Issued by Her Majesty's Command, February 6, 1858.

The Ladies who propose to attend Her Majesty's Drawing-Room at St James's Palace, are requested to bring with them two large cards, with their names clearly written thereon, one to be left with The Queen's Page in Attendance in the Corridor, and the other to be delivered to the Lord Chamberlain, who will announce the name to The Queen.

Any Lady who proposes to be presented to the Queen must leave at the Lord Chamberlain's Office, before twelve o'clock, two clear days before the Drawing-Room, a card, with her name written thereon, and with the name of the Lady by whom she is to be presented. It is Her Majesty's command that no presentations shall be made at the Drawing-Room, except in accordance with the above regulations.

It is particularly requested that in every case the names be very distinctly written upon the cards to be delivered to the Lord Chamberlain, in order that there may be no difficulty in announcing them to The Queen.

THE Surveyor-General of Western Australia has given notice that since the 1st of January 1858, a light has been established on Breaksea Island, at the entrance of King George Sound, on the south coast of Western Australia.

The light is a fixed white light, placed at an elevation of 384 feet above the sea at high water, illuminating all round the compass, and visible in clear weather from a distance of 25 miles seaward between Bald Head and Cape Vancouver, the foot of Mount Gardner, or the bearings E. by N. and S.W. $\frac{1}{4}$ W.

The illuminating apparatus is dioptric, or by lenses, of the third order.

The light tower is of iron, rising from the centre of the keeper's dwelling, and the whole 43 feet high. It stands on the summit of the Island 1200 yards within its eastern extremity, in lat. 35° 4' 18" S.; long. 118° 3' 20" East of Greenwich.

When approaching King George Sound from the westward, the mariner is cautioned that, although the light may be occasionally seen, it does not become fairly open until bearing N.E. $\frac{1}{4}$ N.; and it should not be steered for until bearing N.N.E. $\frac{3}{4}$ E., when the vessel will be to the eastward of the Maude and Vancouver reefs. The light also will be hidden to a vessel passing north of Michaelmas Island.

Fixed Light at Princess Royal Harbour.

Also, that from the same date, a harbour light has been exhibited from Point King, the northern bluff of the narrow entrance to Princess Royal Harbour, King George Sound,

This light is fixed, white, 37 feet above high water, and would be visible in clear weather, through the approaches to the harbour, from a distance of 10 miles.

The illuminating apparatus is of the fifth order.

The lighthouse is a small wooden square tower, 17 feet high, with the keeper's dwelling attached, and presents the appearance of a cottage. It stands on the edge of the point, W.N.W. $\frac{1}{4}$ W., $7\frac{1}{4}$ miles from Breaksea Island lighthouse, and in lat. 35° 2' 35" S., long. 117° 55' 12" East of Greenwich.

(No. 27.) AUSTRALIA.—BASS STRAIT.

Flashing Light on Cape Schanck.

INFORMATION has been received at the Admiralty that a lighthouse is in course of erection on Cape Schanck, the southern extremity of the peninsula separating Port Philip from Port Western, on the north shore of Bass Strait, south coast of Australia.

The light will be a fixed white light, varied by short eclipses, placed at an elevation of 328 feet above the sea, and should be visible in clear weather at a distance of 23 miles.

The light will probably be exhibited early in the year 1859, of which due notice will be given.

Fixed Light on Wilson Promontory.

Also, that a light will be established on Wilson Promontory, the southernmost point of the Australian continent, Bass Strait.

This light will be fixed, white, placed at 324 feet above the level of the sea, and should be visible from a distance of about 20 miles in clear weather.

It will probably be exhibited early in the year 1859, of which due notice will be given.

Rock off Curtis Island.

The English vessel Clarendon, on the 2d of December 1857, whilst in a heavy sea off the eastern side of Curtis Island, Bass Strait, at half tide, struck on a sunken rock, from which the highest part of Curtis Island bore W. by S., and the inner Sugar Loaf Rock S.W. by S., distant 3 miles. No soundings were taken, but it is said that the rock was seen and supposed to be about 15 yards in circumference, with 10 feet water over it.

Cape Frankland Rock, Flinders Island.

Captain Denham, of Her Majesty's surveying vessel Herald, has reported that the rock hitherto placed in the Admiralty charts at 2 miles to the westward of Cape Frankland, on the north-west side of Flinders Island, at the eastern entrance of Bass Strait, is found to be upwards of 4 miles in the same direction from the cape.

The rock, which is awash at half-tide, and shows 5 feet above low water, lies in lat. $39^{\circ} 52' 2''$ S; long. $147^{\circ} 41' 11''$ east of Greenwich, with Cape Frankland E. by N. easterly, $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles, and the hill (513 feet) on the north part of Hummock Island, S.E. $\frac{1}{2}$ S., nearly 11 miles. It is about 10 yards in diameter, steep to on the seaward side, but having a projection to the eastward for nearly one-third of a mile, with 5 and 6 fathoms over it, from the extremity of which the weed rises to within 2 fathoms of the surface.

Sister islands apparently open a sail's breadth of Flinders Island, bearing N.E., lead outside the rock; and Chappell Island Mount, its breadth open of Hummock Island, S. E. by S., leads through the fairway between the rock and Cape Frankland.
