PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

FROM FRIDAY, JUNE 24, TO TUESDAY, JUNE 28, 1814.

THE following Addresses have been presented to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses his Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Lanark.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's ever dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town-Council of the Burgh of Lanark, beg leave, in unison with the universal sentiment of the United Kingdom, to offer to your Royal Highness our heartfelt congratulations on the glorious and happy result of the arduous contest in which Great Britain has been so long and so nobly engaged.

At a period of imminent and unexampled danger, at home and abroad, when irreligion and anarchy equally menaced the moral and political world, this free and happy country voluntarily took up arms in defence of your venerable father, our beloved monarch,—of our invaluable constitution, in church and state,—and of every thing near and dear to us as men, and as members of civilized society.

Under the blessing of "Him by whom Kings reign, and Princes decree justice,"—the wise, steady, and magnanimous councils of your Royal Father, and of his ministers,—the unparalleled skill and bravery of his fleets and armies,—the zeal, alacrity and perseverance of the volunteer and militia forces, were not only the means of averting internal commotion, and of repelling foreign invasion, with all their concomitant horrors and atrocities, but by their powerful influence and operation, they have contributed to the salvation and deliverance, while they have excited the admiration, and acquired the gratitude of all Europe.

It is to us matter of peculiar congratulation, that the downfall of the Tyrant of France and of the world,—the restoration of the Bourbons to the throne of their ancestors,—of the ancient dynasties—of the legitimate governments,—of the liberty and independence of Europe, and of the blessings of peace and plenty, should all have been realised under the auspices of your Royal Highness, and by the prosecution of those measures which had been adopted and acted upon by your Royal Parent. Our commiseration for his sufferings is commensurate to our unfeigned veneration and affection for his person, endeared to the country and to us, by his public and private virtues, while our attachment to his government, maintained by your Royal Highness, is enhanced by the recollection of its wisdom, its energy, its perseverance, and its ultimate triumph.

While we embrace this opportunity of expressing our gratitude to those great and illustrious heroes who have vanquished all the enemies of our country by sea and by land, and have raised her naval and military renown to an unrivalled pitch of glory, we are led, at the same time, to express our regret for the loss, and to drop a tear of admiration over the memory of those virtuous and valiant men who have fallen in the service, and bled in the battles of their country. Their names will ever be dear, and their fame will for ever survive, to point out to future heroes the path of glory and the reward of patriotism.

The privations, the losses, and sacrifices of the United Kingdom, for these last twenty years of arduous struggle for herself and for mankind, have indeed been amply rewarded, and crowned with a consummation glorious beyond example, and beyond the most sanguine of our recent hopes.

As there is no period in the history of the world more eventful than that which has distinguished the Regency of your Royal Highness, neither is there any era more important, more glorious, nor more brilliant.

Your Royal Father combated, and contributed to destroy the hydra of infidelity and anarchy which alarmed and convulsed the nations. Divine Providence held it in reserve for your Royal Highness, in conjunction with your illustrious and magnanimous Allies, to overthrow the most odious tyranny that ever oppressed and insulted mankind,—to restore to kings and princes the legitimate rule and hereditary sceptres of their ancestors,—and to the nations, freedom, independence, and peace.

Your Royal Highness, in the short period of your

Regency, has already acquired enough of glory. We heartily pray, that you may now enjoy many years of happiness, amid the blessings of peace, prosperity, and plenty, and that you may live, as our aged Sovereign, your Father, has done, in the hearts and affections of a free, happy, and loyal people.

JOHN SIMPSON, Provost.

Council Chamber, Lanark, May 7, 1814.
[Transmitted by Sir T. Riddell, Bart. and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

Unto his Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble and dutiful Address of the Episcopal Clergy in Scotland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Bishops of the Episcopal Church in Scotland, beg leave humbly to approach the throne, and to offer to your Royal Highness the hearty congratulations of ourselves, and of all the clergy of our humble, though venerable church, on the glorious termination of that awful struggle in which the British empire has been so long engaged. It has been a struggle for every thing dear to civilized man,—for religion, liberty, and law, against atheism, despotism, and anarchy; and for the liberation of Europe from the most cruel oppression.

While we acknowledge with devout thankfulness, that this great deliverance hath been wrought by that omnipotent God, who "ruleth in the kingdoms of men, and giveth them to whomsoever he will," it affords us peculiar satisfaction to think, that the chief instruments employed to accomplish it, have been the wise and steady measures of his Majesty's councils so vigorously pursued by your Royal Highness; and the consummate skill of the commanders, and the prowess of the forces employed to carry these measures into effect. By the example which Britain thus exhibited to an admiring world, the other great powers of Europe were roused from what appeared to be a torpor almost unaccountable; and by the unanimity and vigour, which, in conjunction with your Royal Highness, these powers have since displayed in the common cause, the Tyrant, whose aim was to enslave all the surrounding nations, has been cast from his usurped throne, and through the moderation, combined with firmness, of the Allied Sovereigns, its ancient and legitimate monarchy has been restored to that oppressed country, in which the volcano first burst forth, which has so long shaken all Europe to its centre.

