

fleet is fitting out with all speed, as well for the annoying the Trade of the Dutch in the Baltique, as for the transporting the necessary Succors into Pomeran. On the other hand, the Danes likewise continue their preparations for War, but leave us wholly in the dark, as to what they really intend. A great Magazine is providing at Gluckstadt, and to that end a very considerable quantity of Corn hath been already bought up: there are at present three Danish Men of War at Gluckstadt, on which this City has an ill eye. Here is a report that the Bishop of Munster hath passed the Weser, but we have Letters which say, that the 29th past, he was still with his Forces in the Countrey of the Count de Lippe.

Frankfort, Aug. 3. All the discourse here at present is, concerning the Actions that have for these dayes past happened between the French and the Germans in the Neighborhood of Strasbourg; some speak of a great many Men killed, and that the French have been forced to retreat towards their Bridge on the Rhine, what is certain, is, That Monsieur de Turenne General of the French Army, is killed, which alone is a very considerable loss to them; but as for the other particulars, we yet want them. The Duke of Lorraine, who after having passed the Moselle, advanced somewhat towards these parts, upon the News he received of the march of the Lunenburgh, Osna-brug and Munster Troops, is gone back towards that River, to join with them in the Siege of Treves, to which the Elector of Mayence, and the Elector of Treves, will likewise contribute by sending a certa innumber of Men, and especially the latter, who hath promised above thirty great pieces of Cannon for BATTERY.

Hague, August 6. The States of Holland are again separated, having fully concluded the affair they met about, in relation to the Suedes, with whom the States General seem very much dissatisfied for their severe proceedings against our Merchants, and is said that the War will be now carried on with more vigor against that Crown both by Sea and Land, than was at first intended.
The Men of War that are fitted out for the accompt of the Elector of Brandenburgh, are six or seven in number; they are equipped by private Merchants, and are intended, as is thought, to be employed in the Baltique. Several Regiments are drawing together about Grave, to form a Body of an Army under the conduct of Prince Maurice of Nassaw; the Spaniards we hear, assemble likewise 3 or 4000 Men about Leeuwe, and, its probable, they may join together, and act somewhere on the side of Liege, to give the French a diversion, Wednesday next being appointed for a general Thanksgiving for the late successes of the Elector of Brandenburgh upon the Suedes, the Brandenburgh Ministers make great preparations to conclude that day with Bonfires and Feasting.
On Friday last sailed out of the Texel, the Men of War that were there designed to Spain and Sicily, together with five East-India ships outward bound; they are gone to Schoneveest on the Coast of Zealand, to expect there Lieutenant-Admiral de Ruyter with his ships from the Maese. We have not any thing of News from our Army in Flanders, our last Letters left it still encamped in the Neighborhood of Hall, and his Highness, as is said, resolved to enter now upon some considerable Action very suddenly; the Prince of Conde was gone towards
Duke of Luxemburgh, and sent his Son the Duke d' Enghien to Paris, to receive the Kings Orders, and to bring them after him. Our Advices from above, seem to say for certain, That Treves is besieged by the Confederate Troops; and that the Marechal de Crequi, who in those parts, is not in a posture to hinder them therein.

Amsterdam, Aug. 6. The Letters we receive from Liege bring us an account, that several Troops which were supposed to be gone towards Luxemburgh, and the Moselle, to join the Marechal de Crequi were returned to Maeffricht. They add, that the Confederate Troops had besieged Treves. The Men of War design-for Messina are sailed out of the Texel, towards Zealand, where they will expect Lieutenant Admiral de Ruyter from the Maese. From the Sound we have advice that the Suedish Capers have lately taken two Dutch Merchantmen in the Baltique, so that it is thought the States will appoint a Squadron of Men of War to Cruise in those Seas, to secure our Trade for the future.

London, Aug. 4. The Letters from France, Holland, and Flanders of Friday and Saturday last, not being as yet arrived, we still want a certain and particular relation of the Battel that hath lately been fought between the Germans and the French; the only account we as yet have of it, comes from France, by Letters of the seventh instant, newstile, and they speak in general only, viz, That the Count de Lorge having remained three days in his Camp near Saixbach after Monsieur de Turennes death, found himself obliged on the first instant through want of Forage to decamp; and in three dayes to march towards his Bridge over the Rhine at Altenhiem; that the next day, being the second, the Count de Lorge was advertised, that the Enemy appeared, and soon after discovered the whole Imperial Army marching in Battalia towards him; upon which, he likewise put his Troops in order, and expected the Germans; That about Ten in the morning, the Fight began, and lasted till Seven at Night, in which many Men were killed on both sides; That on the part of the French the Marquis de Pauvron was killed, the Chevalier de Vendosme, and the Marquis de la Ferte wounded, with three or four Bri-gadiers, and other Officers; That the next morning the Fight was renewed, and briskly maintained on both sides; That they did not yet know the particulars of the loss either Party had sustained; That they heard, the Count de Montecuculi, and the Count de Caprara were wounded, and the Duke de Bournonville killed; That the Count de Lorge had been slightly wounded; That the Chevalier du Pleffys was Prisoner; And that at the coming away of the Letters, the French Army was still on the other side of the Rhine, in a condition and resolution bravely to defend themselves, in case the Enemy should again attack them. This is the best and most sober Account we have as yet of this great Action; of which, the Letters we expect, will, without doubt, give us a full information.

This last Week was published Mr. Hugh Davis his Specimen and Propositions, for the Printing of a Literal and Practical Commentary, to be collected out of the best Annotators, Practical Divines and others, and Affixed in English to the Text of the Holy Scriptures. The substance of the said Specimen and Propositions having been delivered into the hands of divers Persons of Honour, Citizens and others, within these three Months last past. And now they (together with the Description of the so much commended Undertaking) are to be had at the house of James Chadwick Esq; in New Kings-street by Guildball, London: or else at the Coamberlames Office in the said Guildball.

These are to give notice to all Persons, That the Plate at Rewel Slade, in the County of Northampton, will be continued on the first Thursday of September, and will be worth about forty pound: But no price is to be set on the Horses; so that any one may put in his Horse, and not be forced to sell him, as formerly. The rest of the Articles are to stand as they were before.
