Dublin Castle, April 28.

THIS Day the House of Peers waited upon his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant with the following Address.

To his Excellency George Dunk, Earl of Halifax, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland,

The humble Address of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled.

May it please your Excellency,

WE the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled, beg Leave to offer our sincere Congratulations to your Excellency, upon the approaching happy Conclusion of this Session of Parliament; and we think ourselves at the same Time called upon to declare, that the Temper and Harmony with which all publick Business has been transacted, have been the natural Effects of the wise, upright and impartial Conduct, by which your Excellency's Administration has been so eminently distinguished.

We acknowledge it as a most endearing Instance of His Majesty's paternal Concern for His Subjects of Ireland, that He was graciously pleased to commit them to your Excellency's Care, at a Time which required a Person of superior Talents and Abilities to preside over us; which great Endowments, joined with your Excellency's inflexible Integrity of Mind, and disinterested Benevolence of Heart, have been and must ever be uniformly exerted, in maintaining the Honour and Service of the Crown, and in promoting the Peace, Welfare and Prosperity of the People.

We have a just and grateful Sense of His Majesty's Wisdom and Goodness, in providing for the Security of this Kingdom in this Time of common Danger; and we shall be always ready, to the utmost of our Power, to support His Majesty in the Prosecution of such Measures as He shall find necessary, for completing the great Ends which His Majesty has in View for the Peace, the Interests, and the Glory of His own Dominions, and the general Tranquility of all Europe.

It is with the most entire Confidence we rely on your Excellency's Prudence and Vigilance, which have been manifested on a late Occasion, in guarding against Appearances that might affect the Publick Peace; and by the wise and seasonable Exertion of your Power in Support of the Civil Magistracy, suppressing those criminal Gatherings of a rash and outrageous Populace.

Your Excellency's known Justice and Goodness can leave us no Room to doubt, that on your Return to the Royal Presence, you will make such a Representation to His Majesty of the Duty and Loyalty of His Protestant Subjects of Ireland, as will secure to them the Continuance of His Royal Favour and Protection; of which we cannot receive a stronger, nor more acceptable Proof, than His Majesty's continuing your Excellency in the Government of this Kingdom, and permitting your Return to a grateful People, whose Confidence you have so justly merited, and whose Affections you have so universally engaged.

To which Address his Excellency was pleased to give this Answer.

My Lords,

IT has, ever since my Entrance upon the Government of this Kingdom, been a principal Object of my Ambition, as well as a principal Part of my Duty, to recommend myself to your Lordships good Opinion, by early adopting, and by strictly adhering to, that Plan of Conduct, which I thought would be most beneficial to this Kingdom, and which I knew would be therefore most agreeable to your Lordships. The Unanimity of your Lordships Conduct in the Service of the Crown, during the Course of this Session, and the very favourable Sentiments you are pleased to express of me in this Address at the Close of it, have shown me, that my Expectations have not been disappointed. You may be assured, that the high Reward my Endeavours have met with in your Lordships Approbation will prove the strongest Incitement to continue, and, if possible, to increase my Zeal for every Thing which may tend to promote your Lordships Dignity, and the true Interests of this Kingdom.

Dublin Castle, April 29.

This Day the House of Commons waited upon the Lord Lieutenant with the following Address to his Excellency.

To his Excellency George Dunk, Earl of Halifax, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland.

The humble Address of the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeses, in Parliament assembled.

May it please your Excellency,

WE His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Commons of Ireland, in Parliament assembled, take this Opportunity to congratulate with your Excellency on the approaching happy Conclusion of this present Session of Parliament. Truly sensible of your Excellency's mild, prudent, and disinterested Administration, we return your Excellency our most sincere and grateful Acknowledgments for the Wisdom and Moderation of your Government, so invariably directed to support the Dignity of the Crown, and promote the true Interest of the People, which have happily produced among us that distinguished Unanimity, for which this Session of Parliament will be forever remarkable.

His Majesty's Paternal Care of this Kingdom has been particularly manifested by His committing the Government of it to your Excellency at this critical Conjunction, when your Excellency's consummate Knowledge, distinguished Integrity, and long Experience in Business, rendered your Assistance so necessary at those Councils, on which the Welfare and Happiness, not only of His Majesty's Dominions, but of all Europe, depend.

With Hearts full of Gratitude, we acknowledge that your Excellency has executed that great and important Trust reposed in you, to the intire Satisfaction of all His Majesty's Subjects of this Kingdom, by applying your Attention, constant Regards, and those great and uncommon Abilities, of which you are so happily possessed, to every Thing that might contribute to our Welfare and Prosperity.

Conscious how displeasing it is to an ingenuous Mind to receive even those Praises due to its Merit, we should (though with the greatest Reluctance) restrain ourselves upon this Occasion, if we did not at the same Time remember, that this is the only Testimony of our Regards, which your Excellency's unparalleled Disinterestedness will condescend to accept.

Your Excellency's Justice and Benignity have anticipated our warmest Wishes, and we are not now to request a favourable Representation of our Conduct, but to express our Gratitude for the important Service

Service already done this Country, by the Impression which your Excellency has made of our Duty, Zeal and Affection, upon the Mind of our most gracious Sovereign.

