeant-Major were casualties, he led his company with the greatest dash to its objective, capturing two enemy field guns. He consolidated under very heavy shell fire, and successfully resisted a strong enemy counter-attack.

Lt. Robert Stanley Cobb, R.W. Kent R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. By his able handling of a few men and some Lewis guns, he enabled the troops on his right to get within assaulting distance of the enemy's position. He also showed exceptional courage and initiative in filling up gaps as they occurred, finally taking command of his battalion when all the senior officers were out of action.

T/2nd Lt. Edward Cohen, R. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his platoon with great deter-
