HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle received on the 24th of November 1854, from Field-Marshal the Lord Raglan, G.C.B., a Despatch and its Enclosure, of which the following are Copies :—

*Before Sevastopol,
October 29, 1854.*

MY LORD DUKE,

I HAVE the honour to transmit to your Grace the copy of a letter from General Canrobert, forwarding a certificate of Brigadier-General Rose having been wounded in the face by the splinter of a shell when in attendance upon His Excellency in the trenches, and containing the expression of the estimation in which the Brigadier-General, his Aide-de-Camp Major the Honourable St. George Foley, and Major Claremont, are held by him and the officers with whom they are associated.

I can speak strongly in favour of these three officers; and I trust I may be permitted to avail myself of the present opportunity to state that the Commander Vico, who is attached to my Headquarters, is ever desirous of rendering me any service in his power, and by his zeal, activity, and intelligence, he is enabled to be of essential use in the communications which I am constantly obliged to have with the General-in-Chief and the officers of the French Etat-Major.

It would certainly be most gratifying to me if your Grace would be so kind as to bring under the notice of the Emperor of the French the high opinion I entertain of Commander Vico, and the advantage I derive from his assistance.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

*His Grace the Duke of Newcastle,

Permettez-moi d'ajouter à cette pièce officielle l'expression de la haute estime que cet officier-général, le Major Claremont et le Major Foley ont su se consilier parmi nous, par leur bravoure, la droiture de leur caractère, et les services qu'il nous rendent.

L'Armée Britannique ne saura't être représentée plus dignement auprès de son alliée.

Veuillez agréer, Mylord, l'expression de ma haute considération.

WAR-DEPARTMENT, February 7, 1855.

HIS Grace the Duke of Newcastle received last night a Despatch, of which the following is a Copy, addressed to His Grace by Field-Marshal the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

*Before Sevastopol,
January 23, 1855.*

MR LORD DUKE,

NOTHING has occurred of importance in our front; but the enemy has occasionally opened a fire upon our left attack, and Mr Spalding, a fine young man, an Acting Mate of Her Majesty's ship London, and in charge of the battery, was unfortunately killed by a round shot the day before yesterday.

His loss is deeply deplored. I enclose the Return of Casualties to the 21st instant.

The weather has become milder; but the country is still in a dreadful state from melted snow.

The Army is well supplied with warm clothing, and if the Commissariat were adequately provided with transport, and the huts could be at once brought up, there would be no other cause of suffering than the severity of a Crimean winter, and the duties imposed of carrying on a Siege in such a climate at this season of the year.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

THE following extract of a communication addressed to Henry B. Dewey, Esq. United States Consul at Para, Brazil, has been officially communicated to this office by the Department of State, and is published for the information of mariners:—

Extract from a communication addressed to the United States Consul at Para, by the Captain of the Port of the same, dated November 18th, 1854:—

Experience having proved that it is much more convenient that the signals heretofore made in the village of Salinas for the vessels which touch at that point to receive pilots should be made near the light-house, on account of being more distinctly seen from on board the vessels, the Captain of the Port has caused a flag-staff, forty (40) feet in height, to be placed at the distance of fifty-eight (58) fathoms east-north-east of the said light-house, where the signals will be made with seven (7) different flags, as follows:—

- No. 1. A red flag, with white swallow-tail.
2. A white flag, with a blue cross through it.
3. A flag, upper half red, lower half white.
4. A flag, all blue.
5. A flag, inner half white, outer half red.
6. A flag, blue and white chequered.
7. A flag, red and white chequered.

No. 1 signifies to vessels arriving at Salinas that a pilot is there, and a boat to take him on board.

No 2, that the pilot goes on board immediately.
No. 3, that the tide will not allow the pilot to embark.

No. 4, that the pilot will go on board before noon.
No. 5, that the pilot will go after noon.

No. 6, that the pilot will go on board before midnight.

No. 7, that the pilot will go on board after midnight.

When from on board the vessels a bonfire is seen in the village of Salinas, it is understood that there is a pilot and a boat to take him on board as soon as the tide will allow. When two bonfires are seen, it is a signal that there is a pilot but no boat to take him on board. When no bonfire is seen during the night in the village, the vessel having appeared during the day, it signifies that there is no pilot at the station.

Vessels which arrive off that station wishing a pilot, should hoist a red flag at either the fore or mainmast head, but never at the peak.

When on board the vessels it is known by the signals made on shore that the tide will not allow the pilot to go off, vessels not wishing to anchor in six or seven fathoms, keeping the light-house bearing south-east, should lie off and on, standing out during the flood, and in shore during the ebb tide.

Vessels being north-west from the light can receive pilots more promptly than in any other position. The pilots embark at high-water, which, at the full and change of the moon, is, on the coast, at thirty minutes past seven (7h. 30m.), and at the place where the vessel should anchor, fifteen minutes past eight o'clock (8h. 15m.)

For information between the village of Salinas and the light-house, two flags will be used at the said village; one of which is all white, and the other red with a white square in the centre.

The white flag hoisted on the staff in the village signifies that there is both pilot and boat.

The red flag with white square signifies that there is a pilot but no boat.

The two flags together are a signal that there is no pilot at the station.

Masters of vessels need pay no attention to these last named signals, as they are merely made for the information of the keeper of the light, who also has charge of the signals.

Para, November 23, 1854.

United States Consul.
