Naples; Sept. 17.

OUR new Viceroy, the Marquis de los Velez, has not yet taken upon him the Government, but, it's expected, he will in a day or two. The 13 instant, the 16 Spanish Men of War that have been so long here set Sail, as was given out, for Sardinia; but it was only to get their Men on board, and towards evening they returned again, and will, it's thought, expect here the arrival of Lieutenant-Admiral de Ruyser.

Warsaw, Sept. 18. Our Letters from Leopol, of the eighth instant, tell us, That Sultan Nuradin being returned to the Camp of Ibrahim Bassa, and the Cham of Tarrary, had caused a great consternation among the Turks and Tartars, at the ill success of an expedition from whence they had promised themselves so much advantage. But that upon fresh orders received from the Grand Signior, Ibrahim Bassa, and the Cham, marched with their whole Force towards Leopol, to repair the loss and dishonour that had hapned to sultan Nuradin: That they had sent out 2000 Fanishers, and a strong Body of Horse, to attack a small Castle near Brzeziani, in which were only 60 Poles, who so bravely behaved themselves, that they repulsed the Infidels with great loss; and thereby so far discouraged them, that they durst not proceed in the designed attempt upon the City of Brzeziani: and that the Ensign of the Crown who commanded there, had sent out a party of Horse, who fell upon the Rear of the Tartars, and killed many of them. The same Letters add, That 10000 Tartars had advanced very near to the City of Leopol, and that the King had sent out the Sieur Harkowniky, with a good Body of Horse against them; who, after a brisk engagement with them, forced them to quit the place of Battel and to leave a great number of dead behind them, though several brave Gentlemen were likewise killed on our side. Yesterday arrived an Express here from the Army, with the good news of the conjunction of the Forces of Lithuania with his Majesty.

Dantzick, Sept. 26. We have Letters from Warsaw, of the 21 instant, which inform us, that the Turks and Tartars leaving Sleskhow on their right, and Brzeziani on their left, were advanced to Pomezany, a Castle belonging to the King, in which were 40 Poles, who defended themselves a whole day, and in the night retired in safety with 1500 Women and Children who had fled thither; that the Turks having set fire to the said Castle, advanced to Podain, on which they had made three assaults in one day, but were still repulsed with great loss; and that the Troops of Lithuania, which are about 10000 men, having joyned his Majesty, he marched, the 15 instant, from his Camp at Leopol, directly towards Podain, with a resolution to relieve it, and to fight the Enemy, who are said to be in all near 200000 strong; his Majesty supplying the inequality of his Forces to theirs, with a reliance upon the Divine assistance, and with the great aids of his own courage and resolution.

Hamburgh, Oct. 4. The 30 past, was held a great Conference at Hannover, between the Princes of the House of Brunswick, where it's said, the Duke of Hannover farther declared himself in favor of the Confederates. From Bremen our last Letters told us, That Capestar holds out still; and some have reported, that two of the five Dutch Men of War that lay before it, and batter it, have been sunk by the Cannon of the Besieged, which meets with no great credit. The King of Denmark, though he is advanced with the main of his Army towards Pomeran, yet hath left several Troops, which block up Wismar; our last Letters from those parts said, that it had been resolved in a general Council of War, That the Danish, Brandenburgh and Imperial Troops commanded by General Cops, should at one and the same time attack the three Passes of Damgarten, Loitz, and Triebelsee, which are guarded by the Suedes; and that the first instant was the day appointed for the putting the same in execution, which makes us expect, with great impatience, to hear what the success hath been. The Suedish Fleet is not as yet at Sea.

Strasburgh, Oct. 1. The Prince of Conde having put his Troops into good quarters to refresh, and having received lately a reinforcement of 2000 Horse, and 3000 Foot, begins to be in a condition to make us fear his approach this way. Some will assure us, That his Army is already in as good posture as it was when it first came into the Field this Summer. It's said that his Highness has given orders for the making a Bridge over the Rhine near Brisac, as if he intended to pass it with the whole Army; which we can hardly believe, considering the advanced season. We still supply the Imperial Army with bread from hence.

Spire, Oct. 2. The Imperial Army continues to have its head-quarters at Langenkandel, without any appearance of removing from thence, till the Troops go into their Winter-quarters. The Count de Rabatta, who, we told you in our last, had passed the Rhine with a commanded party, returned again the same evening, by order of the Count de Montecuculi, who understood the report of a Body of French having passed the Rhine at Brisac to be a mistake. The Imperialists continue to work on the Fort, and other Fortifications they are raising at Lauterburg, which, we are told, will be in few dayes finished: and in the mean time General Montecuculi has put strong Garisons into Rhine-Zabern, Fokenum, and other places on this side the Rhine; and, we are told, that the Troops of the Circles are to be put into Brushal, and other places on the other side, by which means they purpose to keep Philipsburgh blocked up this Winter; in a day or two will be made a general exchange of Prisoners, as well on the one, as the other side.

Francfort, Octob. 3. The Campagne, on the part of the Imperialists, seems now at an end, and, we are confidently told, that General Montecuculi is preparing for his return to Vickna, and that he has sent before the Count Counr of Munfels, to give the Emperor an account of the present posture of the Army, which he will leave under the command of the Duke of Bourbonville, having first quartered his Troops in several places, as well on this side, as the other side of the Rhine, about Philipsburgh, to free the Palatinate this Winter from the incursions of that Garrison; and in order hereunto, Lauterburg on the Rhine is strongly fortifying, and great Garrisons have been already put into the Castle of St. Romie, Rhine-Zaberne, &c. We have advice, that the Troops of the Circle of the Upper Saxony, are on their march towards the Main, and that they have already passed through Smalkandel and Vaih.