And we beseech your Excellency to accept of our most ardent and sincere Wishes, that you may long continue to preside over a People truly grateful for those Advantages they receive from your Administration; the confirming the Titles and quieting the Minds of Protestant Purchasers, have given new Strength and Stability to the Protestant Interest of this Kingdom.

We cannot sufficiently acknowledge the Royal Goodness that applies, in this Season of great and necessary Expence, such a considerable Part of the Public Treasure in relieving the Wants and preventing the Distresses of the lower Class of Tradesmen and Artificers of this Metropolis, by the Establishment of a Public Repository for Coals, which, by reducing the Price of that necessary Article, will encourage and assist the Manufactures, and relieve the Wants, and prevent the Distresses of our indigent Inhabitants, those constant Objects of your Excellency's affectionate Care and extensive Charity.

Accept then our unfeigned Gratitude, and permit us to congratulate your Excellency on the intire Accomplishment of your affectionate Wish, expressed from the Throne in the Beginning of this Session, of carrying with you into the Royal Presence, the good Opinion, the Affection, the Hearts of the People of Ireland.

And that thereupon his Excellency was pleased to return the Answer following.

Gentlemen,

I Return you my sincerest Thanks for this very kind and affectionate Address. And if I have found it difficult to express my Sense of the Honours I have received, as they were conferred, detached, and separate, in the Course of this Session, you will readily imagine, that I must be still more at a Loss, when, at the Close of it, I am to acknowledge them, collectively and together. The House of Commons will do me the Justice to believe, that, if the many distinguished Marks of their Regard have not been the most deserved, they will at least be the most faithfully remembered, and the most gratefully returned. Such Testimonies from any House of Commons would have been sufficiently honourable: But coming from this, they acquire a new additional Value: And I reflect with infinite Satisfaction, that it is to that very House of Commons, which have given more ample Proofs than any of their Predecessors of their Liberality and Affection to the Crown, that I have the good Fortune to be indebted for more Indulgence than has been shown by any preceding Parliament to any preceding Administration.

Dublin Castle, April 30.

This Day his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant went in State to the House of Peers, and being seated on the Throne with the usual Ceremony, his Excellency sent for the Commons, and gave the Royal Assent to the following Bills.

An Act for Licensing Hawkers and Pedlars, and for Encouragement of English Protestant Schools.

An Act for continuing and amending an Act, intituled, An Act for better regulating the Collection of His Majesty's Revenue, and for preventing Frauds therein; and for repealing an Act made the last Session of Parliament, intituled, An Act for continuing and amending several Laws heretofore made relating to His Majesty's Revenue, and for the more effectual preventing of Frauds in His Majesty's Customs and Excise, and the several Acts and Statutes which are mentioned in the said Act, and continued thereby.

An Act to enable Tenants for Life to make perpetual Leases of Grounds whereon to erect Publick Hospitals.

An Act to prevent the counterfeiting Gold and Silver Lace, and for settling and adjusting the Proportions of Fine Gold, Silver and Silk, and for the better making of Gold and Silver Thread.

An Act to prevent the excessive Price of Coals in the City of Dublin.

An Act to prevent Abuses committed by Justices of the Peace, acting under the Charters of Cities and Towns Corporate.

An Act for the Security of Protestant Purchasers.

An Act for Quieting the Possessions of Protestants deriving under Converts from the Popish Religion.

An Act for preventing Frauds and Abuses in the Vending, Preparing and Administring Drugs and Medicines.

An Act for altering and amending an Act of Parliament passed in the Seventh Year of the Reign of His late Majesty King George the Second, intituled, An Act for repairing the Road leading from the Bridge over the Bann-Water, commonly called the Bann-Bridge, in County of Down, to the Town of Belfast in the County of Antrim.

An Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors.

An Act for Reviving, Continuing and Amending several Temporary Statutes, and for other Purposes therein mentioned.

An Act for the more easy and equal assessing and apportioning all Money presented by the Grand Jury of each Assizes to be held for the City and the County of the City of Cork; and for putting the Coaches, Chaises, Chairs, and Sedan, that ply for Hire in the said City under the like Regulations for the Benefit of the Work-House of Cork as they are in Dublin; and also for the better regulating the Harbour of Cork.

An Act for building a Stone Bridge from the Quay opposite Prince's Street in the City of Cork, to Lavitt's Island, and a Stone Bridge from thence to the Red Abby Marsh, with a Draw Bridge or lifting Bridge of Wood in the Center of the latter, sufficient to let Vessels pass and repass; and also for supplying the said City with Water.

And to Eight private Bills.

And then his Excellency was pleased to make a Speech to both Houses of Parliament, which is as follows.

My Lords and Gentleman,

I Esteem it the peculiar Happiness of this Kingdom, and of Course the distinguished Honour of my Administration, that this Session of Parliament, which opened with such promising Appearances, has, both in its Progress, and in its Conclusion, far exceeded my just Expectations, and your most sanguine Professions.

