

Lunenburg, decamped from Wörringen with five Regiments of Horse and Foot, and went and lodged at Grimmelshausen, half a League from Nais; the 13 instant passed the Rhine at Angerport between Keyserwers and Duysburg, and hath since continued his march towards the Weser. Two Lunenburg Regiments, and the Troops of Osnabrugh and Wolfenbüttel, are still at Wörringen, where, it's said, they will remain, till the return of the Count de Lippe with the Lunenburg Cavalry, which not long since joined the Prince of Oranges Army. The ninth instant, the Marquis de Grana arrived from the Imperial Army at Bon, the 12 he came hither, and yesterday he went to visit the Duke of Holstein, Mareschal de Camp of the Lunenburg Troops at his quarters at Wörringen.

Brussels, Octob. 15. Our Army continues in its old quarters, but, according to our last advices from thence, his Highness intended to decamp as this day. On Friday last, his Excellency the Duke de Villa Hermosa went out with a party of Horse, and from a little Hill took an account of the Enemies Army, which, according to their calculation, consisted in about 30000 Men. Yesterday 3 Dutch Regiments of Foot, part of those Troops that were sent under the command of the Rhingrave towards Tillemont, passed by Malines, on their way towards the Country of Waes, to secure it for the future against the incursions of the French, though, it's said, that those Inhabitants have made a private agreement with the French to pay them Contributions. From Liege they write, that the French continue to fortifie the Cittadel, and have caused all the houses that stood near it to be pulled down. Our Letters from Germany bring us not any thing new.

Ditto, Octob. 18. The 15 instant, about eight in the morning, our Army decamped from Hannut and Orp le Grand, and marched towards Warcm; about Noon, the French appeared in their Rear, with design, as was thought, to attack it: upon which, the Prince of Orange drew his Army up in Battalia, in a large Plain, to give the Enemy the opportunity of a Battel, in case they desired it, and continued some time in that posture; but the Duke of Luxemburgh (for he himself was advanced with 10000 Horse to observe our march) retiring again, our Army continued its march, and lodged that night at Warcm, where his Highness took his leave of the Duke de Villa Hermosa, leaving the command of the Dutch Troops to the Count of Waldeck, under the said Duke, and parted towards Louvain. The same night the French Army came into the quarters we had quitted at Orp le Grand. The 16, our Army marched again, and encamped near St. Trou; and the Letters which came from thence yesterday, say, that they were then marching towards Leeuwe, where his Excellency intended to pass the River, and take his quarters between Leeuwe and Diest, being an enclosed Country, and where there is good Forage; and, it's believed, the Army will rest there for some dayes, till the Winter-quarters are settled. It is said that the Duke of Luxemburgh is likewise retiring with his Army towards Charleroy, and, it seems, all parties are now disposed to go into Winter-quarters.

Ditto, Octob. 22. Our Army is now separated, and going into Winter quarters; most of the Dutch Regiments have passed the River at Diest with the Artillery, and continue their march towards Holland; the rest of the Dutch Troops will take their quarters about Malines, till the French are wholly retired out of these Provinces. The Spanish Troops are likewise going into quarters, and we expect our Governor the Duke de Villa Hermosa here in a day or two. We have Letters from Strasbourg of the 14, and from Spire of the 15, but they tell us not any news; the Prince of Condé continuing at Kastenholtz, and the Imperial Army at Ofsenbach, where General Montecuculi was taken very ill of the Gour. The French Army marches back towards Charleroy.

Anwerp, Octob. 18. The 15 instant, the French made another incursion into the Country of Waes, where they burnt several houses, and then retired again. The 16, about Noon, arrived here his Highness the Prince of Orange, who that morning came from Leeuwe; and, the Tide then serving, his Highness went on board his Yacht, without making any stay here, or receiving any Compliments, farther than the salute of the Guns at the Caille, and the other Forts; his Highnesses Guards marched by Land towards Bergen-op-zoom. The Armies, we hear, are in the mean time retiring into their Winter-quarters.

Amsterdam, Octob. 18. From Enckhuyzen we have advice, that the Capers of Dunkirk have taken above 40 of our Busses, which they freed again for 1200 Guilders, with permission to continue to fish three weeks.

Hague, Octob. 18. The 17 instant, we received advice that the Prince of Orange had two dayes before left the Army under the command of the Duke de Villa Hermosa at Warcm, and was on his return hither; and this day came hither some of his Highnesses Domesticks, who tell us, that yesterday in the evening his Highness arrived at his house at Soestdike, not far from hence: upon which, Prince Maurice of Nassau, the Prince of Conland, the Heer Odyke, and several other persons of quality, are gone to pay their Respects to his Highness there, who is expected here on Monday or Tuesday next; and will be received by the Burgers in Arms, and with other extraordinary Solemnities. We are told, that on Saturday last was signed a new Treaty between this State, and the Bishop of Munster, which is to be offensive and defensive during this War, and defensive only after the same shall be ended, and by which the Bishop is obliged to assist this State with 3000 Men, besides the 9000 he is to furnish the Emperour. Monsieur Passy, late Ambassador on the part of this State at Madrid, is re-established in the place he had in the Magistracy of Rotterdam.

Ditto, Octob. 22. The Prince of Orange remains at his house at Soestdike: in the mean time orders are given for the Burgers to be ready to appear in Arms, upon the ringing of a Bell, to receive his Highness. The Letters from Bremen of the 19 instant, arrived this afternoon, give us an account, that the 16 instant, Buckhorde was surrendered to the Confederates, upon conditions, that the Garison should march out with Bag and Baggage, &c. to Stade, which place it like to be next besieged, though there is said to be a Garison in it of near 5000 men. From Hamburg, of the 18, they write, that the Elector of Brandenburgh had taken Wohn by storm, as likewise Kympan, in Pomerania, the latter being a House or Castle belonging to Queen Christina. The King of Denmark is still before Bemgarthen, and the Imperial and some Brandenburgh Troops before Dennum.

Witichalk, Octob. 15. This afternoon his Grace the Duke of Albemarle was sworn of His Majesties most Honourable Privy Council, and took his place at the Board accordingly.