Your Royal Highness is too well acquainted with the history of the dominions which you were born to render happy, not to be aware, that while we sincerely rejoice, in common with our fellow subjects, at the prospect which these events afford of a durable peace to the long harassed nations, we find in our ancient and well known principles an additional ground of gratitude for the manner in which the arduous contest has been thus terminated. The measure of our joy would, indeed, be full, did we not, with due submission to that God "who ordereth all things for good to them that love and fear him," lament that our venerable and beloved Sovereign is still unable to enjoy the happiness which he would otherwise feel on the restoration of that peace which he so ardently desired, and on perceiving with what wisdom and vigour your Royal Highness hath, in his name and on his behalf, exercised the high authorities with which you are invested.

That the great God, "by whom Kings reign, and Princes decree justice," may be pleased, in his good appointed time, to restore his Majesty to your Royal Highness, to the rest of the Royal Family, and to his people, likewise his children; that he may afterwards call him, full of years, and rich in good works, from an earthly to a heavenly crown;—that your Royal Highness may then sway in your own right the sceptre of this empire with the same ability with which you have hitherto swayed it in the right of your Royal Father, and that the latest posterity may look back with pride, if pride be at all made for man, to the reigns of George the Third and George the Fourth, is the earnest prayer of, may it please your Royal Highness, his Majesty's most faithful and obedient subjects, the Bishops and Clergy of the Episcopal Church in Scotland.

Signed, at our several places of residence, by us, the Bishops, for ourselves, and for the Clergy of our communion.—June 4, 1814.

JOHN SKINNER, at Aberdeen; ANDREW MACFARLANE, in Inverness; ALEXANDER JOLLY, Fraserburgh; DANIEL SANDFORD, Edinburgh; PATRICK TORRY, Peterhead; GEORGE GLEIG, Stirling.

[Transmitted by the Rev. Dr Skinner, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of this United Kingdom.

The humble Address of the Keeper, Commissioners, and Society of Clerks to his Majesty's Signet in Scotland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Keeper, Commissioners, and Society of Clerks to his Majesty's Signet in Scotland, desire to unite with our fellow-subjects throughout the empire, in offering to your Royal Highness our cordial congratulations on occasion of those magnificent and unparalleled events, which, by the blessing of God, have terminated the calamities of Europe, and have opened a prospect of permanent repose, security, and happiness to the nations of the world.

We contemplate, with peculiar delight, the large share in the general joy which belongs to our country. It has been her glorious lot to withstand, with unshaken constancy, the oppressor of mankind; and, while many an ancient dynasty was overthrown, to preserve her throne and her altars from all the storms which have assailed them. It has been reserved for Britain to evince what may be achieved by genuine patriotism, and how vain must be every attempt to subdue a nation which knows how to prize liberty, and how to defend it.

The fortitude, with which our countrymen have endured the sufferings and privations incident to so protracted and tremendous a contest, is scarcely less honourable to the national character, than the triumphs of our arms; and the example of Britain has taught the world how those calamities may be supported which are inflicted by injustice and oppression, and which are endured for our country.

Of all these efforts and sacrifices we are now to reap the fruits. It was by the example of Britain that the nations of the continent were at length animated to those exertions, which have been crowned by so glorious a result; and it is, under Providence, to Britain, that the grateful voice of every civilized nation now ascribes the deliverance of Europe. In their gratitude, we have the happiest assurance of the stability of that peace, which has been the end and aim of all our efforts.

We desire to offer to your Royal Highness the tribute of our most fervent thanks, for the wisdom and firmness with which your Royal Highness has conducted the late arduous contest to its close; and which have so happily combined, with the magnanimity and moderation of his Majesty's illustrious Allies, in producing the liberation of France, and the restitution of tranquillity throughout Europe.

That it may yet please the Father of Mercies to restore our beloved and revered Sovereign to his people, and that your Royal Highness may be long preserved to walk in his steps, and, like him, to enjoy the most precious reward of a Sovereign's virtue, in the affections of a free, a grateful, and a loyal people, is our most earnest prayer.

Signed, in name and by appointment of a general meeting of the Society of Clerks to his Majesty's Signet in Scotland, held at Edinburgh, this 27th day of May 1814.

HUGH WARRENDER, Deputy Keeper.
