

of elm with bark attached into, and along or across highways or by rail or water within, areas listed in the Schedule to that Order, which are the same as those specified in the Schedule to this Order. An exception permits such movement of an elm by an appointed officer for the purpose of destruction by fire pursuant to Articles 4(4) and 5(4) of this Order provided that the movement is restricted to a radius of five miles from the location of the elm and that in the course of such movement the elm is not moved from an area not listed in the Schedule to that Order into an area which is so listed.

If there are infected elm trees on any land, the occupier or other responsible person may be served with a notice by the local authority which may require the destruction of the whole or part of such trees and the taking of other specified steps to prevent the spread of the disease. If such a notice is not complied with the necessary work may be carried out by an appointed officer after giving the occupier prior notice, and the local authority may recover the cost from the person in default (Article 5). In addition, a person who fails to comply with such a notice, or who wilfully obstructs or who fails to give reasonable facilities to an appointed officer or person acting under his instructions, is guilty of an offence and may be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding £1,000 (an increase in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Justice Act 1982 from the previous maximum fine of £100 for a first offence and £200 for a subsequent offence) (Article 9).

For the purpose of carrying out his functions under the Order an appointed officer may, on entering land, be accompanied by persons acting under his instructions, and by equipment, and those persons, upon production of their authority if so required, may remain on the land, and may also re-enter, for the purpose of carrying out the work as directed by the appointed officer (Article 4(5)).

The Order will come into operation on 11th June 1984 and has been published as Statutory Instrument No. 687.

Copies may be purchased at £1.75 net direct from Her Majesty's Stationery Officer, at the addresses shown on the last page of this Gazette, or from any bookseller.
