Rome, Octob. 8.

THE Pope having made choice of three extraordinary Nuncio's to be sent to the Emperour, France, and to Spain, to advance in those Courts the work of the general Peace, in which the Pope, is received as Mediator by the Roman-Catholick Princes, engaged in the War. The Crowns have by their severall Ministers here declared their dislike of the choice made by the Pope, pretending, that they ought to have been first consulted, whether the person designed, was agreeable to the Court, to which he was to be sent: On Friday last, the Cardinal Landgrave who performs the function of the Ambassador here, on the part of the Emperour, had an Audience of the Pope, as since the Cardinal Nitard, Ambassador from Spain hath had; and we hear, they both made their complaints on this subject. Signior Bevilacqua is declared Patriarch of Alexandria. The Venetian Ambassador is preparing for his departure.

Naples, Octob. 3. Our Viceroy, the Marquis de los Velez being informed of six French Men of War, and severall Tartanes laden with Corn, which are on their way from Provence towards Messina, hath sent off a Felucca Express, to give the Prince of Montefarchio, General of the Armada advice thereof, that so he may endeavor to intercept them.

Venice, Octob. 12. From Zant we have advice, that a Vessel was arrived there, from the Coast of Barbary, and that the Master and Seamen reported, that they had met on the said Coast, a Portuguze Man of War, who had been separated by storm from the Armada, and afterwards had rencountred, and been engaged with three Corsairs of Argiers, of whom, the Portuguze after a sharp dispute did fairly rid himself, having done the Corsairs much damage. Several Merchants and others lately arrived from Adrianople know not sufficiently to speak of the extraordinary magnificence that was seen there, on the occasion of the circumcising the Grand Signiors son, and the marrying his daughters, the Bassa's and Governors of the most remote Provinces, having repaired thither, and attended there, with the greatest splendor they were capable of; they tell us, that the said solemnity being over, the Sultan had dismissed them, with orders to make all possible provision within their severall Governments, for the carrying on the War against Poland, which the Port is resolved to do with all vigor, except that Kingdom will submit to such terms of Peace, as shall be preferred it.

Madrid, Octob. 9. We have Letters from Cartagena, dated the 30 of May, which inform us, that the Gallions arrived there the 14 of April preceding, and that they still continued there, in expectation of the Silver from Panama: Some here pretend to have Letters from Cadix, advising the departure of Lieutenant-Admiral de Ruyter, with his Men of War from thence towards Barcelona; where, it's said, Don Juan of Austria will imbarke, in order to his passing to Naples. We have nothing new concerning the Portuguze Armada; our last advices said it was upon the Coast of Barbary, and that they had had very bad weather, in which their Capitana had been separated from the rest of the Fleet. The Government of Sardinia being void by the removal of the Marquis de los Velez, to that of Naples, severall pretenders appear at Court to it, but as yet her Majesty has not declared her self. We are told, that the Queen has lately written to the Marquis Astorgas, late Viceroy of Naples, to remove all apprehensions his sudden removal from that Government may have given him, of being fallen into her Majesties displeasure; so that it is believed the said Marquis will make all the haste he can hither.

Danzick, Octob. 19. The news of the great Victory obtained by the King of Poland over the Turks is now contradicted from all hands; and we very much fear, our next Letters will give us an account, that the Infidels have taken Trembowla, a considerable place, which, according to our last advice, they were come before, and resolved to attack; and which his Majesty cannot succeed without first engaging in a Battle, with the Enemies, which his Majesty considering the inequality of his Forces, and how much depends upon their preservation, will, it's believed, not think fit to hazard. What we have to hope is, that our neighbors observing the danger of the Kingdom of Poland is at present in, and especially the Moscovites, will hasten to the Kings assistance; who hitherto, have onely entertained his Majesty with fair promises, and been far from letting him enjoy the benefit of their friendship. The Queen remains with her Children at Leopold, to the great encouragement of the people in those parts, who are much assured by her Majesties presence among them.

Vienna, Octob. 13. We are not here without a very particular concern at the ill posture the affairs of our neighbors the Poles are at present in, their Enemies being so powerful, and they so weak, however we still hope the best. The Letters which the Courier that arrived three days since, brought from the Port, are full of assurances of friendship and good correspondence, and that the Grand Signior will not shew the least favor or countenance to the Rebels of Hungary. The Emperour hath lately received Letters from General Cop, who commands his Troops that act against the Suedes, in which, that General gives his Imperial Majesty an account, of the fair prospect they have of a good issue of their designs upon the Suedes, who, it's said, have not in Pomeran above 10000 Men at most. Several Imperial Regiments will winter towards the Frontiers of Bavaria, to have an eye upon that Elector, of whom, this Court cannot forbear having a jealousy that he favors the French, even beyond what the terms of his Neutrality may demand of him. We are told, that the Emperour has sent orders to General Montecuculi to continue with the Army, till the French be out of a posture of attempting any thing in Germany this Campaigne.

Berlin, Octob. 20. This last week severall Troops are marched out from hence, and with them, the Prince of Anhalt, who is to command a separate Body of 8 or 9000 Men in Achter Pomeran. Three days since 1000 Foot, and 600 Dragoons of the Circle of Saxony passed by here, to go and join our Electors Army; which, together, gether, with the Danish and Imperial Troops, advanced towards the Suedes, so that we are in a continual expectation of hearing of some farther action.

