P R E S E N T,

The Lords of His Majesty's most Honourable Privy-Council.

WHEREAS the Time limited by His Majesty's Proclamation of the 15th of May last, "For giving Encouragement to Seamen and able bodied Landmen to enter themselves on board His Majesty's Ships of War; for granting Rewards for discovering such Seamen as shall conceal themselves; for pardoning such Seamen as have deserted and shall return into the Service; and also for taking up all stragling Seamen," hath been prolonged and extended to the 21st of this Instant June; — And whereas it is judged expedient for His Majesty's Service, that the same should be continued for some Time longer; — It is therefore hereby ordered in Council, that the said Time be prolonged and extended from the aforesaid 21st Day of this Instant June, to the 31st Day of July next; and that the Bounties and Rewards given and granted by His Majesty's aforementioned Proclamation, be continued to be paid until the said 31st Day of July next. — Whereof all Persons concerned are to take Notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

Magdeburg, July 8. According to the last Letters from Saxony, his Majesty began his March on the 2d Instant, at Two o'Clock in the Morning, with the greatest Part of his Army, directing it through Lusatia towards Silesia. The King took the Route of Camens, and on his Way dispersed several small Bodies of Austrians. A Body of his Army is left in the Camp at Meissen, under the Command of General Hulsen. Marshal Daun followed his Majesty with his whole Army on the 3d, at Six in the Evening, taking his Route by Bautzen. According to the last Letters from Breslau, which are dated the 2d Instant, General Laudohn, continued in his Camp at Freyburg, without having attempted any Thing since the Affair of the 23d of June. No Conjectures can yet be formed of his farther Designs.

The King's Troops have entirely driven the Russians out of Pomerania; and, in the Pursuit, have taken 120 Prisoners, amongst whom are two Officers. The main Body of the Russian Army continues to assemble at Posen.

Prince Ferdinand's Head Quarters at Saxenhausen, July 11. The French Army, under the Command of Marshal Broglie, quitted their Camp of Neustadt, the 8th Instant at Night, and marched towards Franckenberg; some Time after which, we received Advice, that M. de St. Germain was in Motion, and directed his March towards Brilon and Corbach. Our Army began its March likewise on the 8th, at Three o'Clock in the Afternoon, and arrived in the Morning of the 9th upon the Heights of Braunau, not far from Wildungen. The advanced Corps under the Command of the Hereditary Prince of Brunswick, was sent forwards from thence as far as Saxenhausen, after having been reinforced with some Battalions and Squadrons under Major General Griffin. The Army resumed its March on the 10th at Two o'Clock in the Morning: And the same Morning, the Hereditary Prince advanced from Saxenhausen towards Corbach, where he found the Enemy already formed: But, judging them to be not yet very numerous, and their whole Force against him not to exceed 10,000 Foot, and 17 Squadrons, he formed a Design of driving that Corps back; and thus an Engagement was brought on, and became extremely hot about Two o'Clock in the Afternoon. The Enemy being continually reinforced with fresh Troops, and having the Superiority of Numbers, and a large Artillery, the Prince found it not possible to dislodge them from their Post: And as there was no Necessity of maintaining that which he himself occupied, (our main Army being arrived at Saxenhausen) and it not being practicable for them to come up in Time to sustain the Hereditary Prince in his Post; Orders were sent him by Prince Ferdinand to rejoin the Army, Part of which was then formed. Accordingly, the Hereditary Prince made his Dispositions for a Retreat, which was attended with a little Confusion among some of our Battalions and Squadrons. The Enemy observing this, pressed very briskly upon our Troops, both with their Artillery and a large Body of Cavalry. Our Battalions would have suffered considerably hereby, had it not been for the Bravery of the Hereditary Prince, who putting himself at the Head of one of Bland's Squadrons, and of Howard's Regiment of Dragoons, charged the Enemy so furiously, as to enable our Infantry to make a safe Retreat. Fifteen Pieces of Cannon, however, fell into the Hands of the Enemy, which could not be carried off for Want of the Horses that were killed in the Action. Our Loss in Men, Killed, Wounded, and Prisoners, may amount to Five hundred. General Count Kielmansegge distinguished himself greatly in this Affair, as well
