Office for the Registry of Colonial Slaves,
 13, James-Street, Buckingham-Gate,
 London, 19th January 1820.

HIS Royal Highness the Prince Regent having been graciously pleased, in the name and on the behalf of his Majesty, to nominate and appoint me to be Registrar of Colonial Slaves, in conformity with an Act passed in the last Session of Parliament, (cap. 120), entitled, "An Act for establishing a Registry of Colonial Slaves in Great Britain, and for making further provision with respect to the removal of Slaves from British Colonies," I DO HEREBY GIVE NOTICE, that an Office for carrying into effect the purposes of my said appointment was opened on the 1st instant, at No. 13, James-Street, Westminster, near Buckingham Gate, where attendance is duly given for the dispatch of all business belonging to the said Office every day in the week, (except Sundays, and such Holidays as are kept at the Bank of England), from the hour of ten in the morning to the hour of four in the afternoon, as required by the said Act.

By the 7th section of the said Act it is directed, that the Registrar, his Clerks or Assistants, shall as often as required make searches concerning any Slave or Slaves that shall be registered or supposed to be registered in any of the books in the said Office, and shall also if required give certificates, under the hand of the said Registrar, as to the registration or non-registration of any such Slave or Slaves, with extracts when the same is or are found to be registered, of the name and description or names and descriptions thereof, and of the plantation or plantations, owner or owners, to whom the same is or are described to belong, and of any other particulars relating thereto which may be stated in the said registry. The fees to be paid for every such search, certificate, or extract (and which are to be carried to the public account) have been fixed by the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, and a schedule thereof is kept and hung for public information in the said Office, pursuant to the directions of the said Act.

By the 8th section of the said Act, it is further enacted, "that from and after the 1st day of January 1820, it shall not be lawful for any of his Majesty's subjects in this United Kingdom to purchase or to lend or advance any money, goods, or effects upon the security of any Slave or Slaves in any of his Majesty's colonies or foreign possessions, unless such Slave or Slaves shall appear by the return received therein to have been first duly registered in the said Office of the Registrar of Colonial Slaves; and that every sale, mortgage, and conveyance or assurance of, and every charge or other security upon any Slave or Slaves not so appearing to be registered, which at any time or times after the said 1st day of January 1820, shall be made or executed within this United Kingdom to or in trust for any his Majesty's subjects, shall be absolutely null and void, in respect of any such unregistered Slave or Slaves; and for this purpose no Slave or Slaves shall be deemed and taken to be duly registered, unless it shall appear that a return of such Slave or Slaves duly made by the owner or owners, or other persons in his or their behalf, in the manner and form required by law, in the colony in which such Slave or Slaves may reside, or a copy or abstract of such return, shall have been received in the Office of the said Registrar, from the colony in which such Slave or Slaves shall reside, within the four years next preceding the date of such sale, mortgage, conveyance, or assurance, charge or security as aforesaid."

And by the 9th section of the said Act it is further enacted, "that from and after the said 1st day of January 1820, no deed or instrument made or executed within this United Kingdom, whereby any Slave or Slaves in any of the said colonies shall be intended to be mortgaged, sold, charged, or in any manner transferred or conveyed, or any estate or interest therein created or raised, shall be good or valid in law; to pass or convey, charge or affect any such Slave or Slaves, unless the registered name and description, or names and descriptions of such Slave or Slaves, shall be duly set forth in such deed or instrument, or in some schedule thereupon indorsed or thereto annexed, according to the then latest registration or corrected registration of such Slave or Slaves in the said Office of the Registrar of Slaves."

THOMAS AMYOT, Registrar.