Strasbourg, Octob. 21. The Governor of Haguenaw hath set all the neighbouring Villages under contribution; and the French parties go as far as Marlem and Massenheim. The Prince of Conde receives daily recruits from Lorraine, Burgundy, and Suifferland, and there be those that endeavor to persuade us, that his Highness intends to conclude the Campaign with some considerable action, which the Godmans seem to apprehend, and therefore will not pass the Rhine to go into Winter-quarters, till they see how the Prince of Conde disposes of his Forces: Certain it is, that great provision is making at Brifac, several stores having been brought thither from Saverno and Haguenaw. What we formerly told you of the Suiffers having given leave to the French to raise six thousand Men in their Territories, provided they be not employed against the Empire, is confirmed by the Letters we received by the last Ordinary from those parts. Here hath been a report, that the Prince of Conde would pass the Rhine at Brifac, and so go and join the Forces of the Elector of Bavaria; but it meets with little credit, nobody being able to doubt, but that his Electoral Highness will continue firm in his Neutrality.

Lipsiada, Octob. 22. Yesterday the Ennerburg Troops, which came from the Diocess of Cologne, under the command of Monsieur Charves Lieutenant-General, passed the River here, and have at present their quarters in the Diocess of Paderborne, but we understand that they have received orders to march through the Bishoprick of Osnabrag, towards Bremen, where the Duke of Zell will command them, as well as the Munster and the other Confederate Troops; as Generalissimo, being particularly thereunto appointed by the Emperor and the Empire.

Erancfort, Octob. 23. We have nothing new to write from hence, concerning the Armies, who continue in their old quarters. From Ratisbonne they write, that the Deputies of the States of Suabia continue to make very earnest instances at the Dyet to be excused from granting Winter-quarters to the Imperial Troops, they having suffered so much the last Winter in this particular, but hitherto we hear not of any success they are like to have in their suit. Our Magistrates are likewise endeavouring to prevent the Generals of the Imperial Army having their head quarter here as they seem to intend. The Garrison of Philipsburgh is not yet so blocked up, but that the French continue to make frequent excursions, and very much to incommode the Imperialists. The reports we had here of the Duke of Lorrains design upon Sarbruck, was, it seems, without any ground; his Highness is at present with his Troops in and about Meiffenheim, and the Marschal de Roche fort is come with 2000 Men to Sarbrucke, to secure those parts.

Liege, Octob. 25. The Cavalry which passed by here the 20 instant, coming from Maeftrecht, are since returned thither again, having convoyed some of the Kings Musqueteers to the Marschal Montmorency's Army, which we hear, marches back towards Charleroy. The Dutch and Spanish Troops have their quarters still between Hallest, Dieff, and St. Tron, where, it's thought, they will continue till the French Army is separated. From Cologne they write, that the Imperialists press with much earnestness their demand of a monthly contribution of thirty thousand Rixdollers, a sum which that Diocess seems hardly able to raise, considering how the Inhabitants are impoverished since the War. The overtures that were made for the French quitting the places they at present hold in this Countrey, and their granting it a Neutrality, are now laid aside.

Hamburgh, Octob. 25. Since the news we had of the Confederates having possessed themselves of Demgarten, Loitz, &c. the Passes into Pomeran, and that the Suedes had formed a Camp near Straelfont; certain Merchants here, have received Letters from Barr, which say, that the Confederates having marched with their Forces directly towards the Suedes, the 20 instant they engaged in a Battel with them, in which, the Suedes are said to have been totally routed, and to have lost 6000 Men upon the place. But the Letters from Ruffek of the 23 instant, and from other places, of a very fresh date, not making mention of any thing farther than the taking the places; we gave you an account of in our last, this news of a Battel is lockt upon as a report, that has no ground: in which our next advices from those parts will farther clear us. The Confederates before Stade find more employment than they have done before those places they have already gained. The Marschal de Horne, Governor of the Dutchy for the Suedes, and several other eminent Officers being in the place, with a good Garrison; so that in all probability, the Confederates will meet with work enough, especially considering the season. It is reported here, that the Suedes have quitted Wolgaft, and that General Wrangel has desired of the Elector of Brandenburgh, a safeguard for his Castle called Wrangelsburgh.

Brussels, Octob. 25. On Tuesday last, the States of Brabant assembled for the first time. The Duke de Villa Hermosa remains with the Army, and as yet we know not certainly when he will return hither; the French keeping our Army longer in the Field than was intended at the Prince of Orange's leaving it. Yesterday came hither several Countrey people, who had been at Charleroy to pay their Contributions; they say, that the French Army was still in the Field, but that a great many sick Soldiers had been brought from it to Charleroy.

Hague, Octob. 29. All the sovereign Colledges, and many of the principal Burghers, in compliment to his Highness, have put themselves into mourning, for the Princess Dowager, who will be enterred at the publick charge, with great pomp and solemnity, for which preparation is accordingly making. It is said, that his Highness has sent orders to the Count de Waldeck, to put his Troops into Winter-quarters, but without any certainty; though, it seem probable, that the Army will continue together so long as they have any reason to fear any attempt from the French, who still keep the Field. Two days since, the Sieur Klingenberg, Extraordinary Ambassador from the King of Denmark, was with his Highness to acquaint him with the taking of Demgarten, by the Forces of the King his Master, and the other successes of the Confederates in Pomeran; the like hath been done by the Heer Romswinkel the Brandenburgh Minister. There be Letters from the Sieur Blanches, who commands the Dutch ships of War in the Baltick, he onely says, that they continued to cruise upon the Coasts of Pomeran.
