

T./2nd Lt. Sydney Patrick Brooker, Gen. List.

He was commanding a platoon in Capt. Bevan's company of Dyer's battalion during the mutiny occurring at Troitsa on 7th July, 1919. He was entirely responsible for putting down the mutiny in his platoon, which he maintained in good order under fire by his personal courage and example.

Lt. Edward Stanley Browne, R.G.A.

On the night 26-27th June, 1919, he was with the infantry as F.O.O. during a raid on the enemy's advanced position south of Mala Bereznik. His communications early broke down, so he advanced with the infantry in order to send back information by runner. During the advance he showed marked gallantry and dash, and, though wounded, continued to carry on.

Lt. John Churchley, R.F.A.

During the enemy attack on 1st September, 1919, at Bolsheozerki, he was in charge of a section of two 18-pounders, and went forward to an advanced post in order to shoot his guns. His O.P. was being heavily shelled, but he opened fire and directed his guns with great accuracy and coolness. Prior to the attack he had done excellent patrol work.

T./2nd Lt. Hugh Harry Edward Quin Coles, R. Ir. Fus., attd. 45th Bn., R. Fus.

For the splendid manner in which he kept his guns right forward with the attacking infantry, and with only two men left of a gun team destroyed at least one enemy block-house and one machine-gun strong point in face of very heavy fire. He was subsequently severely wounded.

Lt. William Culbert, 1st Bn., Conn. Rang., attd. 46th Bn., R. Fus.

During the attack on Gorodok, on 10th August, 1919, he showed great gallantry and skill in the handling of his guns, keeping close up to the front line. During the enemy counter-attack he was constantly moving his gun about to support various points as they became seriously threatened.

2nd Lt. Walter Stopford Constable Curtis, Som. L.I., attd. 46th Bn., R. Fus.

For gallant and determined leadership. He led his platoon in the attack on Borok on the 10th August, 1919. He organised an attack on a strong enemy position on the banks of the Teda River, and outflanked it. He was wounded whilst leading the final assault up the hill, but his platoon captured the position, enabling the remainder of the company to proceed towards the first objective.

2nd Lt. Arthur Morgan Edwards, R.F.A.

For courage and good work. He did excellently as liaison officer to 1st Russian Field Battery. On 1st September, 1919, a section of this battery was being heavily shelled, and the enemy infantry were attacking. The battery personnel took cover, excepting one gunner. He, with the help of a British corporal and gunner and this one gunner, kept up a heavy fire with the gun at a critical time.

T./Capt. Clive Featherstone, 1st S. Afr. Gen. List, formerly 241st T.M. Bn., and 45th Bn., R. Fus.

He was in command of a L.T.M. battery during the attack of Gorodok, on the 10th August, 1919. He showed great gallantry and skill under heavy fire in getting his guns close up behind the infantry after the first objective had been taken, and greatly assisted the infantry in the capture of the second objective.

2nd Lt. Harold Bingley Finch, R.A.S.C.

At Bolshe-Ozerki, on 1st September, 1919, he showed great gallantry as guide to a patrol. They found a position unexpectedly strongly held. He stayed behind with a badly wounded man and one other man. He personally killed four enemy and wounded several more. The work of this patrol in cutting the enemy's lines of communication was instrumental in breaking up the enemy attack on Bolshe-Ozerki.

Lt. Maxwell Charles William Flint, 45th Bn., R. Fus.

For a gallant attack on one of the enemy strong points, which he captured with the support of very few men, in spite of very heavy machine-gun and rifle fire; and also for the manner in which he handled his platoon during the subsequent counter-attack by the enemy. He set a fine example to his men.

Lt. Charles Hutson Fuller, Midd'x R., attd. 45th Bn., R. Fus.

For gallantry and devotion to duty. On 10th August, 1919, during the attack on Lipovets, he led his company to the attack against machine-gun fire. The attack was successful, but he was shot through the stomach. His evacuation through the forest, which was much harassed by parties of the enemy, lasted for 48 hours, during which he showed great pluck.

Lt. Henry Gibbons, Devonshire Regt., attd. 1st Oxs. & Bucks. L.I.

For conspicuous gallantry during the attack on Ust Vaga, on the 1st September, 1919. He not only assisted first one party and then another in the confused fighting which was going on, but also made valuable reports to his officer commanding on the situation, thus assisting the final clearance of the village. He has previously done good work.

Capt. Alexander Patrick Cathcart Hannay, 1st Bn., Cam'n Highrs.

Between 19th and 29th June, 1919, he helped to lay a cable between Pinega and Mezen, a distance of 70 miles. This involved working for days at a time in swamps often breast deep, and often through enemy country, after the whole party were in imminent danger of being surrounded and cut off. Thanks to his energy and pluck the task was accomplished.

Lt. (A./Capt.) Kenneth Robert Henderson, 2nd (attd. 6th) Bn., Yorks. Regt.

He has carried out the duties of company commander and Adj. of mixed force at Bolshe-Ozerki, and has worked in a very effi-
