From on board the Henrietta, Sept. 12. before Tripoli.

THE 28 past, the Assistance chased a Londra ashore, and sent his Boar next morning to burn her, and though the *Moor*s had before sunk her, and that she was almost full of water, yet they set fire to her: but a great many Horse and Foot coming from Tripoli, they obliged the Boat to retire, and put out the fire: but two days after, Sir John Warborough sent his Boats, who broke the Bark up, and brought away two or three Boats Lading of Wood for firing. At the same time the Assistance forced ashore another Bark laden with Corn from Gerby, where she broke in pieces. The eighth instant, the Henrietta, Assistance, and Newcastle, being about 2 Leagues to the Westward of Tripoli, and a great Fog and calm weather, after Sun-rising we espied two of their Men of War towing out of the Port, to whom we presently gave chase, as we continued to do all day, but in the night we lost them: had we had a gale of wind, as here we are seldom without, or had the wind veered two or three points more Easterly, these ships would hardly have escaped us. The Tripolins are fitting out several other Men of War.

Naples, Octob. 1. Saturday last the Prince of Montesarchio sailed with 14 Men of War, and two Fireships; and all Sunday we had sight of the Fleet above the Isle of Hobia. The general discourse is, That the Prince of Montesarchio is gone with these ships to join Lieurenant Admiral de Ruyster, who is coming into these Seas with a Squadron of Dutch Men of War. From Milazzo we have advice, That the Viceroy of Sicily hath caused the late Governor of Augusta, and the Castellain of the Tower d'Avila to be imprisoned, and that the latter was sentenced to be beheaded.

Warsaw, Octob. 12. The good news we had of the great Victory obtained by the King of Poland against the Turks, is not confirmed, it appearing to be onely parties, which in several rencounters have had some advantages upon those Infidels; and as for the retreat of the Turks towards Trembowla, our Letters now tell us, that it was onely with design to attack that place, and that though the King had followed them with his Army, yet that he had not thought fit to hazard a Battel with them, his Forces being so unequal to theirs, but that he had posted himself very advantageously, and observed the Enemy very narrowly, so make use of any advantage since might offer him; and that in the mean time, his Majesty was endeavouring to put some fresh Troops into Trembowla, but had not been able to effect it: our last Letters from Leppol likewise told us, of a design of the Enemy upon Cytkow, that had been discovered; so that it appears, they are more eager in this War than was thought.

Vienna, Octob. 15. Between three and four a clock this morning, her Imperial Majesty was brought to Bed of a young Princeess, which was immediately Christened by the Popes Nuncio in this Court, by the names of Maria, Joseph, Clementia, Anna, Gabrielle, Anthonia, Francisca, Theresia, Eva, Placidia. The ninth instant, arrived here a Courier from Graz in Stiria, with the news of the death of the Count of Frankmandorf, Governor of that Province. And on Sunday last, arrived a Courier likewise from Adriantople, who was dispatched thither in June last, he brought Letters with him, which give fresh assurances of the friendship and good correspondence the Grand Signior resolves to maintain with this Court; From Presburg they write, that the Garison of Newhusel had burnt three Imperial Villages near Freyssuel, and carried away 80 of the Inhabitants Prisoners.

Offenbath, Octob. 18. General Montecuculi continues to have his quarters here, in expectation of the return of Count Mansfeldt with the Emperors orders from Vienna. Yesterday arrived here an Officer, with the Order of the Golden Fleece, for the Duke of Bourneville, which was this day presented to him, by the General Montecuculi, with as much solemnity, as his indisposition would permit, his Excellency being ill of the Gout. His Excellency has put a strong Garison into Brussal, on the other side of the Rhine.

