which Address his Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously.—

Unto his Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's most dutiful and faithful subjects, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Cromarty, beg leave humbly to approach your Royal Highness to express our sorrow at the prolonged indisposition of your Royal Father, our most gracious Sovereign; but while we have thus, in the course of Providence, to deplore the suspension of regal authority in the person of his Majesty, we have to rejoice, that, since your Royal Highness has assumed the government; every act thereof has marked that firmness of conduct, and that discrimination of character, which assure us that the safety and prosperity of the empire are your primary concern, and that in your hands our invaluable rights and privileges, civil and sacred, will continue to be maintained.

We feel impelled in a particular manner to offer our sincere and sympathetic condolence to your Royal Highness on the late horrible assassination committed within the precincts of Parliament, on that upright and truly estimable person the Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, whose public and private virtues seemed to vie with each other, and whose loss to the nation as a statesman, in the present important crisis, must be severely felt. Assured that your Royal Highness will, during your temporary government, follow the manly and consistent example of your Royal Father, we earnestly pray that after, in the course of Providence, you assume the full exercise thereof, you may long reign over a free and happy people, and transmit unimpaired to your family our enviable constitution, both in church and state.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, at Cromarty, this 10th day of June 1812 years, by

DONALD MACKENZIE, Preses.
