Magdeburg, July 1. General Laudohn having been repuls'd with great Loss, in an Assault which he ventured to make upon Glatz the Night between the 17th and 18th, left but a small Number of Troops before that Place, and march'd in order to attack the Corps under the Command of General Fouquet. The latter, who was desirous of maintaining the Post at Landshut, from whence he had just dislodg'd the Generals Geisrugg and Jahnus, took all Measures immediately for making a good Defence. He was obliged, however, to send off Major General Ziethen with four Battalions and two Squadrons towards Frauenstein, in order to preserve a Communication with Schweidnitz, as well as Major General Grant, on the other Side, with some Cavalry; so that there were but few Generals left with him, and Part of his Corps, of which the Whole was already in itself but weak.

The 23d, at Two o'Clock in the Morning, General Laudohn, with all his Forces, attacked all the Redoubts which General Fouquet occupied near Landshut, and carried three of them, viz. those on the Heights of Mummel, Beuch, and Blassdorf, after a very vigorous Defence on the Part of the five Battalions that guarded them. Amongst others, one of Mosel's Battalions distinguished itself extremely on this Occasion.

General Fouquet, having then thrown himself into the two Redoubts, which he had still in his Possession, upon the Heights of Kirchberg and Galgenberg, was twice summoned on the Part of General Laudohn to surrender with his People, which he refused complying with. In consequence whereof, he was attacked with great Fury by the Enemy, who by their superior Force penetrated at last into the Redoubts, which had been defended till Six o'Clock. General Fouquet fell there into the Hands of the Enemy, after having received two Wounds; but Part of his Infantry, and almost all the Cavalry, made their Way, and got to Breslau.

Major General Ziethen likewise, upon the Approach of the Enemy, threw himself into Schweidnitz, with his four Battalions and two Squadrons, without the Loss of a single Man. This Affair, however unfortunate, cannot but do great Honour to General Fouquet, for having defended his Post with the utmost Bravery, though he had but a Handful of Men, opposed to an Army, which, as the Enemy themselves have declared, consisted of 50,000, and did not yield till after having occasioned as great a Loss, as they would have suffered by a Defeat in a pitched Battle. According to Accounts received from the Austrians themselves, they have had near 6000 Men killed in the Affair, and almost double that Number wounded; which is the more credible, as Marshal Daun has found himself obliged to detach five Regiments of Infantry and two of Cavalry from his own Army towards the County of Glatz, upon the News of this Action.

By Letters from Prince Henry's Head Quarters at Landsberg, upon the Wartha, of the 27th of June, we learn, that his Royal Highness having detached some some Troops towards Pomerania, Lieutenant-Colonel Loffow fell in with the Rear Guard of General Totleben there, consisting of Grenadiers and Cossacks, and killed upwards of Fifty of them, and made One Major, One Lieutenant, and One Hundred and Forty-eight Men Prisoners: He has also taken a great Number of Horses and Bread Waggons from the Enemy.

Extract of a Letter from Breslaw, doted 28 June, 1760. Exclusive of the Two small Corps, which were detached from that of General Fouquet, one under the Command of Major General Zeithen, and the other under that of Major General Grant, different Detachments of those who happily escaped on the 23d of June, are successively coming into this Capital, by forcing their Way through the Enemy: The Number consists of 2000 Foot, 150 Dragoons, and 500 Hussars, who have passed through the Towns of Jauer and Newarck, on their Way thither. The same Advices add, that it was reported, that a considerable Number of Burghers had been put to the Sword by the Austrians upon the taking of Landshut.

The Austrians have not attempted any Thing else since the Action of the 23d, but continue encamped near Schwartzwalde, where they are preparing for besieging Glatz in Form. In the mean While, it is affirmed from good Authority, that they have made a second Assault upon that Town, from whence they have been repulsed with great Lois.

From the King of Prussia's Camp at Gros-Dobritz in Saxony, July 1. We are informed, that his Majesty is to begin his March this Night, and that he intends making it by the Road that leads to Silesia.

Admiralty-Office, July 12, 1760.

The King having been pleased to appoint the following Gentlemen to be Officers in His Marine Forces, it is the Direction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that the Second Lieutenants, hereafter named, do immediately repair to this Office, where Commissions will be delivered to such of them as shall be approved of: After which, they are to repair to the respective Head Quarters of the Companies to which they belong, unless they are commanded elsewhere by their superior Officers.