Strasbourg, Octob. 18. The Prince of Conde does not as yet stir from his quarters at Kastholtz, nor, as is thought, will not, till the Imperial Army hath passed the Rhine. There are at present with his Highness; Deputes from the 13 suiffe Cantons, though we know not their business. His Highness had intended to have sent a considerable reinforcement to the Marschal de Kochesfort, but understanding, that the Duke of Lorraine is retired from the Saar towards Meffenheym, the Troops that were ordered to march, are countermanded. The French fortifie again Saverne and Hagenau.

Hamburgh, Octob. 22. The Danish and Brandenburgh Forces in Pomeran, have gained the strong Passes of Demgärten, Loitz, &c. of which we have from the Elector of Brandenburgh, Camp these particulars, viz. That on the 14 Instant, his Electoral Highness came with his Army and Artillery to Gutzkow on the River Peene; which was a Pass guarded by the Suedes, who were lodged on this side the River in a strong Fort situate in the middle of a Moras, and on the other side had raised divers Batteries on a Hill, and posted near them several Squadrons of Horse, to hinder the Brandenburghs passing the River. The 15, early in the morning, the Brandenburghs had planted their Cannon against the said Fort, and begun to fire very furiously upon it, as they continued to do all that day, the Suedes answering them as warmly in the same kind; but the Cannon not doing sufficient execution; the Brandenburghs shot several Fire-balls into the Fort, which had the effect they aimed at, in setting fire to the house that was in it for the lodging the Soldiers, and in which was most of their Stores and provisions: whereupon the Suedes began to quit the said Fort, and by the favor of their Cavalry that stood on the other side of the River, made good their retreat towards Gripwald and Anclam, and the Brandenburgh possesse possessed themselves of the said Fort, and consequently became Masters of that Pass; the same day, the Lieutenant-General Gortzen, and the Lieutenant-Colonel Grubkow, being commanded out with two strong Parties, took the Pass at Stolpis, and that at Faram, which after some resistance the Suedes likewise quitted. Upon which, the King of Denmark likewise resolved to attack the 17 instant Demgarien, before which, he had layen with his Forces since the sixth instant, and accordingly all things were prepared for an assault; but the night before, the Suedes quitted it, fearing, it seems, lest the Elector of Brandenburgh, who, they understood, had passed the Peene, should come upon them on the other side, and so they be inclosed between the two Armies; the Suedes left behind them four iron Guns, and a good quantity of all sorts of Provisions: and, it's said, that the Forts and Retrenchments which they had raised for the defence of this Pass, were so strong and situate a-midd of a Morass, that it would have been a very difficult thing to have forced them. The Suedes have likewise quitted the Passes at Spankow and Tribsee, so that the whole Countrey of Pomeran lies now open to the Confederates, who march with all their Forces against the Suedes, they having, as we understand, formed a Camp near Stralsund, and fortified it. Besides these successes, a party of Brandenburgh have taken the Islands of Wollin and Usedom, which lie in the River, Oder near Stetin, by which means that City is in a manner blocked up.

Bremen, Octob. 23. Since the taking of Buckhoede, the gros of the Confederate Army is marched to Stade, which they besiege; 1500 Men at present attack Carelstat on the Weser; and four Regiments are marched to attack Bremersfurde, so that the Suedes are beset on all sides: that the Duke of Lunenburgh-Zell is suddenly expected with 6000 fresh Men in this Countrey; five hundred of his Men are put into Buckhoede. This afternoon we receive advice, that the besieged in Stade make a good defence, but that the Confederates, by means of four Men of War, have taken the Fort, which the Suedes had on the Swinge, where it falls into the Elbe; it's said, that they were Danish Men of War, though others roll us, that they were four of those who had been before Carelstat.

Brussels, Octob. 25. Our Army continues quartered between Leeuw and Diest, though it's said that some Dutch Regiments are marched homeward. Our Governor General, the Duke de Villa Hermosa, remains with the Army, which will keep together in that quarter, where they now are, till the French are removed farther off; at present they are encamped at Fleyers Abbey, though, it's thought, the weather will quickly oblige them to look after Winter-quarters. We had two days since a report, as if some French Troops had been sent out to attack Charlemon, but it is not confirmed. It is said, that the Lunenburgh Troops, which are at present in the Diocess of Cologne, will continue there this Winter, that they may be readier at hand the next Spring to pass the Meuse, and act for the service of these Provinces.

