From Monday November 15. to Thursday November 18. 1675.

Falmouth, Nov. 11.

THE tenth instant, came in here two Dutch Men of War, the one called the Samaritan, mounted with 30 Guns, and the other the Brünswicke, mounted with 16 Guns; having with them a French Prize, a Vessel of 80 Tuns, laden with fish from Canada. By a small Vessel arrived from Bourdeaux we have advice, that they have a good Vintage there this year, and that several ships will be ready to come from thence, with the next fair wind.

Deale, Nov. 17. This morning arrived here the John Adventure from New-England, by which we have advice, That the disorder, occasioned by the rising of the Indians, hath put a great stop to the Trade and Commerce there; That the Indians are very numerous, notwithstanding the English hath killed and taken many of them; That a little before the departure of this Ship from Boston, they had advice, That the Indians by means of an Ambush, had cut off 60 Bostoners, with a Captain and Lieutenant that commanded them; they appear not in any considerable Bodies, by which means the English are not able to do so much execution upon them, as otherwise they might.

Ditto. This morning hath been taken up a great many barrels of Tarr, which were floating in the Sea; The sterne of a ship was likewise found which seem to have been of one of a good burthen. Several pieces of Wrecks appear at Sea every day; and we hear of about 40 Vessels that have been lately lost between England and Holland.

Dantzick, Nov. 6. We have now the confirmation from all hands of the precipitated retreat of the Turks and Tartars, with these particulars; That the Turks and Tartars having, upon the news they had that the King of Poland marched towards them, raised the siege of Bouchage they marched with all their Force to Trembowla, and ser down before it; Ibrahim Bassa General of the Turks, sending immediately to summon the Governor of the place to surrender it; who answered, That if they came to the Siege, with hopes of meeting with any purchase in the place, they were very much deceived: for that they were only Soldiers and Peasants who defended it, and had nothing to lose but their lives, which they were resolved to sell very dear. This answer served only the more to irritate the Turks, and to confirm them in their resolution to make themselves Masters of the place; which they attacked with so much vigor, that during 14 days they continued the Siege, they shot above 2000 Cannon-bullets into the Town, and 500 Fire-bills: They sprung four Mines, though without any effect, and made several assaults, in which they lost a great many Men: and notwithstanding all these ill successes, they continued resolved to go on with the Siege; but a Peasant being taken Prisoner, who was charged with a Letter from the King to the Governor, in which his Majesty assured him, that he was coming in person with his whole Army to relieve him, and that in order thereunto, he had already passed a small River, that was between him and the Enemies Camp, and that he marched directly towards them. Upon this news, Ibrahim Bassa gave immediately orders for the Artillery to be taken from the Batteries, which consisted in One hundred pieces, and to march towards Caminiec, whither he followed the next day with his whole Army, marching above fifteen Leagues in so much confusion and consternation, that he commanded the Tartars to keep near him, to cover his march. The King having received an account thereof, followed them, hoping to meet with some favourable opportunity to attack them in their retreat, or else to pass the Niesser. and to march into Walachia, by which means, he will get between the Turks and home, and then they must either come to a Battel, or be starved for want of Provisions.

Staden, Nov. 12. The Enemy, who threatened to reduce this place in few dayes, finding their expectations failed them, are retired, and have left us at liberty this Winter; and, against Spring, we hope to be in a better posture to receive them. A strong Party went out from hence yesterday towards Horneburg, but returned again without any action.

Rostock, Nov. 13. Our last Letters from Stratons gave us an account, That the Crown General Wrangel had embarked in small Boats and Vessels, a good body of Horse and Foot, and that he was gone out with them upon some expedition, which was kept very secret. Since we understand, that the design was to relieve Wolgast, which was besieged by the Elector of Brandenburg; but that it having been discovered, it succeeded not: however, that the Suedes had met with, and entirely defeated a Regiment of Brandenburg Horse. This afternoon we have advice, that Wolgast is surrendered to the Elector of Brandenburg; whose Forces likewise attack Demmin and Anclam.

Lubeck, Nov. 14. Yesterday arrived here a Vessel from Stockholme the Master whereof informs us, that the Suedish Fleet, who had been for several dayes abroad, consisting in above 40 sail, of which, 30 were Men of War, had been so ill treated by the late storms, that they had been forced to put into several Ports. It is added, that the Admirals Ship, called the Crown, mouned with above 100 Guns, and 1000 Men, had been in great danger, having lost its main Mast; that 2 or 3 of the Fleet were still missing, which, it was feared at Stockholme, were lost. The tenth instant, the Queen of Denmark passed through this City, towards the Kings Camp before Wismar. His Majesty notwithstanding the hindrance he receives from the season, is resolved to go on with the Siege, in which, it is said, he is very much advanced; for yesterday we had news, that the besiegers were Masters of all the Outworks, and that this day they intended to attack the Counterscarp.

Hamburg, Nov. 15. We have advice that Wolgast is surrendered to the Elector of Brandenburg, that is the Town. but the Castle which is very strong, holds out still. From the Danish Camp before Wisnar they write, That they hoped in few days to be Masters of that Town, which was wholly shut up on the side of the Water, by means of two Forts which the Besiegers have raised on each side the River; and the better to hinder the passage of Boats, they have laid a great Chain cross the River. The ninth instant, the Besiegers begun to fire into the Town, though they have not yet made use of their Fire-balls, the King being desirous to spare the place as much as he can. The Swedish Fleet having sustained some damage in the late bad weather is returned into Port.

