TUESDAY, JULY 31, 1855.

WAR-DEPARTMENT, July 30, 1855.

LORD PANMURE has this day received two Despatches and their Enclosures, of which the following are Copies, addressed to his Lordship by Lieutenant-General Simpson, Commanding Her Majesty's Forces in the East:—

*Before Sevastopol,
July 17, 1855.*

MY LORD,

I HAVE the honour to submit for your Lordship's information the accompanying letters from Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, 90th Regiment; the one referring to his personal services, and the other to those of a party of the 55th Regiment on the occasion of the capture of the Quarries in front of the Redan, on the night of the 7th ultimo.

With regard to Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell's own services, I think it right to inform your Lordship that I find, upon enquiry, that the charge of holding the Quarries on the night in question, and of repelling the repeated attacks of the enemy, was confided to that officer after he had led the assault, and was in fact a separate and detached command from that of Colonel Shirley, who acted as General of the day in the trenches of the right attack; the Despatch of the late Field-Marshal Lord Raglan has already shewn how admirably that duty was performed by the brave men who were under the immediate direction of Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell.

The Lieutenant-Colonel's letter, recording the good conduct of the party of the 55th Regiment, speaks for itself.

I have, &c.,
JAMES SIMPSON,
Lieutenant-General Commanding.

The Lord Panmure, &c., &c., &c.

Enclosure 1.

*Camp, Light Division,
July 13, 1855.*

SIR,

THE Despatch of the late lamented Field-Marshal Lord Raglan, of 9th June, mentions that I commanded the storming party on the Quarries on the evening of the 7th June. May I beg most respectfully that you will bring it to the notice of Lieutenant-General Simpson, commanding the Forces, that I not only had the honour of commanding the storming party, but that, having been twice wounded in the assault, I retained the sole and undivided command in the Quarries, not only of the original attacking force and supports, but of all reinforcements, during the whole night, until relieved at 7 A.M. on the 8th. The Despatches must have explained already that the enemy made several desperate efforts during the night to regain the works, and that on three occasions overpowering numbers succeeded in re-entering, but were, on all occasions, driven back at the point of the bayonet. The entire night was, indeed, one continued struggle for this position, the fatigue and anxiety of which I have never recovered from. When Lord Raglan's Despatch was completed, I have reason to suppose his Lordship had not received the details, as my own report to Colonel Shirley, General of the trenches, was unavoidably delayed in consequence of my wounds, and not being able to write. In justice to myself, conscious of having performed an important duty to the best of my ability, and successfully, I now respectfully submit this statement to the Commander of the Forces, with the hope that he may be pleased to have my services on this occasion mentioned and particularized. At present several officers have equal praise in the Despatch who were not in the Quarries at all.

I have, &c.,

ROB. CAMPBELL, Lieutenant-Colonel,
Commanding 90th Light Infantry.

*Lieutenant-Colonel Brownrigg,
Military Secretary, &c., &c., &c.,
Head-Quarters.*

Enclosure 2.

SIR,

Camp, July 10.

I HAVE the honour of forwarding the enclosed Letter for the consideration of the Lieutenant-General commanding the Forces; but I beg to remark, that in my report of the occurrences on the night of the 7th of June, I took care to mention the services of the 55th Regiment, which appear to have been overlooked in the late Field-Marshal's Despatch.

I have, &c.

H. SHIRLEY, Colonel, 88th Foot,
Commanding in the trenches on the night of 7th June.

*The Military Secretary,
Head-Quarters.*

Enclosure 3.

Before Sevastopol,

SIR,

July 8, 1855.

I BEG to draw your attention to the inadvertent omission in Lord Raglan's Despatch of the 9th June of any mention of the 55th Regiment as sharing in the attack and defence of the Quarries during the night of the 7th June. I did not mention the regiment in my Report, as they were not given over to me as part of the attacking party; but the officer commanding the party informs me that they, being originally told off as a working party, were directed by the Engineer (Captain Browne) to throw down their tools, and that they were moved by you as a support to Egerton's Rifle-pit, whence they moved to support the attacking party, and did good service in clearing the Russian trenches, and in the defence throughout the night, as their severe List of Killed and Wounded attest (53 out of 160); many of the former not being found until the flag of truce, when their bodies were found in the trenches they had gained.

The Officer in command of the party, Captain, now Major, Cure, reports that the gallant conduct of Lieutenant Stone, who was killed at the head of his men, charging the Russians in their trench, with the bayonet, and of Captain Elton, who, with a small body of men, formed a covering party on the right to those who were reversing the trench, is particularly deserving of mention, as is that also of Lieutenants Scott and Williams, who were most active in performing their duties.

Hoping that the Commander of the Forces may deem this statement sufficiently satisfactory to enable him to move in the subject.

I have, &c.,

ROB. CAMPBELL, Lieutenant-
Colonel, 90th Regiment, Commanding Assault.

*To Colonel Shirley, Commanding
2d Brigade, Light Division.*

Before Sevastopol,

July 17, 1855.

MY LORD,

I HAVE the honour to transmit herewith the Nominal and Numerical Return of Casualties in this Army, from the 13th to the 15th instant; also the Weekly Report of the Inspector-General of Hospitals, which will be most gratifying to your Lordship, as shewing a steady decrease in the number of cases of spasmodic cholera.

I have but little to report to your Lordship. Our siege operations are steadily progressing.

Last night, about eleven o'clock, a sortie was made by the enemy on the right of the French works, in front of the Mamelon; the cannonade and fire of musketry was exceedingly heavy, but I have not as yet been made acquainted with any particulars of the attack.

I regret to have to announce to your Lordship the death of Captain Rowland A. Fraser, of the 42d Highlanders, a very talented young officer, who was killed in the trenches of the right attack, last night, by the splinter of a shell.

I have, &c.,

JAMES SIMPSON,
Lieutenant-General Commanding.

The Lord Panmure, &c., &c., &c.

Enclosure 1.—Extract.

Head-Quarters, Camp before Sevastopol,

July 17, 1855.

SIR,

IN transmitting the Weekly State of Sick, I have much satisfaction in being able to report to you a continued improvement in the health of the Army.

There has been an increase of fever cases this week, but a marked decrease in both the frequency and severity of bowel affections.

I have, &c.,

JOHN HALL,
Inspector-General of Hospitals.

To Lieutenant-General Simpson, Commanding-in-Chief.