Hague, Octob. 25. This afternoon his Highness the Prince of Orange is expected here, from his house at Socsdike, and the 12 Companies of Burghers of this place have been in Arms since noon to receive him. From Bremen we have the confirmation of the taking of Buckhoede, by the Confederates, which was besieged the 15, and surrendered the 18; occasioned by the disagreement among the Burghers, as well as among the Soldiers, and especially the former, who refused to contribute any thing towards the defence of the place. The Confederates are now before Stade, where is a Garrison of Three thousand five hundred Men, besides the Burghers.

Amsterdam, Octob. 29. It was sine a clock at night, on Friday last, before his Highness arrived here (his Highness being willing to avoid the Publick Reception intended him) however, the Burghers continued in Arms, and received his Highness in the manner usual on such occasions, omitting nothing that might express their Respect and Affection to his Highness; who being come to his Court, the Burghers drey up in the Bysten-Hoff, and made three Discharges, while his Highness was at supper; so that it was midnight ere they separated. The next morning, his Highness received the Compliments of the several Colleges by their Deputies, &c. and afterwards went into the Assembly of the States General; who having heard the account his Highness summarily gave them of his proceedings with the Army this Summer, returned him their hearty thanks. The Letters we receive from Hamborgh, inform us of the great Successes of the Confederates against the Suedes in Pomeran, they having made themselves Masters of the several Passes into Pomeran which were guarded by the Suedes, so that that whole Countrey lies now open to the Confederates. In the Duchy of Bremen, the Confederates at present besiege Carelstadt, Bremersfurde and Stade.

Amsterdam, Octob. 29. The Letters we just now receive, of the 25 instant, from Hamborgh, tell us, That the Besieged in Stade, had made a Sally upon the Wassers with good success, having done considerable execution upon them; but that in Pomeran, the Suedes had likewise quitted the Passes at Loitz and Greiffenbagen. The same Letters tell us, That they had advice from Barr, of the 21, which spoke of a Battel fought between the Suedes and the Confederates the day before, near Stralsund, and that the former were worsted; but the Letters from Rostock, which are two dayes fresher, not knowing any thing thereof, we cannot give any credit to it.

Paris, Octob. 30. The Letters from Germany do not bring any thing of moment, the Armies continuing in the same station; in the mean time we here expect the Prince of Conde, as likewise the Marshall de Marmoucy will suddenly return hither. We have already told you, That the Assembly of the Parliament of Britany is removed from Rennes, because of the late Sedition there, to Vannes: and, it's said, that a farther mark of the Kings displeasure will be laid upon that City. From Thoyson they write, That the Men of War that lately arrived there from Messina, are re-fitting with all possible diligence, and that even some fresh ships will be added to them, that they may be able to rencounter with the Spanish and Dutch Men of War, who will act in conjunction.

Cadix, Octob. 3. We have news here from Tangier of some loss that Garrison hath lately sustained by the Moors, viz. that the Governor the Earl of Inchiquin, having, as is said, upon the advice he received of several Head of Cattel, that were feeding without any Guard, within five Miles of the Town, sent out on the 19 past, a party of 500 Foot, with some Horse, under the command of Sir Palmer Fairburn; they being advanced three or four Miles, on the sudden found themselves encompassed by a great number of Moors, upon which, Sir Palmer thought fit to retreat with his Men, which they did with great bravery, and in excellent order, with the loss of 10 or 12 Men only (besides those that had the Forlorn Hope, most of which, it's said were cut off) notwithstanding the great numbers of the Moors, who attacked them on all sides, though to the loss of many of them, which were killed. But all this is reported without any certainty, so that we must expect the confirmation hereof, as well as the farther particulars.