That Unanimity in the Support of the Crown and in the Service of your Country, which, at the Opening of the Session, it was my Business to recommend, it is now become my Duty to applaud. And such has been the Activity of your Zeal, that scarce any other Employment, and no other Merit, has been left to me, but to recommend what you should do, and to thank you for it, when done. Nothing could be more honourable in the Practice; and nothing, I am persuaded, will be more useful in the Example, than this Intercourse of mutual Trust, of candid Dealing, and of favourable Opinion. And I indulge with infinite Satisfaction the pleasing Hope, that the happy Temper of the List, may communicate something of its Complexion and Tendency to every succeeding Session of this Parliament.

While His Majesty reflects with Pleasure, on the many solid and substantial Proofs of your Zeal for His Service, He is not inattentive to the unavoidable Expence, in which it has involved you. And He sees it with still greater Concern, from the Willingness and Alacrity with which you have engaged in it. And there is nothing, of which you may be more assured, than that His Majesty, from His Discontentment and His Justice, will always distinguish between your Zeal and your Ability; and that He will never measure, by your Chearfulness in giving, your Capacity to give. It may reasonably be presumed, that the unparalleled Successes, which His Majesty's Virtues have, through the Blessing of Providence, derived upon His Arms, will enable us hereafter to meet in Circumstances more favourable and more agreeable to us all. We shall then, it may be hoped, unite our common Endeavours in contracting those Plans of Expence, which it has been our Duty to enlarge; in applying our Thoughts, which are now occupied in the Defence, to the Improvement of this Kingdom; and in repairing, by the Security of a lasting and beneficial Peace, the Expence and Havock of this burthenfome and necessary War; by which your Manufactures have been already distressed, and your Protestant Strength so much weakened, which you must always remember to look up to, as your natural Bulwark and your sure Dependence.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

I have His Majesty's Commands again to thank you for the seasonable and ample Supplies which have been given; and to assure you, that, extensive as they are, their Value has been considerably augmented by the Cheerfulness and Unanimity with which they were granted. I have it likewise particularly in Command, to convey to you the grateful Sense His Majesty entertains of your liberal Desire, that the Appointments of His Representative in this Kingdom should be augmented, and the Satisfaction which He feels at your Approbation of my Conduct; and to express, in Terms as strong as possible, His Thanks for your Address, and His Pleasure at the Motives of it. And permit me, on this Occasion, once more to repeat the Sense, which I shall for ever entertain of that Instance of your Regard, so liberal in you, so acceptable to the Crown, and so honourable to my Administration.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I must with Concern observe, that, notwithstanding the exemplary Behaviour of all Ranks of People in this Metropolis, and throughout the greatest Part of this Kingdom, some distant Quarters of the Country have been unhappily disturbed with Tumults and Riots of the lower Sort of People. I have, on this Occasion, been reluctantly obliged to call out the Military Power, which is sometimes the necessary, but ought always to be the last Resource of Government. The Officers, ordered on that Service, have executed their Duty with Activity and Discretion. These Tumults are, I hope, wholly suppressed: Many of the Persons concerned in them are in Custody, and await the Punishment of their Offences. Others are fled from Justice, and seem to want only an Occasion of returning to their respective Habitations with Impunity.

By the Season of the Year, and by the Close of the Session, you will shortly be disengaged from the Weight of Publick Business; and I am satisfied, that the same Zeal for the Support of Government, the same Temper and Moderation, which have so eminently distinguished you in Parliament, will regulate your Conduct in your respective Countries. And I doubt not, that, by Justice and by Lenity, by your Influence as Men of Property, and by your Authority as Magistrates, you will reconcile the Minds of the People to Peace, Civility and Order; and perfect that lasting Reformation, in which the mere Execution of the Laws, without the Example of those who execute them, must always be defective.

That I have discharged the great Trust reposed in me by His Majesty, in some Degree to your Satisfaction; that every Branch of my Administration has not been displeasing to you, or useless to this Country, are Circumstances, which, as a Man, and as a Chief Governor, constitute my present Happiness, and must form the most solid Basis of my future Reputation. You know the Difficulties of my Situation, and you will make Allowance therefore for my Errors. Whatever may have been the Imperfections of my Conduct, you will always perceive much Private Regard for Individuals, and much Publick Affection for this Kingdom. These are Particulars, in which the greatest of my Predecessors have never surpassed, and the ablest of those who may succeed, can never go beyond me. I shall return into the Royal Presence with the deepest Impression of your Conduct, charged and loaded with Personal Obligation and with Publick Duty: And, if I have not altogether failed in the arduous Office of a Representative of His Majesty, I shall not, I hope, be found deficient in the easy and acceptable Task of representing to the most gracious and best of Sovereigns, that unbounded Confidence, Zeal and Loyalty, which is justly intitled you to be ranked amongst the most dutiful and affectionate of His Subjects.

And then the Lord Chancellor declared, that it was his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Pleasure, That this Parliament be prorogued to Tuesday the Twenty-ninth Day of June next; and the Parliament was accordingly prorogued to Tuesday the Twenty-ninth Day of June next.
