DAY OF SALE FIXED.—UPSET PRICE, L.46,000.

To be Sold by Public Sale, within Messrs Cay & Black's Rooms, 65, George Street, Edinburgh, on Wednesday the 8th day of September next, at Two o'Clock Afternoon,

THE Estates of INVERSCADLE, STRONCHRIGAN, and other Lands, in the Parish of Kilmalie, and County of Argyle.

The Lands measure 46,882 imp. acres or thereby, all contiguous, extending along the shores of Lochs Linnhie and Lochail, and from the head of Lochail to the confines of Lochsheil, over a distance of not less than twenty miles. The gross rental is L.1,680, 12s.

This fine extent of country is separated from Fort-William and Banavie at the entrance of the Caledonian Canal by a narrow arm of the sea, and has direct communication by Steamboat with Glasgow, Oban, and Inverness; and by the overland route, via Balachulish, Glencoe, and the Black Mount, with Perth and Stirling; and with Glasgow, via Lochlomond. Its southern extremity is within four miles of Corran Ferry, whence along the whole Coast line to Prince Charles's Monument at Glenfinnan, there is a Carriage Road.

There are good Dwelling-Houses at Inverscadle and Stronchrigan, both on the seashore, the latter nearly opposite Fort-William; and both might at little cost be made genteel family residences, with suitable gardens, and arable land.

The surrounding scenery is grand and picturesque, unsurpassed by any in the West Highlands, and embraces the finest views of Bennevis and the Great Glen of Scotland.

All the Farms are moderately Let to substantial and well-doing tenants, and on the expiry of the current leases a considerable increase in rental may be counted on. There is an abundant supply of seaware; and the seashore affords many Eligible Sites for Feuing.

The Lochs and Arms of the sea afford great Yachting facilities, and there is a safe harbour at Camus-na-Gaul, opposite Fort-William, much frequented by ships passing through the Caledonian Canal. Fish of all kinds abound. Salmon frequent the shores, and the Rivers Scadle and Drumfern, in which there is also good trout fishing.

The Shootings are very extensive. There is a Shooting Lodge at Blaich, pleasantly situated on Locheilside, six miles from Stronchrigan House, and in the centre of the Moors. There is always abundance of deer on the grounds, which the hinds never forsake. No ground in the Highlands, not cleared of sheep, could afford better sport to the deer stalker. A Deer Forest might be easily formed, without great loss of sheep-rent, and much be yet done to preserve and increase the red deer.

The Grouse Ground, of many thousand acres, is well stocked, and, with a little attention to the destruction of vermin, the stock might be greatly increased. Black-game and partridges are numerous, and there is the usual supply of ptarmigan, snipe, woodcock, and wild-fowl.

The climate is proverbially mild, even in winter. The snow seldom remains for any time, except on the summits of the hills.

The Sale is carried through under the authority of the Court; and the Upset Price has been fixed at the very moderate amount of L.46,000, with the view of ensuring competition.

For farther particulars, and plans, apply to James Macgregor, Esq. Writer, Fort-William; or to Messrs Tods, Murray, & Jamieson, W.S., 66, Queen Street, Edinburgh, with whom are the title-deeds.
