Berlin, January 18. His Royal Highness Prince Henry of Prussia still continues here: He has been indisposed for some Days, but is now better.

Berlin, January 22. The Preparations for the ensuing Campaign are going on, as well here as in Saxony; though all the Letters from Leipzig mention, that it was believed the Conferences at Hubertsburg would end happily.

Baron Goltze, the late Prussian Minister to the Court of Russia, passed through this Place Yesterday, in his Way to Leipzig.

Prince Dolgoruky is said to be actually on the Road to relieve Prince Repnin, the Russian Minister at this Court.

Liege, the Night of the 25th of January. We are greatly alarmed by the Illness of our Prince. Last Night his Highness received the Sacrament, and all the Court were at Prayers in his Chapel the whole Night, where the Holy Sacrament was exposed. The Grand Vicar has ordered a solemn Mass to be said in all the Churches. The Chapter, which were assembled at Six this Morning, have named Four of the Members to be ready to seal up all the Effects in the Palace, in case it should be necessary.

His Distemper is a Gout, which they endeavour to fix in his Foot, as it seems inclined that Way.

We expect every Moment a very able Physician from Bonn.

Maastricht, January 26. This Day Mr. Cressener, who is appointed His Britannick Majesty's Minister to the Diet of Ratisbon, set out for that Place.

Hague, January 25. The British Troops began their March on Sunday last the 23d Instant, and the Head of them was to cross the Maese on Saturday the 29th.
