The following Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of the Burgh of Fortrose, has been presented to His Majesty by Sir Alexander Grant, Bart. their Representative in Parliament, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of the Burgh of Fortrose, in Council assembled.

Most gracious Sovereign,

Though their great Distance from the Royal Residence does not permit them to embrace the returning happy Occasions of approaching the Throne so early as many other Communities, your Majesty's most loyal and most dutiful Subjects, the Magistrates and Town Council of Fortrose, yielding to none of their Fellow-Subjects in the most affectionate and zealous Attachment to the best of Kings, humbly beg Leave to present to your Majesty, (by the Hands of Sir Alexander Grant, Bart. Provost of this Burgh) our warmest and most dutiful Congratulations on the Birth of the Prince of Wales; an Event attended with peculiar Circumstances of most happy Omen.

The Morning Sun, which saw your Majesty and your Royal Consort blessed with this first Pledge of mutual Love, beheld, e'er Noon, the Treasures of your unprovoked Enemy carried in triumphant Procession through the Streets of your Capital; and next Day's Sun darted down his, almost, perpendicular Rays upon your Royal Standard, planted, by the persevering and united Ardor of your gallant Land and Sea Forces, on the Walls of the Havannah, A Conquest of the greatest Consequence to Britain, and which reflects the brightest Glory on your Majesty's Measures, Ministers, and Arms. May the same kind Providence continue to direct and prosper them, until your Majesty be fully enabled to give Peace, the most desirable Blessing, to a grateful People, and to the leading Nations.

May the Almighty preserve the Royal Infant, and watch over his tender Years: May he be trained up a lasting Blessing to your Majesty, to our amiable Queen, to the British Dominions, to the Protestant Interest, and to the Liberties of Mankind. And (when we, as Individuals, are no more) may he, with all the distinguished Virtues of his August Family, sway the Sceptre of his Ancestors, over a People great, free, and prosperous; and succeed to that truly steady affectionate Loyalty in the Hearts of his future Subjects, wherewith we glory in being,

Your Majesty's
most dutiful,
most faithful,

and most loyal Subjects,

The Magistrates and Town-Council of Fortrose. Subscribed in our Name, Presence, and by our Appointment, at Fortrose, the third Day of November, in the Year One thousand seven hundred and sixty-two.

Alex. Monfoun, Preses.
