

The London Gazette.

Published by Authority.

From Saturday January 24, to Tuesday January 27, 1761.

St. James's, January 27.

THE following Address of the Corporation and Borough of Hedon, has been presented to His Majesty by the Right Hon. the Lord Anson: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

May it please your Majesty,

YOUR Corporation, and Borough of Hedon, attentive to the Causes which are most sure to render a People truly great and happy, unite in the repeated Acclamations of Joy upon your Majesty's Accession to the Throne of these Realms.

We do with great Pleasure hear of your Majesty's Filial Love and Piety; Your Humanity and Respect to the different Orders of Men. These were Virtues conspicuous in the Manners of the Prince your Father, and are to us the certain Tokens of a good Heart. These natural and inbred Principles have been improved with Age, and you have, at proper Season, transplanted them into Life, that they may become the prevailing Maxims of your Government, and adorn the Annals of your Reign.

What may we not hope under the good Providence of God?

If we look back into Time, never did Prince ascend a Throne under Auspices more favourable. We love you for the Love we bore to your Royal Grandfather and Family; and make no doubt, from such your own personal good Qualities, of seeing that Love always supported by the Firmness of your Conduct, and Lenity of your Administration; for which his Memory will be Sacred to future Ages.

He has left to your Majesty's Care a People perhaps as generous, and valiant, as ever lived upon the Face of the Earth.

Your Fleets and Armies have conquered in all Quarters of the Globe. You are not only the King of Rivers and Lakes, but of Seas and Oceans, Nations and Languages.

May God protect your Majesty in the Government of them. May you long live to make us all happy under you. And may you ever receive the Blessings due from a free and grateful People.

Given under our Seal, this Nineteenth Day of January, in the Year of our Lord, One thousand seven hundred and sixty one.

The following Address of the Lord Lieutenant, Nobility, High Sheriff, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Norfolk, has been presented to His Majesty: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the Lord-Lieutenant, Nobility, High Sheriff, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Norfolk.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Lord-Lieutenant, Nobility, High Sheriff, Gentlemen and Freeholders of the County of Norfolk, filled with a due Sense of the many Blessings derived to us from your Majesty's Illustrious House, embrace this first Opportunity of a General Meeting of our County, to unite in professing our Sorrow for the Death of our late most gracious Sovereign; an Event, which your Majesty has piously declared to be a Loss to yourself, as well as your People.

But whilst we look back with a melancholy Admiration, at the long and glorious Reign of your Royal Grandfather, we have this solid Comfort in the Conclusion of it, that His Crown and Virtues are inherited by your Majesty; and that He lived to form that Union of our Hearts and Minds, with which we now congratulate your Majesty's happy Accession to the Throne.

Your Majesty's Birth in this Island; your Education under the Care and Example of your Royal Parents; your Maturity of Age before you felt the Weight of Government; your many conspicuous Virtues, and the Marks we have already received of your Majesty's Wisdom, and of your Affection for this your Native Country, are so many auspicious Prefages of a happy and glorious Reign, that we are bound in Loyalty to promise your Majesty every possible Instance of a dutiful and zealous Allegiance.

Our County has long been distinguished by its Loyalty; and the early Example of our Militia, which influenced other Counties, had the Honour to be known and approved by your Majesty: Our maritime Situation hath enabled us to exert the same Zeal; in contributing to strengthen your Majesty's Navy; and we acknowledge, with Gratitude, the Returns of Protection, which have been granted to our Trade.

Permit us, Sir, to assure your Majesty of our invariable Perseverance in the Principles which have recommended us to the Favour of your Royal Ancestors, and of our entire Confidence, that our Religion and Liberties were never more secure than they will be under your Majesty's Protection.

Upon these Principles and Motives we wish and pray, that your Majesty's Reign may be long, peaceable, and glorious; and that when your Majesty shall have provided, in Conjunction with your Allies, for the Tranquility of Europe, by giving Peace to your Enemies, your Majesty may enjoy the Fruits of it, in the uninterrupted Prosecution of such Measures as your Wisdom shall design, for perpetuating the Happiness of a free, loyal, and united People.

Dated at the Castle of Norwich, the Fourteenth Day of January, 1761.

The following Address of the High Sheriff, Nobility, Gentry and Clergy of the County of Leicester, has been presented to His Majesty by Sir Thomas Palmer, Bart. one of their Representatives in Parliament, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the High Sheriff, Nobility, Gentry and Clergy of the County of Leicester, beg Leave to condole with your Majesty upon the Demise of your Royal Grandfather, whose Lenity of Government had justly rendered him the Delight of his Subjects at home; and whose wise Conduct and Success made him the Terror of his Enemies abroad.

Permit us, likewise, Great Sir, to congratulate your Majesty on your peaceable Accession to the Throne of your Ancestors; an Event indeed of great Joy to every true Englishman; yet Hopes of greater Exultation, may the British Nation now conceive, whose Sovereign is pleased to glory in the Name of Briton, and esteem it a Felicity to be born in those Realms, educated in the Principles of that Religion, and in the Knowledge of the Laws under which he is so providentially called to govern and protect us.

A Reign