Bremen, Nov. 16. The Munster Troops, who were at the Siege of Staden, have repassed the Weser, part here, and the rest over a Flying-bridge above this City, having with them a large Train of Artillery. They go to take their Winter-quarters in Westphalia. Six thousand Danes will remain this Winter in the Neighborhood of Stade, to block it up.

Essingen, Nov. 15. The 13 instant, General Montecuculi arrived here, accompanied with several General Officers, having been the day before nobly treated by the Duke of Wurtemberg. This day we expect here the Train of Artillery. The Lorrain Troops, who are appointed to have their Winter-quarters in Brisgovia, lie at present near Wilstadt and Oberkirken. The French threaten to dislodge the Troops which block up Philipsburgh; and the general opinion is, that they will make an attempt to put some fresh Troops, as well as a supply of Provisions into the place, that so it may be in a better posture of defence, in case the Imperialists shall besiege it in the Spring, as they say they will. The French have forced the Imperialists to quit a Post they had taken in a small Isle in the Rhine, over against Drusenheim.

Strasburgh, Nov. 15. Yesterday we received advice of the Prince of Conde's being parted from Kastenholtz, on his return to Paris, having disposed his Troops into Winter-quarters, as well in Alsatia as in Lorrain and Suntgow. In Alsatia the French are quartered in Schlestadt, Colmar, Ober-ckenheim, Rosheim, Moltzheim, Matzig, Andlaw, Zaberne, and Haguenaw, in which last place are Three thousand seven hundred Men.

Philipsburgh, Nov. 15. The Troops which General Montecuculi has left in several Posts about us, do a little shut us up, but, however, hinder not our Parties from making frequent incursions into the lower Palatinate. And though the Provisions come not hither with so much facility as formerly, yet there is enough to maintain the Garrison for two years.

Brisac, Nov. 16. The French Troops which are to have their Winter-quarters in the Lower Alsatia, have been on their march since the 13 instant; which, we hear, hath very much alarmed the Imperialists. The Prince of Conde parted some days since, on his return to Paris, having given the necessary orders for the disposition of matters this Winter. We have at present here 3500 Foot, and 1200 Horse, who, it's said, are to make frequent incursions into the Country of Brisgow. The Sieur de Monclar, Mareschal de Camp, is to command in chief in Alsatia this Winter.

Amsterdam, Nov. 22. The damage sustained by the late inundation, is not by far so considerable as was at first apprehended, and as has been reported in foreign Countries. At present the Country people are about repairing the Dikes that were broken, which would have been done ere this, but that the weather has been very bad ever since. On Monday last arrived in the Texel nine Merchantmen, who came, on the 26 past, from Archange in Russia, in company of 20 others, and a Man of War, their Convoy, from whom they were separated, in bad weather, after having been some dayes at Sea. From Bremen they write, That the Munster Troops are going to their Winter-quarters.

Hague, Nov. 22. On Wednesday last, sentence was finally pronounced against the Heer Wicquefort, who hath been for some months a Prisoner in the Voorpost, for having held private Correspondences to the prejudice of the State, by which he was condemned to perpetual Imprisonment, with Confiscation of his Goods. The States of Holland having deliberated about the state of the War, as proposed for the next year, are separated for some days, and the several Deputies are gone to consult their Principals in the matter. This afternoon arrived here the Princess of Nassau, and the Dutchess of Simmeren: We have now the certainty of the Confederates having quitted the siege of Stade, which is chiefly attributed to the Munster Troops, who would not be persuaded to stay any longer out of their Winter-quarters. But in Pomeran the Confederates go on with better success, the Elector of Brandenburg having certainly made himself Master of Wolgast, which will very much facilitate his design upon Stein. The King of Denmark continues the siege of Wisnar with great vigor. It is said that the Swedish Fleet, having met with very violent storms, in which many of their ships sustained great damage, their Admiral having, among the rest, lost his main Mast, hath been forced to return into Port; and some add, that four or five of their Men of War are missing.

Paris, Nov. 23. Their Majesties and the whole Court are now at St. Germain's again, where his Majesty gave Audience yesterday to the Bishop of St. Maix, the Duke of Roban, and the Seneschal of Nantes, deputed by the States of Britany, to beg his Majesties pardon for the late disorders that hapned in that Province. The Prince of Conde is not as yet arrived, but expected in few days. Our Letters from Madrid inform us, that the sixth instant, being the day that the King of Spain entered upon his Majority, he then completing the 14th year, and consequently took upon him the Government, Don Juan of Austria arrived there, by the King's order; to the great surprize of the whole Court, except some few of the Principal, who were privy to the Command he had from his Majesty. The Queen Regent, it's said, was much concerned hereat, and had, at her earnest instances, obtained of the King, that Don Juan might be commanded to part forthwith towards Sicily, to command the Kings Forces there; and that accordingly he had left Madrid again, but that it was not certainly known what way he had taken.
