The humble Address of the Magistrates and Town-Council of the Royal Burgh of North Berwick.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Magistrates and Town-Council of the Royal Burgh of North Berwick, humbly beg leave to approach your Majesty with the most unfeigned sentiments of veneration for the laws and constitution of our country, and loyalty and attachment to your Majesty's person and government.

We feel deeply sensible of the numerous blessings our forefathers and ourselves have enjoyed under the paternal reigns of your Majesty's royal predecessors; and the various events which have occurred since your Majesty's accession to the throne enable us to look with confidence to their continuance.

We consider your Majesty's visit to the capital of your ancient kingdom of Scotland as an additional proof of the deep interest your Majesty takes in our welfare; and we are happy in the opportunity it affords the loyal inhabitants of this part of the united kingdom to testify that devotion which they have ever ardently felt, and which your Majesty has thus so graciously permitted them personally to manifest.

That the Almighty Disposer of all events may long preserve your Majesty for the happiness of those you govern, is the earnest prayer of we the Magistrates and Town-Council of North Berwick.

Signed in our name and presence.

JOHN DALRYMPLE, Chief Magistrate.

We humbly express our earnest hope and expectation, that the present instance of your Majesty's gracious condescension will strengthen still more the loyalty and love of your people to their King and happy constitution; and we offer up our earnest prayers to the King of Kings, that your Majesty may be long preserved to reign in the hearts of your subjects, and in the enjoyment of every blessing.

Signed in presence and by appointment of the Guild Incorporation of the City of Brechin, in general meeting assembled.

To the KING'S Most Gracious Majesty,

The humble Address of the Right Worshipful Master, Office-bearers, and Brethren of the Kelso Tweed Lodge.

May it please your Majesty.

We, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, anxious, in common with all ranks of our countrymen, on the occasion of your Majesty's visiting your ancient kingdom of Scotland, to express in the Royal Palace of your ancestors our unchangeable attachment to your royal person and government, do most humbly presume to congratulate your Majesty on this happy and auspicious event.

The condescension thus manifested by your Majesty, in gratifying with your presence the heartfelt wishes of every Scotsman, will not, like some transient gleam of momentary satisfaction, pass away with the present generation, but will descend to and be cherished by posterity as a lasting and proud memorial of the Sovereign of this mighty empire, in return for his mild and paternal government, receiving the spontaneous and sincere plaudits of a brave, a generous, and a loyal people.

That your Majesty may long reign in the best affections of your subjects, and continue to honour the ancient Order of Free Masonry in Scotland with your gracious patronage and protection, is, as subjects and as masons, the most earnest of all our wishes.

Signed by desire and in name of the Right

Worshipful Master, Office-bearers, and Brethren of the Kelso Tweed Lodge.

May it please your Majesty,

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Chairman, Directors, and Members of the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures of the City of Edinburgh, incorporated by royal charter, beg most humbly to approach your Majesty's throne with the most sincere and unfeigned congratulations on your Majesty's arrival in the metropolis of your ancient kingdom of Scotland.

The long space which has elapsed since Scotland was honoured by the presence of her Sovereign, has rendered your Majesty's most gracious visit peculiarly interesting to all classes of your subjects; and we humbly assure your Majesty, that we enter most deeply into those feelings of profound respect and gratitude which so auspicious an event is calculated to inspire.

It cannot fail to be most gratifying to a Sovereign of your benign disposition, to be assured that, during the reigns of your Majesty and of the illustrious predecessors of your royal House, the improvement in the commerce and manufactures of Scotland has been rapid and extensive, and that her mercantile marine now consists of numerous vessels trading to all places in the known world.

For a continuance of this prosperity, we look with confidence to the wisdom and firmness which have distinguished your Majesty's counsels; and we assure your Majesty, that as we have amply enjoyed the fruits of your mild yet energetic government, so shall we ever be found ready to support, to the utmost of our power, every measure which may tend to the security and splendour of your Majesty's throne.

That your Majesty may long reign over a grateful, a free, and a happy people, is the ardent prayer of your Majesty's most dutiful and most loyal subjects, the Chairman, Directors, and Members of the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures of the City of Edinburgh.

Under the wise rule and fostering care of your Majesty, and of your late royal Father, this part of your Majesty's dominions has attained a degree of civilization, wealth, good order, and felicity, with which our forefathers were unacquainted. Whilst we thankfully acknowledge these great benefits, we esteem it as no small mark of your Majesty's paternal regard and affection, that, by honouring Scotland with your royal presence, you have manifested a gracious desire to be personally known to the inhabitants of this ancient seat of your Majesty's illustrious progenitors, and have afforded them an