Cologne, Oct. 4. The Troops of Lunenbourg and Oranaburg are still in this Diocess, and have at present their quarters about four Leagues from this City; it is thought when they remove from thence, they will pass into the Countrey of Fuliers. Our last Letters from Treves give us an account, That the young Duke of Lorrain was the 30 past with his Troops in the Countrey of the Prince Palatine of Rhinefelden, and that they had their quarters at Kirne; and from other hands we hear, That the Troops of Munster, and the Imperialists which were employed in the Siege of Treves, and have had since their quarters, of refreshment in the Eyffel, have passed the Moselle, and are marched to join the said Duke, who will then have a Body of 8 or 9000 Men. Our Letters from Spire and Francfort give us an account, that the Imperial Army is going into quarters about Philipsburgh, and that General Montecuculi is returning to Vienna; though some are of opinion, that when the Imperialists have finished the Fortifications they are making at Lauterburg, and other places, on both sides the Rhine, for the blocking up of Philipsburgh, that a considerable body will go and join the young Duke of Lorrain, to act on the side of Lorrain.

Brussels, Oct. 8. Our Army continues still in the same quarters we told you in our last, and as yet we cannot tell when it will remove from thence, though the Cavalry begin to find a scarcity of Forage near their Camp, and are forced to march almost three Leagues to fetch it. On Saturday last the Duke de Villa Hermosa commanded ten Companies of Dragoons, and four Troops of Horse, to march towards the Countrey of Waes, upon an apprehension, that the French intend to make another incursion on that side, to prevent which, those Troops are to remain for the guard of the passage of the Schelde. The Train of Artillery is still at Tillemont, though there is a discourse, as if for its greater security, it would come back to Louvain, there being not any appearance of employing such heavy Cannon this Campaign; for the winter-season comes on so fast, that all thoughts of a siege seems to be laid aside. The sixth instant, Count Stirum having under his command, seven Regiments of Dutch foot, and five of Lunenbourg horse, had his quarters within a League of our Camp, and yesterday the Prince of Orange went to visit those Troops. The sixth instant, likewise the French Army decamped from Sombrefe, and encamped again at Gembours, in a very advantageous ground, being there about a League nearer to our Army than they were before; and yesterday several Squadrons of the Enemies Horse appeared within sight of our Camp, which gave the Spaniards, who were nearest them, a hot alarm, but the French retired again without attempting any thing.

Brage, Oct. 9. Our Letters from Ghent of the seventh instant, give us an account, that the day before 5000 French of the Garrison of Andenarde passed the Schelde, not far from Ghent, and fell into the Countrey of Waes, which they continued to burn and ravage, till the following day towards noon, when they returned again, leaving that whole Countrey, in great confusion and consternation.

Offend, Octob. 9. This day our Greenland ships arrived, four in number, besides their Convoy of 18 Guns. They have in all taken but seven Whales.

Hain, Octob. 8. We are at present in great expectation of the Prince of Oranges sudden return hither, his Highnesses house is well here, as at Sosdijse, being to that end preparing, and the Yachts gone to Amwerp, that are to bring his Highness. It is said that the Dukes of Lunenburgh, have at the instance of the Confederates, consented that their Forces, which are now in the Diocess of Coeigne shall pass the Mensle; and this makes People talk again of the design upon Luge, and that the Prince will not return so suddenly as he might have once intended. Our Letters from Bremen advise, That the Brandenburghers which lie in the Holland ships before Carestadt, having lately landed about 400 Men, under the conduct of Colonel Coxe, the Suedes taking an opportunity when the ships were removed at some distance, by reason of bad weather, fell upon them, totally defeated them, and took many Prisoners. On the other hand, the Munsterians had taken Osterberg and Rodenburg, places of considerable strength, the latter of which the Bishop intended to make his residence, which hitherto has been at Fellinghausen. The Sieur Paas since his return from Spain, where he was Ambassador on the part of this State, hath been restored into the Magistracy of Rousterdam, though not without some opposition. Our Letters from Germany bring us little news, and in Asatia the Campaign seems to be at an end. The Imperial Army being dispersed into quarters, for the blocking up of Philipsburgh, upon the reiterated instances of the Elector Palatine. Here is at present much discourse of Peace.

Paris, Octob. 9. We have at present but little to advise from hence, the Armies as well in Flanders as in Asatia, not having of late entred upon any Action; the Prince of Cande having in the mean time had leisure to refresh his Troops, and receive several Recruits from Lorrain and Burgundy, will, it is believed, very suddenly quit his Camp at Kaßenholtz, and give the enemy some disturbance, who seem now to have no other design, than to block up Philipsburgh, and so to end the Campaign. The Court continues still at Verfailles; and as well there, as here in Town, People discourse much of Peace, though on what ground we cannot learn, farther than that, it is thought, the Parties concerned in the War, begin to incline to it.

Whitehall, Octob. 7. About four this morning, dyed at St. James, the young Princess, their Royal Highnesses Daughter, the Lady Catherine Laura, aged about nine months, to the great trouble of their Royal Highnesses, of their Majesties, and the whole Court.
