

hundred and fifty tons. A few people, now alive, must, in childhood, have heard those ships spoken of with wonder as evidence of man's mastery over nature.

To-day we come to the happy task of sending on her way the stateliest ship now in being.

I thank all those, here and elsewhere, whose efforts, however conspicuous or humble, have helped to build her.

For three years her uncompleted hull has lain in silence on the stocks.

We know full well what misery a silent dockyard may spread among a seaport, and with what courage that misery is endured. During those years when work upon her was suspended we grieved for what that suspension meant to thousands of our people. We rejoice that, with the help of my Government, it has been possible to lift that cloud and to complete this ship.

Now, with the hope of better trade on both sides of the Atlantic, let us look forward to her playing a great part in the revival of International Commerce. It has been the Nation's will that she should be completed, and to-day we can send her forth no longer a number on the books, but a ship with a name in the world, alive with beauty, energy, and strength.

Samuel Cunard built his ships to carry the Mails between the two English-speaking countries. This one is built to carry the people of the two lands, in great numbers, to and fro, so that they may learn to understand each other: both are faced with similar problems and prosper and suffer together. May she in her career bear many thousands of each race to visit the other as students and to return as friends.

We send her to her element with the goodwill of all the Nation, as a mark of our hope in the future. She has been built in fellowship among ourselves: may her life among great waters spread friendship among the Nations."
