CARLTON-HOUSE—August 6, 1822.

This day his Majesty proceeded in state from Carlton-House to the House of Peers, where he arrived at a quarter before two o'clock; and, having alighted from the state-coach, was received at the portico by the Great Officers of State and others, and proceeded to the robing-room in the customary manner, wearing a cap of estate adorned with jewels: the sword of state being borne by Field-Marshal his Grace the Duke of Wellington, K. G.

His Majesty was there robed; and having put on the imperial crown, the procession moved into the House in the usual order.

His Majesty being seated upon the Throne, the Great Officers of State and others standing on the right and left, Sir Thomas Tyrwhitt, Knt. Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, was sent with a message from his Majesty to the House of Commons, commanding their attendance in the House of Peers. The Commons being come thither accordingly, his Majesty was pleased to give his royal assent to

An act for applying certain monies therein mentioned for the service of the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty-two, and for further appropriating the supplies granted in this Session of Parliament.

An act to amend the general laws now in being for regulating turnpike-roads in that part of Great Britain called England.

An act to amend an act, of the first year of his present Majesty, for the relief of insolvent debtors in England.

An act to amend an act, passed in the first and second years of his Majesty's reign, for the relief of insolvent debtors in Ireland.

An act to enable ecclesiastical persons and others in Ireland to grant leases of tithes so as to bind their successors.

An act to confirm an agreement entered into between the Trustees of the Subscribers to the Gaelic Chapel and the Caledonian Asylum, and to indemnify the Asylum against certain covenants in an indenture of appointment and bargain and sale entered into by the said Asylum in favour of the said Trustees, and to vest in the Caledonian Asylum the fee-simple of the message and chapel described in the above indenture.

And one private bill:

After which his Majesty delivered the following most gracious Speech to both Houses of Parliament:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I cannot release you from your attendance in Parliament, without assuring you how sensible I am of the attention you have paid to the many important objects which have been brought before you in the course of this long and laborious Session.

I continue to receive from Foreign Powers the strongest assurances of their friendly disposition towards this country; and I have the satisfaction of believing, that the differences which had unfortunately arisen between the Court of St Petersburg and the Ottoman Porte are in such a train of adjustment as to afford a fair prospect that the peace of Europe will not be disturbed.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

I thank you for the supplies which you have granted me for the service of the present year, and for the wisdom you have manifested in availing yourselves of the first opportunity to reduce the interest of a part of the national debt, without the least infringement of parliamentary faith.

It is most gratifying to me that you should have been enabled, in consequence of this, and of other measures, to relieve my people from some of their burthens.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The distress which has for some months past pervaded a considerable portion of Ireland, arising principally from the failure of that crop on which the great body of the population depends for their subsistence, has deeply affected me.

The measures which you have adopted for the relief of the sufferers meet with my warmest approbation, and, seconded as they have been by the spontaneous and generous efforts of my people, they have most materially contributed to alleviate the pressure of this severe calamity.

I have the satisfaction of knowing that these exertions have been justly appreciated in Ireland; and I entertain a sincere belief, that the benevolence
